Trustee Hein proposes new stormwater law

by LYNN ASINOF

A comprehensive program on stormwater runoff has been presented to the Wheeling Village Board by Trustee William Hein.

The board is now preparing for a series of meetings to discuss the proposed ordinance, which would require developers to "hold their own water." Currently, village flood ordinances apply only to developments built in the flood plain.

In fact, the village now relies on the Metropolitan Sanitary District regulations to control stormwater runoff and provide retention facilities. These ordinances were designed for countywide use.

WHEELING OFFICIALS want stricter regulations because the village is located at the bottom of the Buffalo Creek drainage system.

"We're in a downstream area. We've had a lot of problems and we've done a lot to correct them," said Village Mgr.

George Passolt. "We don't want to create more by simply complying with the MSD."

Hein is therefore asking that the village institute its own strict standards requiring developers to retain stormwater where it falls. The ordinance would require retention facilities for any developments larger than three acres. The MSD now requires such retention on projects larger than 10 acres.

IN ADDITION, Hein has proposed that all retention basins be designed to hold water from a 100-year storm. This water would be released at a rate comparable to the runoff from a 1.5-year storm. Both these standards are stricter than the present MSD requirements.

The proposed ordinance also emphasizes the importance of water retention by requiring developers to have their flood control specifications approved before final project plans are okayed by the village. In cases where construction might cause a threat of flash flooding, runoff control measures would be the first construction done for the development.

Hein, however, specifically said his ordinance would not prohibit building in the flood plain, as advocated by Trustee Don Jackson. Currently, the village allows such building if developers provide an equal void to hold water displaced by landfill.

THE PROPOSED ordinance specifically states that flood control is to be provided "without major loss of land use." Hein noted that the ordinance is designed to supplement the present flood plain regulations which allow flood plain construction.

One of Hein's proposals, however, was challenged by Village Atty. Paul Hamer. The attorney said that a "bypass" channel designed to carry water through the property without flooding homes would defeat the purpose of the ordinance.

Hein said the bypass channel would merely direct the flow of overland water from upstream away from buildings, thus preventing flooding. Further discussion of the channel is expected at future meetings.

FINALLY, THE ordinance outlines standards for various types of retention basins and flood control methods. For example, all dry-bottom basins are to be designed for recreation use in dry weather. Parking lot retention is not to be deeper than one foot.

Parts of the proposed ordinance are designed to protect against siltation and stagnant water and to promote the recharge of underground water supplies.

The trustees have been given copies of the ordinance to study. Further discussions will be scheduled.

Project density talks postponed

Discussion of reducing the density of projects built primarily on flood plain land has been postponed by the Wheeling Zoning Board because of the new stormwater runoff ordinance proposed by Trustee William Hein.

Zoning board members said they would wait for the village board to discuss the new proposals before pursuing any changes in Wheeling's current flood-control ordinances. They added that any discussion before that time might lead to an unnecessary duplication of efforts.

Public hearings on the matter have been continued to 7:30 p.m. Jan. 15.

Frank Wojek, chairman of the board, said copies of the proposed ordinance should be given to all members of the zoning and planning boards. "With the combined efforts of all committees, I'm sure we can come up with some ordinance," he said.

Village officials are also working on a joint meeting between the zoning board, plan commission and village board to discuss planning and flooding problems.

Trustee John Koeppen, who proposed the meeting, said he will contact the various boards, ask them to discuss any problems they may have, and then schedule the meeting.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gazers as it rolled

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

...When what to commuters' wondering eyes should appear but Horst the Roofer and his high-stepping gas beaters

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitchers were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gaze.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some North-west suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for The Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown from Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 280 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Botteman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

Homeowner groups to band together

Homeowner groups in unincorporated areas of Cook County are trying to band together to improve their strength, under the title of Congress of Cook County Homeowners. Jack Gilligan of Prospect Heights, one of the organizers of the group, said about 75 representatives of homeowner organizations are expected to meet at 10 a.m. Saturday. The organizational meeting will be at Westdale School at Diversy and Marion, south of O'Hare Airport in Cook County.

Schaumburg asks transit plans

Schaumburg's Mayor Robert O. Atcher has given a local committee one year to come up with a plan for a regional transportation center on Irving Park Road, near Schaumburg Airport. The idea, proposed by Atcher three years ago, calls for air, rail, bus, taxi and freight service all centered in a 20-acre area. The land is adjacent to Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park, the proposed Elgin-O'Hare Expressway, and a major north-south thoroughfare planned between Wheaton and the South Barrington area. Parking for 3,000 cars is also proposed.

Crack down on overweight trucks

State troopers based in Des Plaines have been aiding in the state-ordered crackdown on overweight trucks. According to Dist. 3 commander Capt. W. P. Gentile, a detail of 12 state police cars has been manning the Kennedy and Eisenhower Expressways as part of a beefed-up force to catch overweight trucks. The Dist. 3 troopers stopped six trucks for fines of $2,010 Wednesday. They also stopped five trucks up until 4 p.m. yesterday for $2,400. While the money is held as bail, it will be forfeited if the court rules guilty. Normally, according to Gentile, District 3 police stop between 50 and 150 trucks per month on local streets during their regular duties. These trucks are taken to the closest scales and weighed, he said.

Drug agents arrest five

Undercover agents made the "buy" and police closed in Wednesday on a north side Arlington Heights house. Five persons, including a juvenile, were arrested and heroin with a reported street sale value of $1,500 was seized by Arlington Heights police and agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG).

Mount Prospect cop sworn in

The first of 10 new policemen to be hired this month has been sworn in by the Mount Prospect Police Department.

NOISE unit opens mail fund drive

A major mailing campaign has been started by the O'Hare Chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Controlled Environment (NOISE) to raise funds for airport noise battles.

About 150,000 letters with postage-paid return envelopes have been sent to residents around O'Hare Airport, asking for donations in the form of NOISE memberships. Membership dues are $15 a year, $5 of which goes to the local chapter, according to chapter coordinator Philip Lindahl, environmental control officer for Des Plaines.

The letters are signed by Martin Butler, mayor of Park Ridge, who is chairman of the O'Hare chapter. In the letter, he said "NOISE has determined that there are readily available flight and operational changes which would provide significant relief if implemented by the airlines. . . . We must fight for this program at the federal level."

Butler said any donation will be accepted, and will be used to organize the national fight to stop "needless airport noise."

Lindahl said directors of NOISE this week are meeting with Congressional leaders to present plans for noise pollution control in coming noise acts.

NBC television also is rebroadcasting a show on noise pollution next week that was originally shown Nov. 18. The re-showing will be at 6 a.m. Tuesday on Channel 5 in the Chicago area. NOISE was involved in the show, as were representatives of federal agencies and industry.

'Musical Paintings' to show

John Mosiman, performing artist, will appear Sunday, Dec. 16 at 4:30 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, with his program called "Musical Paintings," for their Advent family night program.

Mosiman creates large paintings while drawing in rhythm to music. He is accompanied by synchronized orchestral sound tracks and lighting effects.

The program is geared to people of all ages. A pot luck supper will follow and the public is invited to attend.

Psychic appears tomorrow

Psychic Irene Hughes appears tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Kingswood Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove. Admission to the program, sponsored by Congregation Beth Judea, is $2 per person.

Trailer fire ruled 'arson'

Investigators blame arson in a fire that did $2,500 damage to a house trailer late Wednesday at Johnny's Mobile Homes, 2811 Mannheim Rd., Des Plaines. The trailer, used as a display model, apparently was set afire in two spots.

New bus route opens Monday

Metron Systems, Inc., will roll its buses Monday between Mill Creek subdivision in Buffalo Grove and the Chicago and North Western Rwy. station in downtown Arlington Heights. The company started local routes in Arlington Heights last summer and is extending regular service outside the village for the first time.

Merchants praise snowfall

This week's snowfall gave Northwest suburbanites a hopeful vision of a white Christmas. One group of optimists — area merchants — is happy to see the precipitation. "There's no question that a light snowfall is good for business," said Paul Dasso, vice president of the Randhurst Corp. "The light snow is good in the early month of December." The change in weather gets shoppers in an excited mood, according to Dasso. They relate more to the holiday spirit. They feel more gift-minded. And so, they spend more money.

Hospital group backs interchange

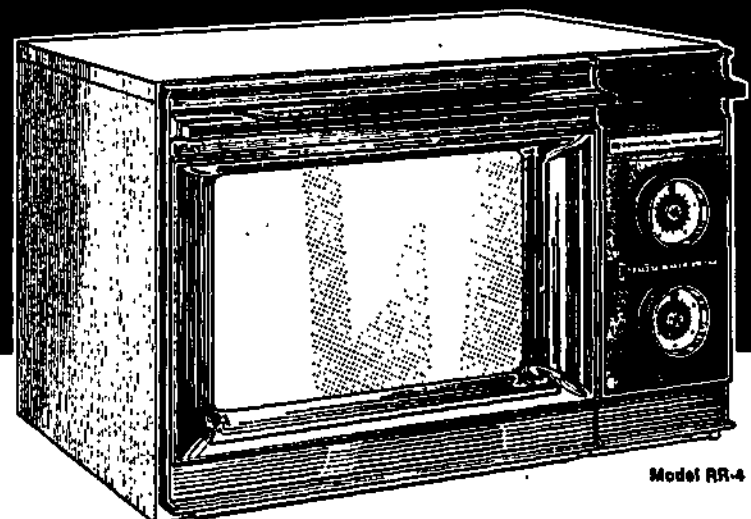

The Hoffman Estates Hospital Committee has expressed support for Alexian Brothers Medical Center officials who want an interchange on I-90 at Blesterfield Road for faster access to the hospital. The committee is composed of representatives from Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park and Streamwood who will help lay the groundwork for the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates. Alexian Brothers officials have pleaded for an interchange ever since old Ill. Rte. 53 was reconstructed. Authorities say ambulances must now exit Rte. 90 at Thorndale Avenue, south of Blesterfield Road. The longer route is believed to add about five minutes to emergency ambulance calls.

Gerald Ford takes oath as vice president

by United Press International
In the House chamber where he served for 25 years, Rep. Gerald R. Ford won confirmation Thursday as the nation's 40th vice president and took office with a pledge of "support and loyalty" to President Nixon.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath of office — the same oath Ford had repeated 13 times in taking his seat in the House — at a simple, historic ceremony before a joint meeting of House and Senate carried to the nation by live television.

Ford, who replaces Spiro T. Agnew, was the first vice president to be confirmed by Congress under the 25th Amendment. Nixon attended, but said nothing.

A partisan and well-liked House workhorse, Ford did not mention the events which drove Agnew from the vice presidency on Oct. 10 or those which threaten Nixon's presidency.

He said the process by which the nation's second highest office was filled, under the 25th Amendment which went into effect in 1967, "demonstrated to the world that our great Republic stands solid and strong upon the bedrock of the Constitution."

That drew warm, loud applause from the assembled House and Senate, the Cabinet, Supreme Court, diplomatic corps, the first family and citizenry.

In his 700-word address, which he said was simple because "I am a Ford, not a Lincoln," Ford appeared to have in mind the crisis of confidence which threatens Nixon.

"I will try to set a high example of respect for the crushing and lonely burdens which the nation lays upon the president of the United States," Ford said.

"You have my support and my loyalty," he told Nixon.

The House Republican leader won confirmation from his colleagues in late afternoon by a vote of 387-35. The opposition came entirely from Democrats and chiefly from California, New York and Massachusetts.

Of the 16 blacks in the House, only one — Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga. — voted for Ford. The new vice president's civil rights voting record had been criticized during the historic House and Senate confirmation hearings.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the Judiciary Committee which conducted the House hearings, shocked his colleagues by announcing that he could not support Ford.

"I vote not against Gerald Ford's worth as a man of great integrity but in dissent with the administration's indifference to the plight of so many Americans," Rodino said. He will preside over hearings on resolutions calling for Nixon's impeachment.

Ford earlier had won Senate approval 82-3, with the opposition coming solely from Democrats — Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri and William D. Hathaway of Maine.

Arm-in-arm, Ford and Nixon entered Statuary Hall leading to the House chamber at 5:01 p.m. CST and waved to about 300 Michigan residents and relatives of Ford who had come for the ceremony.

Mrs. Ford, wearing a bright orange, two-piece dress, stood by her husband as he took the oath from a Bible provided by his son, Michael, a seminary student.

From the House, Ford went to the Senate where he will be presiding officer — the only constitutional responsibility assigned a vice president.

"Love of America and faith in the goodness of this great country of ours is the power which unites all of us, those who govern and those by whose consent we govern, as we pray for better tomorrows in a peaceful world," he said in a speech even shorter than the one he delivered in the House.

Is Nixon impeachment barrier gone?

by STEVE GERSTEL
United Press International

Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott agreed Thursday that pressure on President Nixon to resign will not increase because the office of vice president has been filled.

Others on Capitol Hill, however, said the installation of Rep. Gerald R. Ford as vice president removes a major barrier to demands that Nixon resign or be impeached.

Mansfield said fellow Democrats "aren't putting any pressure on me" to seek Nixon's ouster and predicted that Ford would serve as vice president "three years, one month and a few days."

Scott, the Republican leader, also said he did not foresee an increase in demands that Nixon step down.

But Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, said, "I have found an increasing number of people, party loyalists, who believe the only hope for the Republican party and the country is his resignation."

"It is practically impossible for him to regain his credibility," said Ashbrook, an unquestioned conservative. "His most loyal supporters are shell-shocked."

An ardent liberal, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said with Ford in office "consideration of resignation will properly come to the front and in such a context I and others will have to give every thoughtful consideration to that possibility."

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., who called for Nixon's resignation last month, also predicted pressure for resignation would continue to mount, adding that "operation candor" was an unfulfilled promise.

Gerald R. Ford

Mansfield also said he was satisfied with the progress of the House Judiciary committee which is studying Nixon's impeachment.

"The process of indictment should not be undertaken lightly under any circumstances," Mansfield said. "To use an old phrase, 'haste makes waste' might well apply. I would go rather slowly but surely."

The general consensus that the demand for resignation or impeachment, to have any impact on Nixon, would have to come from the party's conservative wing and the most likely candidate is Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona, who has so far backed Nixon while urging him to disclose anything and everything dealing with Watergate.

A source very close to Goldwater said the 1964 GOP presidential candidate was "on the brink of breaking with Nixon" but that the "little thread" that holds him is Nixon's support nine years ago.

At the same time, Tony Smith, Goldwater's press secretary, said the senator now feels "there's no point in resigning because not a damn thing has been proved against Nixon."

Some congressmen said the swearing-in of Ford will also spur demands for "quicker" action on impeachment proceedings, although nothing is expected before next year.

But Rep. Louis Frey, R-Fla., said a "vast majority" in the House do not favor impeachment, and Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said an impeachment proceeding could backfire against its supporters "especially if this turns out to be a real star chamber proceeding."

Simon: no rationing before March 1

From Herald news services
The earliest possible date for national gasoline rationing — if there is any rationing — would be March 1, 1974, according to President Nixon's new chief energy adviser.

That report came after the government confirmed record-shattering increases in fuel prices during November.

William E. Simon, chief of the Federal Energy Office, told the Senate Government Operations Committee, that a decision on rationing will be made by the end of the month and he believes it "should be an absolute last resort."

Gasoline was up 32.3 per cent for the month, and 82.3 per cent at wholesale over the past year.

It was part of an overall report which showed the wholesale prices for all products up 1.6 per cent in November, with farm prices and processed foods down 1.4 per cent, the third straight decline.

Elsewhere on the energy crisis front: • Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., warned the oil and gas industry is "moving heaven and earth" to de-regulate the price of natural gas in order to increase profits, and "turn the energy crisis into a multi-billion dollar bonanza."

• Riot-equipped Ohio highway patrolmen got tough with truck drivers blocking roadways in the state as a protest to high fuel prices and low speed limits, arresting at least 10 and getting traffic moving smoothly for the first time in 24 hours. Only one portion of the Ohio Turnpike remained closed.

• New York City and the state of Connecticut announced they were cutting weekend subway, bus and train fares in half in the New York area to help cut down automobile use.

'Sinister force' theory mentioned in tape probe

From Herald news services
A new theory was trotted out Thursday as a possible explanation for an 18-minute gap in one of President Nixon's Watergate tapes — that some "sinister force" might have been responsible for the mysterious obliteration.

former White House counsel John Dean — will be turned over to a federal judge in New York for private examination in preparation for the trial of former cabinet officers John Mitchell and Maurice Stans. The prosecution considers the tape and Dean's testimony vital in the obstruction of justice and conspiracy case. The White House agreed to release of the tape Thursday night.

The possibility was offered up by White House chief of staff Gen. Alexander M. Haig as he completed testimony before U. S. District Judge John Sirica in Sirica's effort to learn whether any of the tapes were tampered with.

In related developments: • The Senate Watergate Committee is reported investigating charges that President Nixon's brother — F. Donald Nixon — interceded with the president to get approval of the sale of Air West to billionaire Howard Hughes in 1969. Committee sources said two former Hughes associates made the charge, which Donald Nixon has denied.

Haig — in what he called "the devil theories" — said talk among White House lawyers was that Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, may have accidentally erased up to five minutes of the tape, "and then perhaps some sinister force had come in and applied the other energy source and taken care of the rest."

Charging that Robert H. Bork is serving illegally as acting attorney general, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., filed suit in U. S. district court in Washington to remove him from office. The suit is based on a law that limits the term of any person who temporarily fills a vacancy as head of any executive department to 30 days. Bork, who replaced the resigned Elliot Richardson, passed the 30-day mark Nov. 18.

He said he had no idea who such a sinister force might be, and said later that his own theory is that Miss Woods was responsible for the entire 18-minute erasure on the tape, which recorded a Nixon-H. R. Haldeman conversation three days after the Watergate break-in. Another White House tape — that of a Feb. 28 conversation between Nixon and continued into substantive negotiations there was great hope of a peace settlement. He acknowledged cease-fire violations along the Suez line, but said he didn't think the cease-fire or the conference were threatened.

There were more violations Thursday — for the first time since the truce went into effect 44 days ago — a dogfight between Egyptian and Israeli war planes over the Gulf of Suez. Each side claimed downing one plane on the other side, and denied it lost any.

Israel was reported to have its troops massed in strength comparable to the 1967 war, and reported sporadic attacks on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts.

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Golda Meir won a decisive vote of confidence from her ruling Labor Party, turning back efforts to purge Defense Minister Moshe Dayan from the government for alleged war miscalculations.

Kissinger offers new hope for Middle East settlement

From Herald news services

Amid more cease-fire violations, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger held out new hope Thursday for still getting a peaceful settlement in the Middle East.

Kissinger, two days before his scheduled departure for Europe and the Middle East, told a Washington news conference it was "extremely probable" the Arab-Israeli peace conference would open as scheduled in Geneva Dec. 18 and would bring success.

Kissinger said the conference would most likely begin with problems of a military nature, and with those settled could begin on a permanent settlement to comply with the 1967 United Nations resolution calling for Israel to withdraw to the borders it held before the six-day war.

He indicated his optimism was based on good cooperation from the Russians in setting up the conference, and if that continued into substantive negotiations there was great hope of a peace settlement. He acknowledged cease-fire violations along the Suez line, but said he didn't think the cease-fire or the conference were threatened.

After the robbers escaped undetected, the employees were freed from the vault. The bank is a branch of the Bank of Highwood and located in a frame building on the grounds.

TWA, too, will pull out of Midway

Midway Airport in Chicago had another setback Thursday when TWA announced plans to cancel its few remaining flights from there after a settlement of a strike by stewards and stewardesses. In New York, the strikers were ordered to halt the spread of picketing to Pan American and American Airlines terminals.

Suit: state school board unlawful

The Illinois Education Association yesterday filed suit asking that the law creating the new state school board be declared unconstitutional because it prohibits teachers from becoming board members. The law creating the school board was passed last session and signed by Governor Walker.

Soviet spy planes eye ship traffic

Pentagon sources said Soviet reconnaissance planes are flying almost daily patrols over the South Atlantic Ocean from a base in the West African nation of Guinea. Sources said the long-range planes apparently are monitoring shipping traffic.

Nader unit asks recall of candles

A Ralph Nader research unit said millions of Christmas candles, among others, contain wicks that could cause lead poisoning and asked to get them off store shelves. The candles are: small yellow and large white in decorated containers by Hallmark; red decorative candle — "Scent-alite Pine" by (Emkay); small blue for food warming by Lenox and flat-shaped for food warming by Corning Ware.

Skylab may change weather forecasting

The Skylab astronauts yesterday photographed swirling disturbances in the Yucatan current of the Caribbean Sea which could force changes in present weather forecasting. The photographed eddies were found to release 10 times more heat than normal, and must be taken into account to improve forecasting.

American kidnapped in Argentina

Seven guerrillas broke into an oil refinery outside Buenos Aires and kidnapped Victor Samuelson, a U.S. director of an Exxon Oil affiliate, at gunpoint. The abduction came only two weeks after guerrillas killed an American businessman in a machinegun ambush.

The market

Stocks make best gains of year

After more than five weeks of steady decline, the Dow Jones industrial average soared to one of its best gains of the year in heavy trading. The Dow climbed 25.81 to 814.12. Only once in 1973, when the Dow gained 29.42 points in a similar outburst, did the widely-followed average boast a bigger one-day leap. Standard & Poor's index rose 1.80 to 93.96. Advances were nearly two to one ahead of declines among the 1,840 issues traded.

• Diplomatic whirl: President Nixon named a batch of new ambassadors Thursday, including the assignment of career diplomat Walter J. Stoessel Jr. as our man in Moscow, a job that was vacant since January. Also named: state department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey, ambassador-at-large; David H. Pepper, ambassador to Chile; David D. Newsome, ambassador to Indonesia. Resigned, as expected, is Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco, to become president of Hamilton College at Clinton, N.Y.

At the age of 13 days, Autumn Roxanne Burke has her first letter from the president, asking her to come to the White House to "look the place over." Her mother, Rep. Yvonne Burke, D-Calif., was the first member of Congress to give birth while in office, and told reporters she was pointing Autumn toward 1800 Pennsylvania Ave. some day.

It's nice to have a comet named after you, but Czech astronomer Lubos Kohoutek says he's sorry people expected more than they've seen so far on the approach of the phenomenon of the same name. To date, Kohoutek the comet has been much less spectacular than predicted when Kohoutek the astronomer discovered it in March, but he thinks it'll still be at least as good as the legendary Halley's.

Show biz: TV superstar Mary Tyler Moore has separated from Grant Tinker, her husband of 11 years and producer of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." But, while they're no longer living together in Malibu, they're still on the job together . . . a Los Angeles judge passed the chance to make legal history when he ruled in the case of Michelle Triola Marvin that ex-girl friends do not have the same property rights as ex-wives. Miss Marvin said she lived with actor Lee Marvin for six years, even legally taking his surname, and thus was entitled to half his assets earned during the partnership.

It was a big day in the Sacramento, Calif., courthouse for Steven Ray Collins, 22. First he went before Judge Peter Mannino to marry Sharon Lavette, 21, and then trooped downstairs where Judge Robert W. Sen. Jackson to attend Mikva fete

Sen. Henry M. Jackson

U.S. Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson, D-Washington, will make a campaign appearance on Sunday, Dec. 16, at the election headquarters of Abner J. Mikva, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 10th Congressional District.

Jackson will appear at a party for Mikva campaign workers at the campaign office, 3415 Church St., Skokie, at 4 p.m. The public is invited.

The Washington senator, considered by some a potential 1976 presidential nominee, will be in Chicago to accept honors as man of the year of the State of Israel bond drive.

Young prosecutor proposal

U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th, recently introduced legislation to establish a special Watergate prosecutor, appointed by the executive branch but subject to discharge only with the approval of Congress.

Young said appointment of the prosecutor by the courts or Congress would be unconstitutional, but his bill would give him "tenure that will be secure." The bill also would establish certain causes for which the prosecutor could be discharged, such as physical or mental disability or "gross impropriety."

RTA hopeful declares

The first announcement candidate for the board of the Regional Transit Authority yet to be organized by referendum is Eleanor Wolf, chairman of the Greater Lake County Mass Transit District.

Mrs. Wolf told the Herald she is trying to organize the board chairmen of the five counties outside Cook that would be in the RTA to form a protective coalition. She said she believes the suburbs can work with the Cook County system, with some protective measures. Mrs. Wolf, of Round Lake, said she is going to actively seek appointment to the board, which will have two members selected by the county board chairmen outside Cook County.

Teacher to oppose Nimrod

Des Plaines teacher Patton Feichter, 9217 Potter Road, has been named Democratic candidate for the state Senate to oppose Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-Skokie.

Feichter teaches history at Maine South High School in Park Ridge. He was endorsed by Democratic Township committeemen Nick Blase of Maine Township; Calvin Sutker, Niles Township; Jerry Helton, Northfield Township, and Don Norman, Wheellog Township.

Feichter, 29, was a candidate for the Oakton Community College board in 1972.

Utility complaints to ICC

Complaints concerning service to Mount Prospect residents by Citizens Utility Co. of Addison have been forwarded to the Illinois Commerce Commission by State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge.

The company is seeking hikes of 50 per cent in water rates and 100 per cent in sewerage rates for some 3,000 Mount Prospect residents, who Juckett says already pay "much higher fees" than most other suburban residents.

Juckett said the utility company has ignored his request for information concerning the rate increase.

Juckett recently announced his candidacy for reelection to his fifth term in the Illinois House.

Firearms storage bill

Police departments and sheriffs would be required to provide storage space for privately owned firearms under legislation proposed by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter said many hunters and target shooters who keep guns in their homes would welcome a safe storage facility. Under his bill, police departments could charge a maximum storage fee of 25 cents per month and the guns would be available to the owners at any time.

He said initial reaction to his proposal by police officials has been favorable. "I believe that by providing storage services to those wishing to use them, a number of home gun accidents can be avoided," said Porter.

Schools seek citizen reaction to long-range plans

Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 officials are seeking citizen reaction to a long-range plan they have developed for achieving educational and administrative goals in the 1970s.

Residents have until next Wednesday to voice opinions on the plan before it probably will be adopted by the school board. Copies of the 40-page report are available at the administration building, 700 N. Secorbeck Rd.

The plan, titled A-100, was put together at the request of the state superintendent's office. All public school districts in Illinois this year are required for the first time to submit similar plans.

DIST. 23 Assistant Supt. Tom Rich said the plan has been made part of a uniform set of guidelines established by the state office for the evaluation, recognition and certification of public school districts.

One of the main reasons for requiring the plan this year, Rich said, was to promote public involvement in school affairs.

The plan was compiled during the past year by a task force composed of administrators, teachers, students and residents of the district.

"We are required to have a plan so that it is clear to everyone what we are doing here," Supt. Ed Grodzky said. "It's a plan for accountability in all areas of education."

THE A-100 PLAN must be submitted to the state superintendent's office by Jan. 1. It was discussed at the school board meeting this week and will probably be adopted at the next regular meeting next Wednesday.

School officials said they are hoping residents will read it and make comments before the board vote.

Based on an evaluation of the current operations of the district, specific student and systems (administrative) goals are named in the report along with the actions necessary to achieve each objective.

Organizing curriculums to be flexible enough to meet the needs of each individual student is stressed in the student goals section of the report. This part of the plan sets forth educational objectives and the grade level by which students should complete steps toward each goal.

STUDENT GOALS included in the plan are:

- To develop the inquiring creative mind and the self-directed individual. Activities designed to help students realize this objective focus on developing communication skills, creative expression in a variety of media, logic and independent research techniques.

- To make students aware of citizenship responsibilities and appreciative of cultural differences. Toward this goal, students will study democratic processes and the contributions that ethnic and racial groups have made to American life.

- To develop each student's capacity to assume more and more responsibility for his own education after leaving the classroom. In achieving this objective, students will gradually be required to take on responsibility for learning activities and dealing with their peers. They will also be informed of the services of libraries, historical societies, park district programs, junior colleges and adult facilities for continuing education.

- To help students recognize that every area of human knowledge has significant contributions to make to their growth. To reach this goal, students will continuously participate in learning activities in the areas of humanities, mathematics, science, the creative arts, health and physical education.

SYSTEMS OR administrative goals outlined by the district for the 1970's are:

- To adopt a revised and updated policy manual in January 1974. The policy manual is a guide for the operations of the school board.

- To present a new administrative organizational chart for school board approval by next June. The chart would identify administrative patterns and channels of communication for both the central office and school building administrators.

- To implement a computerized accounting system by July 1975.

- To develop a multi-staff screening process for kindergarten students by next September to identify students with learning problems.

- To develop curriculum guides in reading, basic skills development, home economics, industrial arts, health (grades six, seven and eight), and the instructional material center program by next September.

- To adopt policies identifying student health services and the duties and responsibilities of the school nurse by next September.

- To provide needy students in Dist. 23 with free lunches during the next school year.

- To establish school bus safety standards by next June.

- To develop a list of desired professional competencies for teachers which will be used as a guide for in-service training programs during the 1974-75 school year by next June.

Hypertension clinic in village Saturday

A hypertension screening clinic will be at the Buffalo Grove Mall tomorrow to check area residents for high blood pressure.

The program is similar to one that took place in July. The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club will operate the program, which is designed to alert persons with high blood pressure of their condition. About 10 percent of those suffering from high blood pressure are unaware of the problem, according to national statistics.

The screening test takes only a few minutes. Members of the nurses club will ask residents only a few questions and then take their blood pressure.

The clinic will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Persons who were screened this summer may wish to be rechecked. The Buffalo Grove Mall was chosen as the location for the clinic because of its indoor facilities.

Hanukkah accessories featured at gift shop

Hanukkah candles, menorahs and gifts will be sold today by the Beth Judea Gift Shop from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Buffalo Grove Mall.

The gift shop will move to the Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove Sunday and will be open from 9 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. On Dec. 16, the shop will be at the school from 9 a.m. to noon.

The Striker Lanes Bowl in Buffalo Grove will house the gift shop on Monday, Dec. 17 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. For further information, call 882-4928.

Psychic Irene Hughes to appear tomorrow

Psychic Irene Hughes tomorrow will present an audience-participation program at the Kingswood Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

The program is sponsored by the sisterhood of Congregation Beth Judea and will begin at 8 p.m. Admission at the door is $4 per couple or $2 per person for all paid-up members.

Eucharistic vigil

St. Joseph the Worker Church in Wheeling and St. Thomas Becket Church in Prospect Heights will co-host a Eucharistic vigil at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Wheeling Church, 181 W. Dundee Rd.

'I'm in Senate race to win,' Burditt insists

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Republican George Burditt followed a perfect script yesterday in announcing his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

The former state legislator disavowed connection with Watergate, called for complete campaign disclosure, challenged incumbent Sen. Adlai Stevenson to debate, pledged a "people-raising" not money-raising campaign and said "I'm in this to win."

Burditt, 51, attorney from La Grange, said he has "no (Republican) party commitment of any kind." But, state GOP leaders lined up behind Burditt during press conferences in Chicago and Springfield.

IN A SPEECH attempting to show widespread party support, Burditt named Comr. Floyd Full of Des Plaines, Elk Grove committeemen Carl Hansen, U. S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, and State Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Park Ridge, as local officials who have encouraged his candidacy.

"If action men and women of integrity cop out when the going gets a little rough, we're in for real trouble in this country. I'm an action guy and I want to get back where the action is and hopefully I can let the people in Illinois have an opportunity to say 'maybe politicians aren't so bad after all,'" he said.

Burditt, a four-term Illinois House member who retired from politics last year, will enter the GOP primary against John Lincoln Kirby of Springfield, primary loser in 1972 for state auditor. The Republican winner will face Stevenson in 1974.

"Obviously we (the GOP) are down," Burditt said. "There's not a great deal of overconfidence on this platform."

BURDITT WAS asked where Stevenson is most vulnerable. "In Illinois," he answered.

"At least one Democrat apparently thinks I'm an action man of integrity since Gov. (Daniel) Walker has appointed me to two positions (chairman of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission and the Illinois Ethics Board) which necessitated the highest degree of integrity and public confidence." Burditt added that he does not expect Walker's endorsement.

Burditt's campaign entry ends months of searching by GOP leaders for a candidate to top the party ticket. A strong race against Stevenson could boost candidates for Congressional, state and county posts.

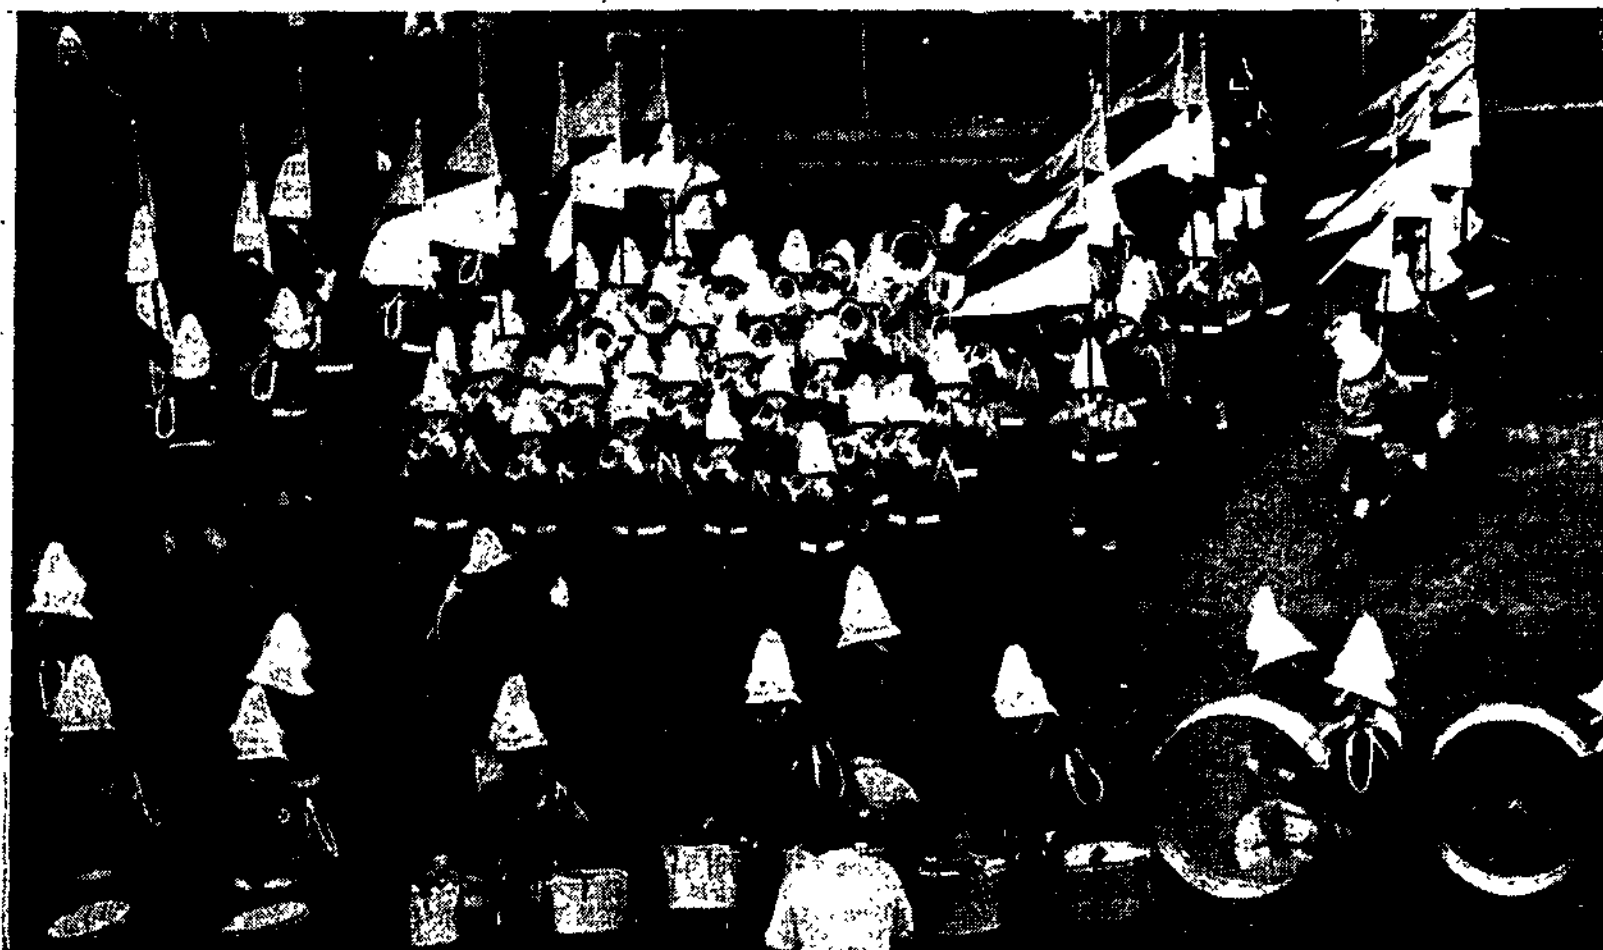

ATTY. GEN. William Scott, NATO Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld and U. S. Rep. John Anderson of Rockford "each had a valid reason" for declining party backing, said Burditt, who emerged the GOP candidate after two days of meetings in Chicago this week.

Scott, first choice because he led the state ticket in 1972, is the top elected Republican in Illinois. As for Rumsfeld, he said, NATO is "in trouble and this is no time to pull out." Anderson is in a "powerful leadership position" as third ranking Republican in the House a post he would have to relinquish to run for the Senate.

"I don't know that they didn't think they could win," Burditt said. "Any of those three would have made an excellent candidate I would have been happy to support. But, I think I have broader support than any of the other three."

Burditt said he does not know what the campaign will cost, but he will reveal his personal financial holdings after an audit and will disclose campaign contributions. He called for full disclosure of Watergate information by President Richard Nixon.

Thompson assistant speaks

Attorney aide hits '7' nonsentencing

by KURT BAER

The chief of the U. S. attorney's criminal division, speaking in Arlington Heights yesterday, criticized the nonsentencing of attorney William Kunstler and three of the Chicago Seven on contempt of court charges.

U. S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux yesterday refused to impose a sentence on the four conspiracy trial defendants saying, "The court is convinced that now, four years after the trial, no warrant exists for the imposition of jail sentences which have already been served by the non-lawyer defendants."

Assistant U. S. Atty. Arthur Connelly, standing in for U. S. Atty. James Thompson at a meeting of the Arlington Heights Rotary Club yesterday, said the contempt convictions announced Tuesday warranted at least a $5,000 fine, and that he personally would have imposed a maximum 177-day jail sentence.

"I'd stop short of 180 days because then they'd be eligible for parole," Connelly, a 18-year veteran of U. S. attorney's office, told the Rotary audience.

THE SAID THOMPSON had pleaded with Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork, now acting U. S. attorney general, not to drop prosecution of the contempt charges, despite pressure from deans of eastern law schools to do so.

Thompson told him it would be cowardly to lay over and play dead," Connelly said. "We've done our job. We did what we thought we had to."

Race fixers may lose licenses

Jockeys, trainers and owners allegedly involved in race fixing at Arlington Park Race Track, may be refused licenses to race here again, says Illinois Racing Board chairman Anthony Scarlano.

Scarlano said the racing board would not enter into the specifics of the race fixing charges, pending possible prosecution by the Cook County state's attorney.

"We on the racing board are in a delicate position because, on the one hand, we ferret out crime and cause prosecution, while also sitting in judgment on licensing (of tracks and horsemen).

"We can't go in with any preconceived notions, but any prosecution or convictions would be a factor in contemplating whether or not to revoke their licenses," he said.

The betting ring allegedly involved fixed trifection races at Arlington Park last summer in which the order of finish in trifection races was rigged to pay off for bettors with the inside information.

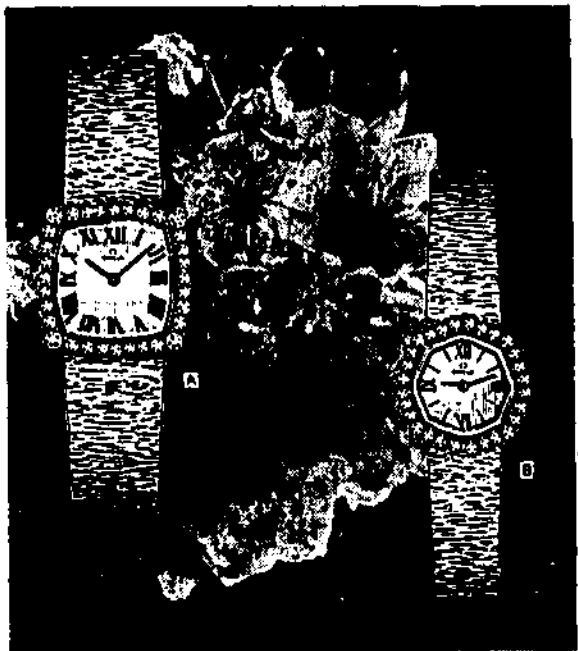

The race fixing scheme reportedly involved at least five jockeys, three trainers and two owners.

In his ruling yesterday, Gignoux repeated portions of the U. S. Court of Appeals comments on the often turbulent 1969-70 riot conspiracy trial, noting that the "nonjudicial atmosphere" was created almost equally by the government as well as the defense.

KUNSTLER, WHO faces possible disbarment in New York, has said he will appeal the recent contempt convictions. While disagreeing with the judge's decision not to sentence Kunstler, David Dellinger, Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin on the contempt convictions, Connelly said that Gignoux has a reputation as a fine judge and had made the decision according to his own conscience.

After the ruling yesterday, Thompson thanked the judge "for nobleness of courtroom conduct" and told him that his handling of the six-week trial was "probably the best I've ever seen in an American court of law."

Arthur R. Paynter

Funeral services for Arthur R. Paynter, 73, of Des Plaines, will be held at 2:30 p.m. today in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

The Rev. Howard D. Peckenpaugh of St. Martin Episcopal Church, Des Plaines, will be officiating. Burial will be in family lot.

Mr. Paynter, who was a retired expeditor for Kenilworth Co., was pronounced dead on arrival Tuesday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. He was born July 9, 1900, in Omaha, Neb.

Surviving are a daughter, Kathryn Paynter of Des Plaines; a son, Arthur of Phoenix, Arizona; one grandchild, and a brother, Floyd of Omaha, Neb. He was preceded in death by his wife, Gaye.

Robert E. Johnson Sr.

Robert E. Johnson Sr., 83, of Des Plaines, died Tuesday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. He was born in Minnesota, Aug. 20, 1890.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today in Drake and Son Funeral Home, 625 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge. Officiating will be a Christian Science Reader, Mr. Herman Stein. Interment is private.

Mr. Johnson was president of the Schaff Piano String Corp. and vice president of the Schaff Piano Supply Co. both in Chicago. He also was vice president of the Standard Piano Hammer Co. in Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Mabello Bushelle; a son, Robert E. Jr. and daughter-in-law, Lucie; three daughters, Florence Johnson, Mrs. Helen (William) Alfani and Mrs. Mary (John) Trimble; 11 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Heart Fund or American Cancer Society.

Beatrice Hebel

Mrs. Beatrice Hebel, 95, nee Schilling, formerly of Chicago, died yesterday morning in Sunset Manor Nursing Home, Woodstock. She was born Oct. 9, 1878, in Germany.

Surviving are four nieces, Beatrice Everly of Arlington Heights, Vanetta Chambers of Palm Beach, Fla., Marjorie Lewis of Mountain View, Mo., and Dorothy Deverman of Bloomington, Ill., and a nephew, Milton Vance of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Halro Funeral Home, Northwest Highway and Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights. Visitation is half an hour before time of service. Burial will be in St. Lucas Cemetery, Chicago.

The almanac

Today is Friday, Dec. 7, the 341st day of 1973 with 24 to follow. This is Pearl Harbor Day.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American novelist Willa Cather was born Dec. 7, 1876.

On this day in history:

In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the United States Constitution.

In 1931, President Herbert Hoover refused to see a group of so-called "hunger marchers" at the White House.

In 1941, Japan launched a sneak attack on the United States at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii. Japanese air and sea attacks spread to the Philippines, Wake and Guam islands, and the United States was catapulted into World War II.

In 1972, with astronauts Gene Cernan and Ronald Evans and scientist Harrison Schmitt aboard, Apollo 17 blasted off for the moon.

Free Hearing Tests Set For Senior Citizens

Electronic hearing tests will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Service offices on Monday and Tuesday.

Factory-trained hearing aid specialists will be at all of the offices listed below to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to have a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular loss. Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people

Harold C. DeBerg

Harold C. DeBerg, 58, a resident of Palestine for 23 years, died Wednesday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an extended illness. He was employed by the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co., as the general roadmaster of the system, with 38 years of service, and was also a stockholder.

Visitation is today from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

The body will lie in state tomorrow in Immanuel Lutheran Church, 200 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, from 11 a.m. until time of funeral service at 12 p.m. Officiating will be the Rev. Theodore A. Braem.

Then the body will be taken to Stevens Memorial Chapel, 607 28th St., Ames, Iowa, for visitation on Sunday from 2 to 9 p.m.

Funeral service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the chapel of the funeral home. Burial will be in Ames Municipal Cemetery, Ames, Iowa.

Mr. DeBerg was a member of Veterans Association of the Chicago and North Western Railroad; Roadmasters and Maintenance of Way Association of America; Maintenance of Way Club of Chicago; Loyal Order of Moose Lodge, No. 104, Boone, Iowa.

His survivors include his widow, Gladys, nee Karnatz; two sons, Douglas G. and daughter-in-law Sonja of Ankeny, Iowa, and Richard J. and daughter-in-law Patricia DeBerg of Paola, Kan.; five grandchildren, Christine, Cheryl, Michael, Deanna and Kerry DeBerg, and mother, Mrs. Henrietta (the late John) DeBerg of Palatine.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine.

Deaths Elsewhere

James C. King, 55, of Caldwell, Idaho, formerly of Mount Prospect, died suddenly Wednesday in Pine Bluff, Ark., after an apparent heart attack while there on business.

Mr. King was a former treasurer of the Village of Mount Prospect for almost 10 years, beginning in 1958. During that time he contributed greatly to clearing up aged outstanding bonds for special assessment accounts.

Surviving are his widow, Agnes; a son, James Jr. of Tempe, Ariz.; four daughters, Mrs. Diane Leverton of Denver, Colo., Joan, Ann and Susan King, all at home; mother, Mrs. Florence M. King of Hannibal, Mo.; three brothers, Kenneth of Hannibal, Mo., John of St. Louis, Mo., and David of Chicago, and two sisters, Mrs. Madeline Leto of Des Moines and Mrs. Dorthulla Clay of Hannibal, Mo.

Funeral services and burial will be in Hannibal, Mo.

Mrs. Frances J. Pion, 55, nee Greene, of Chicago, died Wednesday in Resurrection Hospital, Chicago, after a long illness. She was born in Chicago, April 10, 1918.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Annette (John) Havranek of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Yvonne (Gerald) Beyer of Chicago; a son, Ronald of Chicago; two granddaughters, Loren and Sandra Havranek; a sister, Mrs. Margaret (Cecilia) Cline of Melrose Park, and an uncle, Joseph McCarthy of Chicago. She was preceded in death by her husband, Edward.

A memorial Mass will be said at 11 a.m. today in St. Monica's Catholic Church, 5135 N. Montclare, Chicago.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, masses preferred.

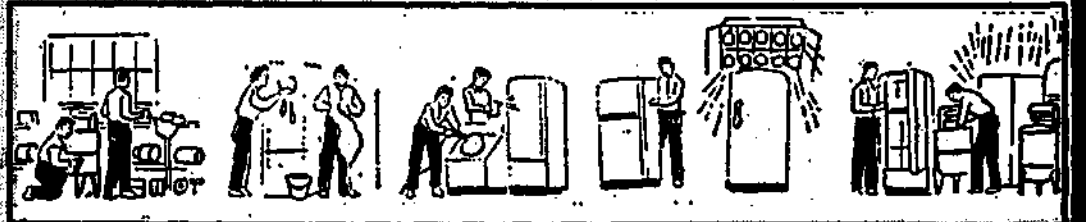

International dinner set

Foreign language students at Maine East High School will hold their annual international dinner Dec. 11, 4 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

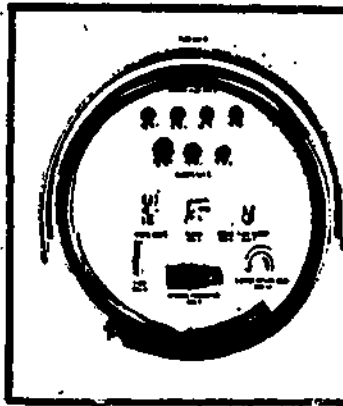

In addition to the dinner, each of the language clubs will present an ethnic skit.

Cook County needs open primaries

When they came right down to it, neither the Democratic nor Republican party of Cook County could bring itself to carry out its promise of "open slatemaking."

The politicians demonstrated once again that the best method for selecting candidates for the general election is to let the voters do it — through an open primary election.

In the face of growing antagonism on the part of the voters with "politics as usual," the Democrats and the Republicans tried this year to outdo each other with hoopla over the ways they were going to select their candidates right out in front of God and everybody.

They began with rituals of "search committees" to find qualified individuals, public interviews of candidates and frequent press conferences to broadcast their accomplishments.

Republicans started out with a slate of three candidates for their blessing for the presidency of the Cook County Board of Commissioners. At the last minute, the party leaders shucked the pretense of "open slating" and privately agreed to bestow the candidacy on state Sen. Terrel Clarke of Western Springs, who had never publicly sought the job.

That maneuver — plus the fact that the "open slatemakers" had parceled out five of the six candidacies for the county board among themselves — resulted in such cries of outrage from party members that Clarke quickly jumped out of the race.

Having gone beyond any appearance of "public" slatemaking, the party powerbrokers then retreated behind their closed door again and named one of their number, Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl R. Hansen, to the top of the ticket.

Meanwhile, back at the Democratic ranch, the infighting centered on P. J. Cullerton, county assessor, who was trying to hang onto his job for another four years.

Taking the party at its word, Cullerton actually came out and publicly asked for its endorsement for reelection.

But again the candidate selection was made not through any "open" process, but by a handful of party leaders huddled in private.

Cullerton lost his job, and none of the Republicans who set out to seek slating for the board presidency wound up on the slate. But that is incidental.

What matters is that the choice which the voters will have will be simply among the handpicked candidates of the inside circles of each party.

Party leaders defend this process by declaring that their major responsibility is to fashion a ticket of potential winners.

That argument overlooks the fact that candidates running in a primary election for their party's nomination would be forced to

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

The true cause of President Richard Nixon's administrative dilemma in Washington is now apparent.

Nixon is not a Turtle.

The President is not a horse, a cow or a parrot, either. Some would compare him in not-so-nice terms to the animal symbol of the other political party. But Nixon's non-Turtleness is his downfall.

Nixon's five predecessors as President were Turtles. Pick a political success and you find a Turtle at heart — Gov. Daniel Walker, former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Mayor Richard Daley, state Rep. Eugene Schlickman and County Comm. Floyd Full.

"A Turtle believes that you never get any place worthwhile in life unless you stick your neck out," the Turtle code proclaims. "Turtles are bright-eyed, bushy-tailed, fearless and unafraid folk with a fighter pilot attitude."

Potential Nixon membership was scuttled because the President taxed the Turtle creed (and the nation's patience and pocketbook) by sticking his neck out too far in defense of administration policy.

Zoologists may disagree, but there are two types of turtles. The animal (small-type) lives in a shell and races rabbits. The human (capital-type) thinks clean, has a sense of humor and pays a buck to join the International Association of Turties Ltd. of Chicago.

County line

'Nixon's not a Turtle'

"Turtles firmly believe they can make the world a better place to live without getting involved in politics or religion," the creed states.

Comparison of Nixon and Turtles shows why presidential popularity is at an all-time low:

—Picture a happy Nixon. "A Turtle knows that a smile can very often melt the strongest armor." That's why the defense budget has soared under a smiling Nixon eye.

—See a friendly Nixon. "A Turtle knows that to have friends, you must be one." That's why the Watergate committee gropes for White House co-operation.

—Find a good-will Nixon. "A Turtle is an ambassador of good will." Did someone say something about kicking someone around?

—Add other Nixons. "A Turtle is a purveyor of instant friendship (the reasons for many administration staff turnovers) . . . knows that happiness is not a gift you receive, but a treasure that multiplies only when you share it (donations to the National Archives) . . . is a person that has felt that inner glow of peace you get when you have reached out and made a friend (like Bebe Rebozo)."

Politics aside, Turtles International began a year ago as a bonafide, registered charity with a goal of helping disadvantaged children. The group is state incorporated, not for profit and is headquartered in the converted bedroom of Imperial Turtle Lloyd Nardesty's home in Chicago.

Turtle clubs actually date to 1914 when members sought fellowship, good times and pursuit of drink. An estimated 5.5 million persons have sipped through imitation rites as the club's fame spread by word of mouth throughout the world.

Although the international club, founded by Nardesty last year, has added charity to its cause, the founder's desire for thirst quenching is ritual and card carriers who fall to answer the not-so-secret password forfeit a beverage to other members. Rog's Turtle Inn in Schiller Park is the official club watering hole and features the Tubby the Turtle cocktail the first Wednesday of each month.

"A Turtle is a person who knows that a sense of humor is the pole that adds balance to our steps as we walk the tight-rope of life." Wisdom from the Earl of Turtledom.

"We're a tongue-in-cheek club aimed at fun and doing good," the Imperial Turtle said this week during an excursion from his shell. "We do plenty of crazy things for publicity."

A turtle (animal type) race in Schiller Park drew nationwide attention and 800 cheering youngsters last spring. Another Loop stunt with a member riding a jack-ass folded for lack of a parade permit. Something combining the Lock Ness monster and Lake Michigan is promised this spring.

The group's "Turtles Toys for Tots Fund Drive" ends next week. "We're going to clear $500, but we weren't well enough organized to do all we wanted to," Hardesty said.

All money collected from the fund drives and the sale of Turtle paraphernalia, T-shirts, pins, bumper stickers, a record by George Gobel, memberships and patches is donated to charity. "We're a totally volunteer organization. We have no administrative cost other than supplies and many of those are donated to us or purchased at cost."

Tales of Turtledom creep along at a slow, persistent pace. The International association now claims affiliate clubs in Hong Kong and London. All NASA employees are members through the efforts of astronaut Wally Schirra.

Don't act surprised to see a Turtlemobile cruising Chicago someday. If you hear two short, two long, two short honks of a nearby car, that's Turtle talk acknowledging a Turtle bumper sticker.

And, don't ask if any of the above is true. The only response will be "you bet your sweet bippy" — a polite version of the Turtle counter-password.

'Police survey' blasted

letters to the editor

The false sense of security, or insecurity, perpetuated by Tom Von Malder's alleged "police survey" published in the Mount Prospect Herald, November 29, is more of a crime than any which will be committed as a result of such an irresponsible article. Residents of Mount Prospect must fear for their lives as the criminal element is invited to ravish their village! Elk Grove villagers, on the other hand, will be impossible to placate because we do not have sufficient manpower to handle rush hour traffic through our street construction areas. The other villages represented will experience reactions somewhere in between.

Each police administrator in each community must justify, to both his mayor or manager and the executive officials of his community, the number of police officers he needs to protect and serve that community. The last consideration, if it should be considered at all, is the ratio of police officers to population.

I do not know how Mr. Von Malder got the statistics from which he compiled such an article, or who he consulted. It reads like the results of an inept telephone survey and causes one to wonder if the shortage of newsprint supplies is really critical.

Municipal budget hearings are open to the press. Mr. Von Malder should be assigned to cover a few of these to learn how each chief attempts to justify the existence of his police department.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reporter Tom Von Malder has attended Mount Prospect village budget hearings the past two years.

Columnists' friends are 'angry'

Subjective, in the sense of Tom Wellman's Nov. 19 column, "Reviewing press criticism," means "Determined by, and emphasizing, your ideas and thoughts and feelings."

In effect, you would present your "fair" point of view. Objectivity, in your point of view is "Balderdash," which I find defined as "senseless writing." Now if it is editorial prerogative to be subjective, and the editor is a fool, then I say "Balderdash!" "Objective" means "without prejudice, impersonal." Reporting facts honestly, but out of context, could injure reputations, and that's where subjective reporting comes in. To say "John Doe staggered out of control down Main St.," does not tell us if John Doe was inebriated or suffering from locomotor ataxia.

The American press does not need your Nov. 20 "Apologia." A thinking person regards it as a monumental whine which insinuates that readers won't understand unless you the editor "designates opinion." You would have been smoother using the word "insight." Frankly, your column comes over as an insult to your readers, and your very angry friends and relatives, for whom I have great apathy.

When I finished your column, all I could think of was "Balderdash!"

Reporter praised

This is to express my appreciation and that of the Dist. 57 board of education to your newspaper and your reporter, Tom Von Malder, for the article which appeared in the Mount Prospect Herald on Thursday, November 22. This article reported the adoption of goals for our district. It was well written and it accurately reported both the procedures used to develop the goals and the substance of the goals themselves. Placement on the front page was also greatly appreciated.

The dissemination of such information to the public is both useful and necessary to the promotion of the educational interests of our students. We are grateful for the contribution made and the service rendered by the Mount Prospect Herald.

Energy crunch hits Nixon

by EUGENE V. RISHIER

WASHINGTON — The energy shortage has given the Nixon White House a severe crisis whose dimensions are obscure but ominous.

Some of the President's aides have said privately they believe it can seriously damage his efforts to survive the Watergate scandals and save his presidency.

It is not that an energy shortage is grounds for forcing a President out of office. But White House advisers are fully aware that the procedure for removing a President is a political one and that general dissatisfaction with the way he is handling the affairs of the nation would give significant impetus to any move to impeach him.

Most people don't mind a little larceny in their government — be it genuine or merely perceived — if things are going smoothly, the theory goes. But the dislocations to the economy and to the habits of virtually every American which the energy shortages are causing could, it is feared, set off questioning of the President's competence as well as credibility.

Shortages of gasoline and home heating oil will be felt in every household in the country this winter. Already Americans are being asked to keep their homes at sweater temperatures, to stay at home on Sundays, to cut down on their Christmas lights and to drive at slower speeds. Already they are having difficulties in arranging airline flights.

These represent inconveniences at best or minor sacrifices at worst. But officials within the administration are beginning to sound the alarm that genuine suffering can be expected.

Government economists are warning that the nation may face a recession. The stock market has tumbled, fuel prices have risen, and already some people are being laid off their jobs.

The President's own analysts are predicting a 35 per cent increase in the number of people without jobs, or a boost to about 6 per cent of the work force within a few months. Private analysts are even more discouraging, setting the figure as high as 8 per cent.

Gov. John A. Love and Charles J. DiBona, the two chief White House energy advisers, quit the government earlier this week because they could not get an adequate hearing for their view that the President should move quickly to rationing.

The President has resisted such a drastic step not only because of the undesirable political consequences but also because of the massive bureaucracy needed to administer it. And others in the administration, notably Treasury Secretary George F. Shultz and his deputy, William E. Simon, were said to believe other steps should be tried first.

But all agree that the crisis, short-term and long-term, will force some changes in the lifestyles that Americans have followed for generations and that some unpopular government restrictions will be necessary to cope with it.

It is not a pleasant prospect under any circumstances and less so for a President struggling to regain confidence in his leadership. (UPI)

Managing your family's money

Take a close look at your life insurance coverage

by MERLE E. DOWD

Time has a way of changing plans, dollar requirements, and family situations. If you haven't examined your life insurance coverage lately, why not take a long searching look — an insurance checkup.

Your first question — Do you have enough life insurance? Rather than rely on such hoary rules-of-thumb as death benefits equal to four or five times annual income or provisions for income equal to 50, 60, or 70 per cent of your present income, calculate your family's cash requirements.

Without your regular paycheck, how much would your family need to continue living at an acceptable standard? Your family might need only one car instead of two, for example. Or, a widow may prefer to live in an apartment rather than assume the responsibility for maintaining (and paying for) a house. A widow might work to supplement income. All of these factors affect how much insurance you should provide.

You'll want to plan a lump sum for your children's education. With college costs climbing even faster than inflation, you're shooting at a moving target on this one. You can estimate cost more exactly if your children are near college age. With preschoolers or children in early elementary grades, think high — and you'll probably still be undershoot.

Cash needed for final medical, burial, and estate settlement is often overlooked. Net worth above $120,000 — $140,000 reaches into the lower brackets of the graduated estate and inheritance taxes — and these must be paid in cash.

SOCIAL SECURITY offers some protection for the widow with children under 18 in her care (up to 22 if in school). Benefit rates were recently increased and could constitute a major part of survivors' income. However, SS benefits cease for a widow when the last child in her care reaches 18 (22 if in school). You need to look at the years between your youngest child's 18th birthday and the time your wife reaches 62. Either she works or you need to provide an income for these years through insurance or investments.

When you have determined your survivors' income and cash needs, examine your resources for satisfying those needs. Life insurance, investments, applicable Social Security benefits, and work-related income are four common methods for meeting survivors' money needs. Resources for generating income change as years progress — another reason for reassessing your insurance program. Typically, families progress through at least three stages, detailed below.

Young families need maximum insurance protection because insurance provides the most leverage; that is, the biggest payoff for the least out-of-pocket cash. Insurance provides an "instant estate" to care for a widow with young children that require her full-time care. Term insurance, automatically renewable and convertible, provides the most protection for the fewest dollars.

Middle families will have had time to accumulate a varied bag of assets, investments, insurance protection, and job skills. Equity in a house, mutual funds, stocks, or real estate may supplant part of the younger family's reliance on insurance. Such a balance benefits a living breadwinner and provides family protection.

NEAR OR AT retirement with children on their own, you are looking for income — not protection alone. Insurance provides cash for final medical and burial expenses. If the estate is large, insurance cash pays for probate and estate settlement expenses plus death and estate taxes. But, your major income needs flow from investments and converted assets.

Are your policy beneficiaries up to date? Would insurance benefits flow to your children without legal complications if you and your wife should die in a common accident? As family conditions change, you should keep named beneficiaries current.

Inflation continues to erode the value of fixed dollar investment and cash savings. Buy protection, lots of it, early. But balance inflation risks by stashing some of your cash in variable dollar investments that give you a fighting chance to keep up with inflation.

Suit says clubs exclusive

Women charge bias by liquor board

by LEA TONKIN

Career women are being hampered by the discriminatory policies of executive and private clubs, according to Chicago attorney Stephanie Kanwit.

As president of the Professional Organization of Women for Equal Rights, Mrs. Kanwit and three other Chicago residents filed suit in Circuit Court this week against the Illinois Liquor Control Commission for granting licenses to clubs that exclude women.

The plaintiffs also include Nikki Rutenberg, a public relations specialist, and attorneys Helen Hart Jones and Charles Davis.

"IT'S A DISGRACE when women who are professionals are excluded because of their sex," said Mrs. Kanwit of private clubs cited in the suit. "It is a hindrance on a woman's career as a professional."

"It is also discriminatory to men who cannot take some of their clients to some of these clubs for lunch. Let them exclude people, but let them do it on a rational basis," Mrs. Kanwit said.

She cites section 133 of the Liquor Control Act which prohibits liquor licensees from excluding any persons from full enjoyment of accommodations. A provision of the Illinois constitution bans discrimination in the sale or rental of property such as alcohol, she added.

NAMED IN THE suit are these clubs, which Mrs. Kanwit says is not a complete list: Chicago, Chicago Athletic, Cliff Dwellers, Commercial, Covenant, Illinois Athletic, Mid-Day, Tavern, Union League, University and Whitehall.

This reporter can remember being whisked up the service elevator, along with the maintenance man, at the Illinois Athletic Club three years ago. It was explained that women were only allowed as guests, and that women could not enter by the front door. Now women can join the club, but not as voting members.

And this reporter also was told that women are not allowed in the Executive Club at a February meeting in Chicago, but later gained entrance through the personal escort of a public relations executive.

According to Mrs. Kanwit, the exclusion of anyone on the basis of race, sex or religion is professionally damaging and a violation of the law.

THOMAS MURPHY, executive director of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission, said Thursday, "We have an investigation of the Chicago Club, but it hasn't come to the point of a citation."

"What we have to do is find specific evidence of discrimination," said Murphy. "Then the club would be subject to a hearing." The commission can suspend or revoke a license, "but we cannot refuse a licensee who has properly filled out an application," he said.

Murphy quoted Section 133 of the Liquor Control Act, and added that any complaint should be sent to him at 205 W. Wacker, Chicago, Ill. 60606. He said the suit should have been filed against individual clubs rather than the commission.

AN INCIDENT at the Chicago Club this week sparked a directive from U.S. Secretary of Health Education and Welfare Caspar Weinberger, that department employees may not accept speaking engagements before groups which practice discrimination. A female reporter for a Chicago newspaper was barred from a luncheon where Weinberger was the featured speaker. Weinberger then issued the directive. It also applies to establishments which practice discrimination.

The Chicago Club holds two liquor licenses, and yet accepts only men as members, according to Mrs. Kanwit. A Chicago Club manager commented, "There is a tradition that I do not give interviews to newspaper reporters."

Hospitals move to save energy, too

Northwest suburban hospitals anticipate no fuel shortages this winter, but hospital officials are doing what they can to conserve energy.

The four hospitals have started campaigns to get employees to turn off lights whenever possible. Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines have also lowered thermostats in non-patient care areas to 68 degrees.

"We should have no problems with fuel," said Anne Finney of Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. She said the hospital heats with natural gas, but can switch to oil if necessary. Northwest Community has a two-week supply of heating oil on hand, she said.

AT NORTHWEST and Lutheran General, officials are discouraging the use of lights as Christmas decorations.

"We're also trying to turn down the thermostats wherever they can be turned down," Mrs. Finney said. "But we cannot do anything that would harm the patients in any way.

Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, which has gas heat, also anticipates no fuel shortage. Hospital officials are meeting this week to develop energy conservation policies, according to Robin Leach, spokesman. The policies are expected to be released later today.

Holy Family and Lutheran General also heat with natural gas.

OTHER STEPS being taken by the hospitals include running equipment only at full load, inspecting heating systems and reducing lighting during non-visiting hours.

Although a new law assures hospitals priority consideration in fuel oil allocation this winter, the American Hospital Association has drawn up a set of energy guidelines for its members.

INCLUDED IN the guidelines are recommendations to turn off all lights and appliances not in use, keep windows closed whenever possible, set thermostats at minimum levels, and walk instead of using an elevator whenever practical. The AHA has also suggested hospitals have their heating systems inspected to make sure they are operating at top efficiency.

THE AHA also has advised hospitals to draw up plans for possible electrical power "brownouts" and local hospital officials said they are doing so.

Several hospitals across the country have already reported fuel problems, according to the AHA. Special offices have been set up by state governments, in compliance with the federal mandatory allocation program, to deal with hardship cases resulting from the energy crisis. Hospitals anticipating fuel shortages are urged to file with the state as a hardship case. If a hospital cannot get relief from the state, it may appeal to the regional or field office of the Department of the Interior.

Salt Creek sewer hearing set by MSD

Public hearings on the environmental impact of two new sewer lines to be constructed in Arlington Heights and Schaumburg will be conducted by the Metropolitan Sanitary District Dec. 17.

The sewers, expected to cost a total of $4.8 million, will serve the Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant under construction in Schaumburg. Part of that sewer system has already been completed.

Upper Salt Creek intercepting sewer No. 5 will run along Rohlwing Road from South Street to Kenilworth Avenue, and on Kenilworth to the MSD pumping station.

Sewer No. 3A would extend for 1.31 miles along Algonquin Road between Plum Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 53, and would relieve the existing sewer, which has been determined inadequate to handle anticipated flows because of development in the area.

THE PUBLIC hearing will be at 7:30 p.m. at Schaumburg Village Hall, 217 S. Civic Dr., Schaumburg. Comments will be limited to 15 minutes to allow everyone to speak, but written statements can be submitted within 10 days after the hearing. Copies of environmental assessment statements will be available at the hearings.

The sewer in Schaumburg will eliminate the use of septic tanks and seepage field in the area, according to the MSD, and will serve expected development in the area until the year 2020.

The new sewer in Arlington Heights area will eliminate the need for the Palatine pumping station and will serve long-range portions of Arlington Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

MSD OFFICIALS said the proposed 2.2-mile section is part of the MSD 10-year cleanup and flood control program, and is part of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission regional wastewater plan.

There is at present no bypass for the Palatine pumping station in case of power failure, which could result in backup of sewage into homes in the area, officials said. The new gravity-flow sewer would allow phasing out of the pumping station and eliminate use of septic tanks in the area.

The Arlington Heights sewer is expected to serve 66,883 people. It would be completed about two years after work begins. The Schaumburg sewer will be capable of serving 97,000 people, and will be completed about 1½ years after construction begins.

'Snow's fine- if I'm inside'

by WANDALYN RICE

Wednesday was the first day that foreign exchange students from Brazil, South Africa and the Philippines had ever seen snow — and their reactions to it were mixed.

"It's colder," Maria Piccolo of Brazil said when asked whether snow was different than she thought it would be. "Snow is fine when I'm inside and it's out there," she added. David Lloyd of South Africa had a different view, though. "I'm waiting for it to get colder," he said in his clipped, nearly British accent. "I've never been as cold as it is now either."

Maria and David, both American Field Service students at Maine West High School, braved the snow along with Janet Reyes de los Santos from the Philippines, Heinrich Hasler of Switzerland, and Yasutoshi Hanano of Japan to attend a Christmas party Wednesday sponsored by the Prospect High School AFS chapter.

David, Maria and Janet, who attend Hersey High School, Heinrich, who goes to Rolling Meadows, and Yasutoshi (called Yasu) who goes to Prospect, are among the nine AFS students visiting the Northwest suburbs this year. Other students attend Arlington, Wheeling and Maine South high schools.

Heinrich brought Christmas cookies to the Prospect party — sent to him by his mother in a suburb of Zurich, Switzerland. The cookies, hard as rocks unless dipped into hot coffee, quickly became one of the prizes in the party games.

Christmas in Switzerland, Heinrich said, is "just like here. America is so European, that's where all the customs come from."

Officials of the Prospect AFS chapter said they sponsored the party to try to interest families who may want to house students in the future. Chapters at all the high schools involved are now looking for potential families for foreign students for next year.

"There's no other way you can get this kind of experience," one AFS student remarked.

YASUTOSHI HANANO, the Prospect High School AFS student from Japan, trades signatures with other students at a party for area AFS students held at Prospect Wednesday.

Choir performs on Fridays

The Maine Township Jewish Congregation Synagogue Choir is now a regular feature at the Sabbath Eve Family Services Fridays at 8:30 p.m. During services Dec. 14, Terri Reisman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reisman, 9355 Home Ct., Des Plaines, will celebrate her Bat Mitzvah. Barry Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Edwards, 8845 Sayre, Morton Grove, will celebrate his Bar Mitzvah Dec. 15 during the afternoon Mincha-Maariv service, 4 p.m.

Chanukah begins Wednesday evening, Dec. 19. In observance of the holiday, students of the Sunday School department will take a "Mitzvah" trip Dec. 16, to present a pre-holiday program at the Niles Manor Nursing Center.

Sisterhood is sponsoring a holiday bazaar each day during Chanukah and has a large selection of religious and gift items.

New time for bingo each Sunday evening is 7:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to this weekly activity.

Spassky gearing up mentally for Fischer rematch

Bobby Fischer has trademarked world chess with his personal stamp as of Reykjavik 1972. Not only is all news on the international chess scene viewed against the backdrop of Fischer's "next move," but the championship itself has been given an added dimension by the new champion.

It seems that the soap-opera aspect of the Iceland match is to be renewed and continued.

In the December issue of Harpers magazine, Nicholas Bethell tells us that Boris Spassky, according to his own testimony, was "psyched out" by Fischer in '72. The external details are well-documented elsewhere. But Spassky's idea that he was a "rabbit paralyzed by a snake" helps us to understand why the Russians began to suspect that electronic or chemical devices had been used against their champion.

SPASSKY HAS, of late, finally succeeded in dragging himself back into contention by his great performance in the U.S.S.R. championship, but Fischer may be able to confound him once again.

At least, Bobby seems to have taken the initiative in challenging Spassky to a return match, though Fischer says he does "not expect he will accept it because I'm sure I'll beat him easily." It seems that Boris, who had originally assumed that Iceland would be for him a "chess festival" at which the winner would be determined in a contest of skill, is again being pursued off the board.

Spassky's fans may take heart, however, from his performance during the last half of the match in Iceland. Under the most difficult circumstances, he won five out of 11 points. Fischer later acknowledged the tremendous pressure maintained by Spassky. Bobby also felt the incredible notion held by Spassky to the last, that he (Spassky) was going to win.

SPASSKY, WHO SOON will be beginning play in the grueling candidates matches, seems to have shifted his former ground. He is now emphasizing the importance of psychological factors. It is strange to read that Boris has said: "If we play, the result will depend on how we both feel when we sit down for the first game. I'll look across the board at him and then I'll know before I move my first pawn."

Should Spassky, who must conquer three other grandmasters of world class before he can meet Fischer, now be engaged in a psychological struggle with Bobby? Will Fischer's pseudo-challenge distract Boris at a critical moment?

Is Fischer getting to Spassky again or has the incredible Russian simply learned to play his opponent's game?

If he has, Bobby may suddenly switch "variations" on him as he so effectively did in Reykjavik.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Safety first costs no more

Some safety plays are really far-fetched. Others should be almost automatic for a careful player.

South's three notrump contract looks like a cinch. He wins the heart lead and if he is at all careless he counts to 10 quick, easy tricks. Two spades, one heart, five diamonds and two clubs.

Then if he is careful he reviews the bidding in accordance with the R of the code word ARCH and remembers that West made a vulnerable two heart bid without much of a hand. Obviously he held a lot of hearts for that bid. Could he be void of diamonds?

South thinks a little more and sees that he can be sure of his contract with just four diamond tricks and he can play the diamond suit in such a manner as to keep East from getting the lead if he holds all four diamonds.

South goes to dummy with a high spade and leads the 10 of diamonds. If East ducks, South lets it ride. If East covers, South wins the trick; goes back to dummy with the second high spade and leads another diamond. Then back to dummy with the king of clubs to pick up the rest of the suit and wind up with five

Square dance news

SQUARE DANCE
Slowpokes of Mount Prospect will be dancing tonight at the Stevenson School (southeast corner of Wolf and Palatine roads) in Wheeling. All area square dancers are invited.

Rounds will be called by Paul and Bunny Davis beginning at 8 p.m., followed at 8:30 p.m. by square dancing with Jim Stewart.

"Christmas Fantasy" will be the theme of the Bucks and Doves dance tomorrow night beginning at 8 p.m. at the Dempster Junior High School, Dempster Street (just west of Ill. Rte. 83) in Mount Prospect.

Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be calling the squares while Lee Simpson and Shirley Kenik cue the rounds throughout the evening until 11 p.m.

Bucks and Doves club members and guests are being encouraged to bring their own personal Christmas Card. It should have an ornament hung through a hole so that the card can be hung on a community Christmas tree. In this way, our square dancing friends can wish each other season's greetings and have the expense and chore of addressing many Christmas cards.

Donation at the door is $2.50 per couple and ice cream, cookies, coffee and soft drinks will be served. All area dancers are invited.

HAPPY TWILIGHTS
Mount Prospect Citizens will hold their regular dance tonight at Lions Park Field House, 411 S. Maple St. (near Lincoln).

Al Sova from Milwaukee will be calling the squares beginning at 8:30 p.m., and dancing will continue until 11 p.m.

Citizens dances at an intermediate-advanced level, and all area square dancers are invited. Refreshments will be served.

HAPPY TWILIGHTS
Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion streets in Des Plaines, with the Char-Lee Walters doing the calling. The intermediate (plus) dance from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. is preceded by a "new figure" workshop from 8 to 8:30 p.m.

The Happy Twirlers beginner class is approaching the end of the 50 Basic Lessons at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Des Plaines, and as these are mastered, Char-Lee is seriously considering their long cherished dream of establishing a regular dance at which no calls involving more than the first 50 Basics would be used. The feel there is a great need for such a dance for those "occasional" dancers in this area, who do not have the time or inclination to progress to the more involved "basics." Any dancers who feel that they would be interested in such a dance should contact Lee at 824-1484.

Despite the fact that $1 per person fees have not been increased as have those of many other clubs, Char-Lee has directed a total of $813 to the "Benevolent Work" of the church in this first quarter of the square dance season. Similarly, all fees from the classes every Tuesday night and the workshop of "experimental" figures on the second and fourth Sundays at the Trinity Lutheran Church, 616 Algonquin Rd., have been directed to the work of that church and have amounted to $238 for the quarter.

RAND RANGLERS
Bruno Zent of Decatur, Ill., will be the guest caller tomorrow night for the Rand Ringers at the Boy Scouts of America, Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Rounds begin at 8 p.m. with Harv and Marg Teteloff, with dancing continuing until 11 p.m. Everyone is invited.

BONCO SQUARES
Bonco Squares will dance tonight at Longwood Park Field House, Lions Dr. off Ill. Rtes. 55 and 14 in Barrington for their regular dance. Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be the caller beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Refreshments are served and everyone is invited.

JUNT-4-KICKS
The Junt-4-Kicks Square Dance Club will hold its "Tequila and Maltice" dance Tuesday night, Dec. 11, at the Hillcrest School on Hillcrest Blvd. in Hoffman Estates, beginning at 8 p.m.

All area dancers are invited. Donation is $2.50 per couple and refreshments are served.

Randhurst believes that energy is everyone's to use... not abuse. We along with thousands of people and hundreds of businesses feel that cut-backs in the use of energy are not only an answer but a responsibility. As one of Chicagoland's energy users, we have already taken voluntary conservation measures to reduce our total energy consumption.

At our center, we've substantially reduced exterior lighting, building and landscape lighting, canopy lights and signs... to the hours from dusk to shortly after closing... But then it's the sparkling fashion and great stores inside Randhurst that really counts!

We've reset our thermostats to 68 degrees... The extra warmth you'll discover is from so many happy customers... just like you! In the areas where you shop, interior display lighting not essential to your safety and comfort has been eliminated... It's the brilliant array of holiday merchandise you'd expect at Randhurst that will really dazzle you!

Wattage has been reduced in all our "behind-the-scenes" areas... stockrooms, hallways and service areas. We've flipped our switches to ease the energy-squeeze.

The traditional exterior Christmas lights including our water tower will be saved for another year. And you'll find our interior Christmas displays and festive trimmings have been installed without special lighting wherever possible. Come see our bold 'n beautiful colors anyway... Christmas is in the heart, not the hang-ups!

Join all of us in reducing energy use wherever you can. Pitch in and turn switches off, share rides, slow down on the expressways, turn down thermostats wherever you can.

Christmas in the public schools

by LOUIS CASSELS

'Tis the season for parents, teachers and principals to get into fearful rows over what public schools should do about the birthday of the Prince of Peace.

Some insist on creche displays, nativity pageants and other ceremonies which reflect the Christian belief that the baby born in Bethlehem on the first Christmas was God Incognito.

Others contend the religious freedom guarantee of the Constitution forbids a tax-supported school to take special cognizance of any religious holiday.

ATTEMPTS TO avoid controversy by holding combined Christmas-Hanukkah celebrations are rarely successful. First, Hanukkah does not occupy in Judaism a position of importance comparable to that which Christmas holds in Christianity. It is a relatively minor Jewish festival. And honoring two religions at once really does not solve the constitutional problem.

The Supreme Court has said agencies of government, including schools, may not "promote any religion or all religions." This is an area in which the Founding Fathers prescribed complete neutrality by the government.

On the other hand, the High Court has never suggested that public schools should simply ignore Christmas or the religious beliefs it represents. In its 1963 school prayer case, it said public schools have an educational duty to teach objectively about the beliefs and customs of various religions that have played a large part in America's history.

THE AMERICAN Association of School Administrators believes this ruling allows public schools to provide for "reasonable recognition of Christmas in the spirit of exposition of the differing rites and customs of families, cultures and creeds."

This "interpretation" of the Court's ruling clearly needs some interpreting itself. The National School Public Relations Association has attempted to provide it, by saying that it means public schools "should approach Christmas in an attempt to educate the student, not convert him."

"TEACHERS may use religious materials, such as Bible readings, religious symbols, carols and pageants, at Christmas, but only for the purposes of education, not for the purposes of religious worship," says the professional association.

Unfortunately, a majority of public schools try to straddle the issue by ignoring the religious significance of Christmas and treating it purely as a folk festival. Jesus is banished in favor of Santa Claus. The camels of the Wise Men are replaced by Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer. "Silent Night" gives way to "Jingle Bells."

Schools that cope with Christmas in this way are contributing mightily to its secularization. They are depriving a holy day of its reason for holiness. And that amounts to sabotaging a religious faith — which is just as much a violation of the Constitution as promoting one.

Early church viewed boredom as a sin

It's a bit surprising for a modern reader to find boredom listed by early church fathers as one of the Seven Deadly Sins.

Surely, we think, boredom is something everyone dislikes and seeks to avoid. How can it be called a sin?

But the ancient wise men of the church didn't think of sin — as we usually do today — in terms of wicked deeds which people wilfully commit. For them sin was a state or condition which alienates a person from himself, his fellow human beings, or God.

Boredom certainly fits into that category.

Actually, it was not passing moments or occasional hours of boredom which early church fathers considered mortally dangerous to the soul. Their warnings were aimed specifically at the deep, chronic kind of ennui which leads to spiritual torpor and apathy. The technical theological term for it is "accidie."

timulantly with graphic details of poignant human situations.

Accidie not only smothers our spirit of service. It also, even more seriously, puts a damper on our capacity to worship.

Genuine love of God goes hand in hand with celebration of life. It flows from, or is accompanied by, a profound sense of joy and gratitude, not merely for the incidental blessings of life, but for the fact of being alive. If you are glad to be, it's natural to feel grateful and loving toward the author of being.

BUT IF YOU'RE so bored your very existence has become a burden, it's hard to thank God for willing and sustaining that existence.

This is a case in which it is difficult to tell whether to accord precedence to chicken or egg. Does boredom with life cause alienation from God? Or is it the other way around?

a diligent effort to maintain a close relationship with God.

Again and again, the Scriptures warn people who think themselves righteous to "take heed" lest they fall complacently into sin.

"Be vigilant," pleaded the great Apostle Peter, who had reason to remember how fragile good intentions can be.

"Your adversary the Devil walks about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour."

IN THE GRIP of accidie, people become self-centered and self-pitying. They are listless about duties and responsibilities, indifferent to the cares of others. This kind of utter weariness with it all can deprive a normally kind-hearted person of the empathy to recognize other people's needs or the will to do anything about them.

This is clearly what the Apostle Paul had in mind when he exhorted members of the church at Galatia:

"Let us never tire of doing good."

As Paul implied, conscientious people can grow weary of being compassionate . . . of caring about others . . . in short, of doing good. It is particularly apt to happen in today's world, where modern news media assault our sensitivities con-

North headliner set for Wheeling's gym

Although several teams are tied for the top spot in the North Division of the Mid-Suburban League, the game that promises to draw the most attention tonight is the continuing rivalry of Wheeling and Arlington.

Wheeling, 1-0 in league play, will entertain the Cardinals, 0-1. It's obvious that the Cards need this one the most if they are to keep pace with the explosive Wildcats.

Also trying to keep pace with the North favorites are Rolling Meadows, Fremd and Hersey — all with 1-0 marks. The Mustangs and Vikings will help change the four-team jam at the top of the division by playing at Meadows.

The Huskies will be hosted by Palatine, 0-1. All games will begin at approximately 8 p.m.

Three North teams will be involved in non-conference tests Saturday night — Wheeling at Lockport, Barrington at Arlington and Willowbrook at Fremd.

ARLINGTON AT WHEELING

Going on the theory that Arlington and

Wheeling are both very good basketball teams, tonight could be the beginning or the awfully abrupt end of the MSL season for one of them.

The squad under suspect is the Cardinals. Favored, along with the Wildcats, to dominate at least their division of the MSL, they were set into the loser's column right at the conference starting gate by Forest View last Friday 53-50.

Now they either have the opportunity to make amends or — quite likely — play bridesmaid.

"We certainly didn't look like champions last week," shrugged Card coach George Zigman. "I can see plenty of room for improvement, especially in shooting and working for the good percentage shot."

While the Cards were failing, Wheeling was rolling. If they continue through tonight, even winning the rematch later in the season wouldn't help Zigman's crew, unless somebody gives Arlington an assist.

Of course, that is under the supposition that both teams can turn back every one else in the MSL from here on out. And after viewing the enemy in previous combat already, Zigman is under the impression that Wheeling has that potential.

"They're an excellent club," says Zigman. "The season is still young, but they're already shooting well and moving the ball well. We have a supreme challenge on our hands Friday night."

Arlington will start the same liveness this evening, guards Jerry DeSimone and Steve Loughman, forwards Jeff Cleveland and Dennis Gaare and center Dan Donahue. The latter was one of the few bright spots last week with 23 points despite a 10-minute stay on the bench in foul trouble.

The Cards are currently on a three-game losing streak to the 'Cats, all absorbed last season after winning their initial clash with them.

The most costly of all was a 55-54 decision in the championship game of the Wheeling Regional. Cleveland must re-

DOUBLE-TEAMED. Prospect's Al Black dribbles away from the hounding defensive efforts of Fremd's Randy Weber and Bob Frank (35) to break the Vikings' full court press. Fremd broke a tense struggle open in the fourth quarter and posted a 70-65 triumph.

New coach, new enthusiasm

When you think of sports at St. Viator, what do you think of first?

Football? Naturally. The Lions have been outstanding in recent years.

Swimming? Certainly. The tankers never let up in their collection of championship hardware.

Baseball? Positively. Can you remember the last time a St. Viator baseball team was anything but formidable?

It's no big secret that these three sports have been the most consistent headline-makers in recent years at the Arlington Heights school.

The other sports have had their moments, and some bright ones at that, but for the most part they've labored in the shadows, grudgingly yielding the spotlight to football, baseball and swimming.

There was a time when the basketball Lions were a big attention-grabber, often school, maybe 50 overall. I was always a guard. No size even then." Steve stands 5-9 today.

"I played high school ball at New Trier under John Schaeffer, although not really playing that much, but we had a good team in 1965, losing to Marshall in the Supersectional. Our center was a big kid, Larry Rosenzweig, and we got to Evanston by winning the sectional at Arlington."

Although Antrim didn't see that much action in high school, he matured into a scoring threat for two seasons at Southwestern College in Iowa, averaging 20 a game in one campaign. An operation for varicose veins helped in his rapid cage development between high school and junior college.

"You don't get an awful lot of exposure for scouts in just the regular schedule in junior college," he explains, "but I was fortunate to have a good game in the region tournament, scoring 38 points. That helped get me a scholarship to Pepperdine (Los Angeles, Calif.) and I played two years out there."

Antrim admits the Pepperdine experience helped him more as a coach, as a student of the game, than as a player.

"That was a little too big time for me. I remember once starting against New Mexico when they were No. 2 in the nation. I played sixth or seventh man my first year, but they changed coaches when I was a senior and I ended up watching more than playing. But I started to get the feel for coaching then and in graduate school was able to work with the freshmen, also coaching at a grammar school."

He graduated with honors in Business Administration. In the summer of 1970 Steve became an assistant coach at Weber in the Chicago Catholic League.

"I wanted to start in the Catholic League if at all possible," he says, "because as a young coach their reputation for discipline was important to me. It wasn't an easy job. It was exhausting. There were times I'd coach as many as four different games and teams in one day, starting in the early afternoon. But I learned a lot."

Antrim's obvious feel for the coaching side of the game and the contacts he had developed both on the West Coast and in his initial year of coaching in Chicago helped him land the head position at Mendel Catholic.

stunning the established powers, but the hardwood program admittedly has fallen on some lean times with only four victories in the last 27 games.

Patience is the key word now for Lion fans, patience while an energetic 25-year-old head coach tries to build a winning program.

Steve Antrim hopes to remedy the situation. He's the new head basketball coach at St. Viator, the fourth since the school first opened its doors.

"It'll take time," he admits. "We're so young right now (two soph and two juniors in the starting lineup), but it can be done. We have to get these kids to play so much more than just during the season. We have to improve their fundamentally and then go from there. There's a lot of work ahead."

"I thought we gave Carmel a pretty good game last Friday. It helps these young kids to play at home because of the support. They need that. They need to know that the fans are behind them. If the people will just hang in there with us, we'll be okay."

Although he's still a young man in coaching ranks, Antrim has already built an enviable record. He's a winner. He knows what it takes to win. He knows basketball.

"I've been involved with basketball since I was a kid growing up in Wilmette," he says. "We'd play games two or three nights a week then in grade

"I admit I was surprised when I got the job," he recalls. "But I really think it was the recommendations from people I had worked with before that helped because I just didn't have the experience. I got to know five of six college coaches by working in clinics on the West Coast."

Mendel obviously made a good choice because Antrim enjoyed two outstanding seasons. He was 19-11 in his first year with the varsity, taking the school to the playoffs for only the second time in its history, and his lightweights were league champions.

In 1972-73 the lightweights won the league and city championship and his varsity finished 19-11 again. Highlighting that varsity campaign were victories over Gordon Tech, ending Gordon's 30-game victory string, Parker with All-Stars Bo Ellis, and Leo. Mendel was the only team to beat Leo in the league.

Antrim was selected to coach the South Section All-Stars in the annual Catholic League game at DePaul, and the South triumphed. He later was named Coach of the Year in the league.

"That coaching in Chicago has had a tremendous influence on me," he says. "I was a 24-year-old head coach and you just had to be ready. They really prepare there and it was an invaluable experience."

"I know it will help me here. I applied at St. Viator because you just had to be impressed with the area, the possibilities to build a good program, the number of people here, and the facilities."

Antrim, who is married and lives in Evanston, is not disillusioned despite an 0-4 start at St. Viator.

"They said in the city that the kids don't want to work in the suburbs, that they have it too easy, there's too much money. I don't know how much money these families have, but I do know I've really been impressed with how disciplined these St. Viator kids are, how hard-nosed they are. They don't have the experience now, they're young, but they're working so hard."

Patience is the key word. It takes time to install a system and develop a basketball program down the line.

Steve Antrim has been a winner. He wants to build a winner at 1213 E. Oakton in Arlington Heights.

He's already looking ahead, checking the young talent.

"I saw four grammar school games last Sunday," he says.

Be patient, Lion fans.

Conant battles Prospect; Elk Grove at Forest View

The Mid-Suburban League's South Division will take matters into its own hands tonight — namely the race to the top of the standings.

Conant and Forest View currently share the top perch with 1-0 records derived from victories over North Division teams last weekend.

But Elk Grove, Buffalo Grove, Schaumburg and Prospect are just a game behind with 0-1 slates and the complexion of the six-team derby could change considerably after tonight's three head-to-head clashes.

Conant, the MSL's only unbeaten (4-0) club overall is paired against the circuit's defending champion, but surprisingly winless Prospect (0-5).

Forest View and visiting Elk Grove will throw identical 3-1 overall marks into the ring to spice their arch-rivalry while either Buffalo Grove (2-1) or host Schaumburg (1-2) will enter the MSL victory column for the first time while the loser remains in the winless ranks.

Here's how the matches figure to shape up:

PROSPECT AT CONANT

Cockiness will not be a problem for unbeaten Conant when they entertain the winless Knights this evening.

"Overconfident?" Cougar coach Dick Redlinger incredulously echoed. "You've got to be kidding. We were lucky to get out of Palatine alive let alone with a victory," he added, referring to the Cougars' last-minute, 59-58 win last Friday.

"We're expecting a tough game from Prospect," Redlinger predicted. "They're going to come around as soon as some of the younger kids settle down. We will too, as soon as our guards get some more practice and experience."

Conant will introduce one new face into the starting quintet tonight, guard Jeff Ironside. His runningmate in the backcourt will be Tom Bowen while the stellar frontline of Steve Irlon, Roger Sander, and Dave Sutherland will remain intact.

Sutherland is leading all Cougar scorers with an average of 17.2 points per game. Irlon has a standard just lower, 17.0, while Sander is averaging 13.5, although he did toss in 23 opposite Palatine.

Redlinger is refreshingly frank in describing how he hopes to play the slightly-taller Knights. "Against Prospect we're going to have to put pressure on the ball and front the other three men. This will keep the offense disoriented."

Saturday night, the Cougars host East Leyden, a team touted as one of the best in the area in pre-season polls. The Eagles boast four players 6-foot-5 or over, including 7-1 Tom Dore and 6-9 Glen Grunwald.

"All we can do is play our own game against them," Redlinger reasoned. "You can make minor adjustments game to game, but I'm not going to change our style of play for just one game. Maybe they have better personnel than us. We'll find out Saturday."

But Redlinger's immediate thoughts concern Prospect, a team with budding talent that has not yet been harnessed into a victory.

"We're giving up too many points," head coach Bill Slayton admitted. "We're able to score, but we give it right back. We can't play defense."

The defending Mid-Suburban League champions have been relying on a man-to-man defense, but Slayton has been entertaining ideas of employing a zone.

"We have to try something," he said. Slayton is particularly pleased with the play of center Paul Withey and forward

Readers react to dropping of legion baseball team

(Ed. Note: Letters that are not signed will not be considered for publication in Fan's Forum. However, names will be withheld on request.)

Dear Herald:

In reading the Herald Tuesday, Nov. 27, I was very disturbed by the story of the Arlington Heights American Legion Post dropping their baseball program because "it's been a big hassle" over the last eight years.

I have been more closely associated with the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball program than any other person, except the concerned parties, and find that the events, as they are related by Commander Duda, are not fully explained. I would like to take this opportunity to set the facts straight as to exactly what has transpired in the baseball program since 1965, when Arlington sent a team to the national finals.

Since this championship year, the Arlington Heights American Legion Post in 1966, 1967, 1968 and 1969 did not contribute one dime to the baseball program. All the monies were raised by Lloyd Meyer and myself and whatever expenses we did not cover by contributions from local merchants or parents, we paid for from our own pockets.

In 1969 Mr. Alex Schannier decided that he should run the baseball program and took over the bank account without our consent and talked the legion officials into allowing him to be baseball chairman, over the protests of Mr. Meyer.

Since this time, the majority of the money to operate the baseball program has been raised by finding one sponsor to pay for the uniforms, which Lloyd Meyer's own business, Meyer Bros. Dairy, did for three years and Kemmerly Real Estate last year. The balance of funds necessary to operate the program was raised by steak fries held in the Legion hall, tickets sold by parents and Mr. Schannier. Again, the Legion has never directly taken any of their money out of operating funds to pay for the baseball program. They only lend the use of the hall.

Lloyd Meyer has given of himself to the establishment of an excellent baseball program in this community for the last 18 years. Boys like Paul Splittorff, a 20-game winner with Kansas City this summer, Dave Kingman, and Tom Lundstedt have played for Lloyd in the last eight years and are now in the major leagues. Three additional boys, who formerly played for Lloyd, are in the minor leagues with major league potential.

Lloyd has obtained college scholarships for numerous boys because college coaches recognize his baseball expertise. I have lived in this area during all of Lloyd's 18 years of coaching and cannot remember a losing team in any of those years. He has consistently run the best baseball program of any legion team in this northwest suburban area.

In short, he is a winner who has given of himself at great expense of time, effort and money to further baseball for the boys in the Arlington Heights area.

During this time the Arlington Heights American Legion Post has given him nothing but headaches, has demanded that he accept Mr. Schannier to run his program or else they will not sign the papers necessary to sponsor a team in the American Legion program. It apparently is because Mr. Schannier does 90 per cent of the work completed at the Legion post and the rest of the members are too lazy and weak to deny him what he wants. So they stick their problem onto Lloyd Meyer.

No Post 208 program has brought as much favorable publicity to the Arlington Heights Legion as has the baseball program over the last 10 years. What other worthwhile community program does the legion sponsor?

Mr. Duda states he feels baseball is a legion function and yet Mr. Duda has never even gone out of his way to meet Mr. Meyer. I can count on one hand the number of members who have attended a game or contributed anything to the program.

Based upon the investment by both parties, I believe that the legion should be very happy to have a man the quality of Lloyd Meyer to run its baseball program at no cost and yet all they are interested in doing is to put obstacles in his path when he doesn't yield to their demands.

I seriously doubt the American Legion Post can find another coach who will run their program without some firm agreement as to remuneration. I am familiar with many legion baseball programs throughout this state and many coaches are paid from $500 to $1,000 to coach a post team during the summer season.

Gym powers in 12th Evanston meet

Gymnastics Editor

Are last year's gymnastics powers as strong again this season?

That question will be partially answered tomorrow night at the 12th Annual Evanston Invitational. The meet, which annually showcases the previous season's top state finishers, includes four-time defending state champ Hinsdale Central, 1973 runnerup Elk Grove, third-place Hersey, fourth-place Rolling Meadows and host Evanston which notched ninth in the Illinois team standings last March.

The competition, scheduled to begin at 7:30, is unique in that it features only one specialist and one all-around performer in each event from the five teams. Cumulative raw scores will determine the eventual winner. Evanston is the defending invitational champion, but the Wildkats should get a strong run for their money from the four potent challengers.

Elk Grove head coach Fred Gaines has nominated Bill Bossett to work all-around and will couple him with either Matty Damore or Randy Kornacki in floor exercise, Mike Heiberger on side horse, Mike Broderick on high bar, Dave Niemeyer on parallel bars and Jack Henry on rings. Dave Hadley and Scott Harriett will compete on trampoline.

Hersey will counter with Kevin Muenz in all-around along with specialists Ron Miltos in floor ex, Bruce Freedman on horse, John Ludwigen on high bar, Mike Murphy on parallel bars and either Steve Cory or Bob Sommerfeld on rings. Head coach Don Von Ebers has tabbed Mike Kropp and either Gregg Manning or Don Zasady to work trampoline.

ton is equally blessed with agile Mark Trippel who aggravated a pulled tendon early last season and missed most of the year.

"Usually a score of about 85 or 86 will win the meet," Evanston coach Jerry Fontana said. "The caliber of individuals we have this year, though, may push it a little higher."

Track and field clinic set for Rolling Meadows

The 12th Annual Northern Illinois Track Coaches Association Clinic will be held Dec. 8 at Rolling Meadows High School.

The clinic will include talks by area coaches on coaching techniques in the triple jump and the 440-yard relay, two new events in high school track next spring.

New techniques in the low hurdles, which were lengthened to 330 yards for next year, will be discussed. There will also be a film of the 1973 International Prep Track and Field Meet, held last June at Prospect High.

The NITCA officers elected for the fall are President Ron Halberg of Evanston, Vice-President Jim Arnold of Glenbard West, Treasurer John Kileulan of Maine South, and Secretary Willie May, also of Evanston.

At Rolling Meadows, coach Vic Avigliano will unveil last year's state all-around champion Mike Godava to compliment Al Gimbut on the floor, Blaine Dahl on horse, Steve Gallis on high bar, and Terry Conroy on both parallel bars and rings. Terry Palmberg and Jim Losito will handle tramp for the Mustangs.

Hinsdale is loaded again. The Red Devils opened dual-meet competition with a lolly 143.46 score and boast at least one outstanding strongman in each event. Pat Gunning is coach Tony Canino's bread-and-butter all-arounder.

Greg Luzinski of Prospect Heights has been named Chicago Rookie-of-the-Year by the city's chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Already in his third year with Philadelphia's resurging Phillies, Luzinski was honored because neither the Cubs nor White Sox had a worthy candidate. Luzinski hit .281 with 20 homers and 87 runs-batted-in last summer. It was his second straight .281 year but Greg upped his 1972 production of 18 homers and 88 RBIs.

He'll be honored at the annual Diamond Dinner, Jan. 12, 1974, in the Chicago-Sheraton Hotel. Atlanta Braves' slugger Hank Aaron will receive the Warren Brown Headline Award and the Cubs' Jose will be acclaimed as Chicago Player-of-the-Year.

Diamond Dinner reservations, at $20 per person, may be made by check payment to Jerome Holtzman, c/o The Chicago Sun-Times, 401 N. Wabash, Chicago 60611.

Nordics, Carls here

The Chicago Nordics and Cardinals each have home hockey games scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena. The Cardinals will face the St. Paul Bruins at 2:30 p.m. each day with the Nordics going against Fargo at 7:30 p.m.

From campuses nationwide

—Bill Paul of Palatine is one of just eight freshmen to win both a frosh numeral and varsity letter in football this fall at Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis. Paul played linebacker and is expected to be a varsity starter next year. The Redmen compiled an 8-2 record.

Sue Hoglund of Arlington Heights is a member of the women's varsity basketball team at William Penn College in Oskaloosa, Iowa.

—Junior Bob McAndrews, a Maine West graduate, has been named Most Valuable offensive lineman for the just completed varsity football season at North Park College. McAndrews and Doug Groot of Wheeling received varsity letters.

—Bob Youngquist, a 1967 Prospect graduate, has quarterbacked his Delta Sigma Delta dental fraternity to the All-University title at the University of Iowa. —Bob Streich has been named Northern Illinois University's junior-varsity defensive Player-of-the-Year. Streich, a frosh, played middle linebacker. He was a leader on Elk Grove's unbeaten and No. 1 ranked grid team last year.

—Two varsity letters and two minor awards have been awarded to Herald area athletes at Purdue University. Maine East graduate Pete Gross and Hersey grad Skip Peterson, both juniors, received varsity football letters. Elk Grove grad Rick O'Leary and Maine West's Rich Wetendorf received freshman football awards.

—Greg Craighead of Wheeling has been named the top defensive lineman this past season at Washington State University in Pullman. He played three years at defensive tackle, capping his career with the Laurie Niemi Award. Niemi was an All-American football player and athletic director at Washington State.

Ostermann All-American

St. Viator graduate Steve Ostermann, also a griddier at Washington State, has been named to the Detroit Football News All-American team. He was also selected first team All-Pacific Coast in the offensive line.

Ostermann was an All-Pacific Eight selection last year as a sophomore. He was the only Washington State player to make Associated Press' All-Coast team announced last week.

Jesse Kaye co-MVP

Quarterback Jesse Kaye of the Lake County Rifles has been named co-Most Valuable Player in the Central States Football League. Also honored was eighth-year veteran Henry Waters of the Madison Mustangs. Lake County won the Central States title.

IHSA class moves

East St. Louis Lincoln heads the list of schools which have made class changes this school year. Last year's co-titlist in track, East St. Louis has switched from AA to A, as has Metropolis.

New schools in the class AA bracket who were formerly class A are Clinton, Metamora and Rich South. First year schools in class AA are Buffalo Grove, Wheaton-Warrenville and Granite City North. Wheaton Christian joins class A.

Class differentiations are used in the IHSA's annual basketball championships. Class A finals will be held March 15-16 with AA the following weekend, both at the University of Illinois-Champaign.

Cubs at Wheeling

The Chicago Cubs basketball team will play the Wheeling High School faculty at 8 p.m. next Wednesday in the school gymnasium. Tickets are available at the school or from Mark Drugs in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Wheeling Bank, Kotz Shoes, Don Russ State Farm Insurance or from all Rotarians.

Will NBC peacock aid St. Viator?

by JIM O'DONNELL

The peacock could play a big role in introducing the St. Viator Lions to the winner's circle this weekend.

The peacock represents the National Broadcasting Company, and due to their eleventh-hour announcement of the area high school basketball games they will televise this winner, the Ridgewood Rebels must play twice Saturday.

The Rebels oppose conference rival Glenbard South in the afternoon in front of the cameras and then travel to the Lions' court for a nighttime encounter.

Obviously, the Rebels could suffer a letdown after their daytime appearance in front of the kilg lights. The letdown could help the winless Lions end their losing streak.

St. Viator's skein of setbacks could reach five by Saturday, however, because the young Lions must trek to the floor of Suburban Catholic Conference foe St. Patrick Friday. The Shamrocks have lost only once in five outings this year and are bossed by one of the deans of area high school coaches, Max Kurland. Earlier this season, Kurland registered his 300th career coaching victory.

Steve Antrim's Lions are expected to start a combination of the six men who have seen extensive action thus far this year. Terry Keenan, who is averaging 23.8 points per game, will be joined in the backcourt by either Paul Kastner or Ralph Casciaro. Glen Girard, 6-foot-8 sophomore, will open in the pivot, flanked by Bill Foreman and Tony Thompson with swingman Keenan possibly seeing some action at forward.

The Lions had a tough go of it last weekend, running into Bob (34 Points) Sveto and Carmel on Friday, and then a fired-up Palatine squad Saturday. This weekend promised to be no easier until NBC stepped in.

"We're honestly not preparing for St. Viator," Ridgewood coach Ron Kalina admitted. "The Glenbard South game is on television and it's a conference game, so we want to look good. The whole school is excited about it."

St. Patrick's Kurland is preparing for the Lions, and that's trouble. "They're young," Kurland said. "We'll be trying to make them do things that they don't want to. We'll pick them up all over the floor defensively."

The Lions will have an advantage in height over the Shamrocks, whose tallest starter is 6-3 center Tony Smith. Ridgewood, 5-1 overall this season, has no one as tall as Girard, but lists three regulars above 6-3, topped by 6-6 hinge man Paul Zarbeck.

Peacock aside, the Lions have two tough games this weekend. But if they can get by Ridgewood, they can credit a big assist to the colorfully-tailed bird.

Readers support coach, program

And the posts contribute in excess of $3,000 to operate a legion baseball program in other communities.

Lloyd Meyer has never received more than $300 in any of the 19 years, which was money left over from contributions or other income after all expenses, and this has never covered expenses.

The real losers in this case are the boys who have potential to play in competition beyond the high school level and who have college or professional abilities.

How men can deny these boys this opportunity to play in a national baseball program under a dedicated coach in their own home town is beyond me.

More to come (8)

I trust that some people associated with the Arlington Heights Merio Guild American Legion Post 208 will reconsider their decision to drop the baseball program and welcome Lloyd Meyer to handle the program in the method he sees fit, the same way he has done for many years in the past without any discredit to the post and to great benefit to the boys for whom the program is intended.

Jack B. Whisler
Arlington Heights

SPEAKING FROM EXPERIENCE

Dear Sir:

Having played in the Ninth District Legion league, High School District 214, and now coaching the only semi-pro team in the Northwest area, I feel I have the experience and knowledge to speak about the problems of a baseball program in this area. . . namely, the Arlington Legion team.

As I see it, there are two problems. Money, of course, is the first. My team (Northwest Rebels) has to scrape each year to survive, sometimes cutting our schedule short just to save money. This will always be a problem.

But the foremost problem, as I see it, is having both interested and knowledgeable people involved. Coaching a team takes most of your spare time, scheduling games, buying equipment, attending meetings, raking the field, hours of preparations that players and parents never see. People to do this are RARE. That is why I am writing this letter.

Lloyd Meyer is a man I have known for about seven years. I have played against him, coached against him and argued with him. But, in all this, I have learned to respect the man as a coach, but more importantly as a man.

I feel that no man has worked as hard as Coach Meyer in the Northwest baseball program and as far as his ability as a coach, his record stands above any other coach in the area.

As far as the kind of man he is, ask any of his players. They will tell you that he is special, and knowing Lloyd, hearing this would be payment in full for his many seasons of work.

It is a shame that someone like this fine man has to be made to look like he is the problem. You can be sure that if there is any disagreement, you can be sure it is only for the benefit of his boys.

I hope he is not soured on baseball in this area. It would be a shame to lose him as a coach, and baseball in this area would be a lot poorer without him.

Frank W. May
Buffalo Grove

EXPERIENCES IMPORTANT

Dear Herald:

The end of the Arlington Legion Baseball Program is the end of an era of character building, sports competition and wholesome outlet for the energy of youth. Having played four years of Arlington Legion baseball, I look back with fond memories. I remember the togetherness of the squad. I remember the intense competition that athletes enjoy. I remember the learning and hard work that made the end result gratifying.

These experiences were important in the development of my attitudes toward all aspects of life. To disband an organization of this type is to cheat the youth of this area. If the American Legion is truly an organization interested in America, then they must surely see that through American Legion Baseball, the attitudes and needs of youth are being fulfilled. To disband an organization of this type without the MOST important of reasons, is truly an injustice.

Mike Free

PLAYERS BACK COACH

Dear Herald:

We, the returning ballplayers eligible to participate in Arlington Heights' Legion baseball program for the 1974 baseball season, are writing this letter in regard to the column on Nov. 27, 1973 about the cancellation of Post 208's baseball program.

We feel that the decision did injustice to the program as well as to our coach, Mr. Lloyd Meyer. It is our opinion, that Legion Post 208 has come to an unfair conclusion for these reasons.

It has not cost the Legion one cent since 1965, when Coach Meyer led Post 208 to the nationals. All that has been asked of the Legion is that they sign their Legion's name, saying they will sponsor our team, and lend us the Legion Hall two nights of the year to hold steak fries to raise money.

As to Mr. Duda's statement, "you can only work so many members as many ways, then you run out of people," Mr. Meyer has never requested participation from any legion members in the baseball program. Mr. Meyer has said that the team would raise the money to pay all the bills. We, as teenagers, have been taught to accept responsibility, which is what Coach Meyer is doing. We cannot fault him for this and cannot see how the legion can.

Coach Meyer is an experienced and well qualified coach. He deserves better recognition for his efforts. We enjoy playing under him and are disappointed that the legion has prevented others from playing under him.

Hoffman sophs triumph over Lake Park, 68-34

by MICHAEL McMEEKIN
The Hoffman Hawks' sophomore basketball team now has a 1-1 record after beating Lake Park, 68-34. The game was played last Friday evening at Hoffman.
Hoffman jumped into an early lead and by the end of the first period, had established a 10 point advantage at 11-1.
Lake Park had the ball long enough to score a decent amount of points, but most of their shots rolled around the rim of the basket or missed entirely. The Hawks also had their share of "almost but not quite" shots.
During the second period, Hoffman steadily gained. By the time the second period was about half over, Lake Park had five points to their name.
The third period was the most active. Hoffman began scoring one basket after another. The speakers blared out Jim Moore's name when he scored three baskets in a row. The third period left Lake Park trailing by 36 points with a score of 57-21.
In the last period, Lake Park began to make a small comeback but Hoffman's gains outbalanced theirs.
Top scorers for the Hawks were Joe Gajewski, Jim Moore and Villers, who took good advantage of free throws.
Hoffman's next game will be Friday against Addison Trail at Hoffman.

It's Not Fair

Please don't compare our amazing MAZDA Rotary Engine car against Pinto or other small American Cars.

It would be like comparing apples and oranges . . . it just won't work. Come into Woodfield Mazda and let us show you just how much more our Mazda has to offer and you'll see there's really no comparison at all. And at Woodfield Mazda, we're opening our brand new facility with a gala clearance on brand new '73's . . . substantial reductions on everything in stock. One visit and you'll go no farther. Next to our MAZDA, there's no more comparing.

Lynn Anderson to model for World of Wheels

Lynn Anderson, 22, of 907 Greenfield Lane, Mount Prospect, will be one of 30 girls modeling this weekend at the World of Wheels custom car show at McCormick Place in Chicago.

Lynn was selected from hundreds of applicants and will be in competition for a first place award and four runners-up honors.

More than 80,000 car fans are expected to visit the show which starts today and goes through Sunday.

Designers and builders of the most wildly imaginative gas burners in the U.S. and Canada are on their way to compete in the 12th annual event.

Pre-war rods with gleaming chrome and brass finishes, some with fur interiors, and an array of super-fast dragsters, dune buggies, rocket cars and one-of-a-kind vehicles will be on close-up display by owners and drivers.

The event is also geared for fun, with TV stars — Martin Muller and Kent McCord from "Adam 12" — and bands featuring the sounds of the 50s, as well as contemporary rock.

Soccer championship

BONN (UPI) — West German soccer fans unable to buy tickets for the 1974 World Soccer Championships next June will have live TV coverage as a consolation.

All games featuring the national team will be televised live, no matter how the local heroes fare. The opening game is scheduled for June 13, 1974 at the 80,000 capacity Wald Stadium.

Duncan 'Y' tankers in sharp showing

In what started out to be an extremely close race for the Camp Duncan Y boys at the Aurora Y, they emerged victorious — credit being given to the Cadets who did not lose an event in the meet.

Scoring remained even all the way to the relays with Camp Duncan once again the victors, posting a final of 178-156.

The Camp Duncan girls played hosts to the Aurora Y girls team at the Wheeling Pool and the story is a little bit different. The girls began by winning all relays and continued on to heavy scoring by winning 256-88.

Arlington fencers whip Maine West

Arlington's girls won on both strips in a recent fencing triumph over Maine West.

On the "A" strip it was Arlington winning by a 9-7 count. The Cardinals won the "B" match, 11-5.

Ellen Bauske of Arlington fenced four matches and won four in the "A" victory. Taryn Kubik won her four matches for the "B" team.

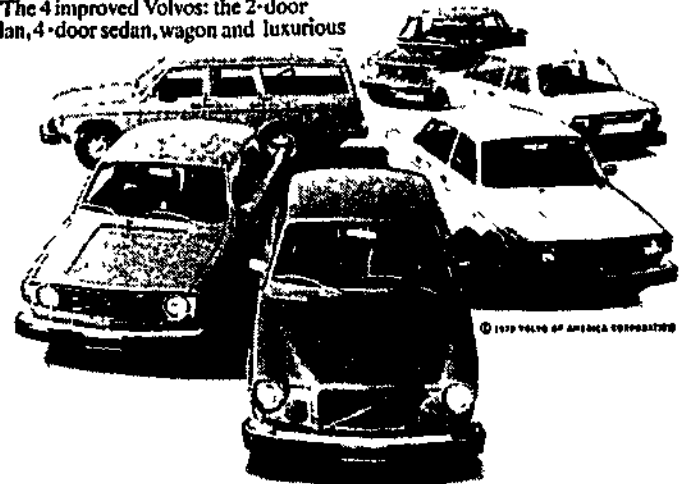

Shuffle of field bosses

Field managerial positions in major-league baseball have been changing more often, as shown by the fact that 10 of 24 teams opened this season with different managers from 1972. That's a turnover percentage of 41.7. Just four of the 10 new men were making their debuts as major-league managers.

FOR 1974 WE HAVE 2 NEW VOLVOS, 4 IMPROVED VOLVOS AND THE SAME OLD PHILOSOPHY.

The 2 new Volvos: the 2- and 4-door GLs. They come with extra standards — leather-faced seats, tachometer, sunroof, heated driver's seat, special wheel trim and metallic paint.

The 4 improved Volvos: the 2-door sedan, 4-door sedan, wagon and luxurious 164E sedan. They've all been made stronger, safer and more comfortable. But, you say, that's nothing new with Volvo. Exactly.

Alan Erickson netted five goals in this one-sided romp. Other scorers for Rolling Meadows were Ed Peszek, Glen Fredrickson, Paul Smith, John Zella, Pat Smith, and Ted Buchowski. Fredrickson, and Jeff Ayer had two assists apiece while John Voloshin, Tom Anderson, and Sauer each had one. Bill Cesa had one goal and one assist.

Koko Foods Warriors 2, Arlington Heights 1
The Warriors tallied twice in the opening period and hung on behind goals Tony Pustert for the victory. Midway in the first period, Bill Cesa scored for Rolling Meadows, assisted by Ed Peszek and Ted Buchowski. Second later, Peszek netted what proved to be the winning tally unassisted.

Koko Foods Warriors 4, Elk Grove 4
Rolling Meadows mounted a three-goal rally in the closing stanza to deadlock the game. Elk Grove rocketed into a 4-0 lead early in the game before the Warriors' Alan Erickson scored late in the first period. Bill Cesa put the second Rolling Meadows goal early in the third period on an assist from Glen Fredrickson. Ted Buchowski and Erickson got the final two Warrior goals to tie the game.

Buehler 'Y' boys, girls triumph

The Buehler YMCA opened up its December campaign with a pair of impressive victories over Belvidere YMCA.

Posting the most lopsided win of the two was the girls with a 22-10 decision. The boys were right behind with a 22-14 total.

The results are as follows:

member that loses the most, for his possible winning shot was blocked by Bob Westrich in the final seconds. Had the fine Card forward faked before going up, he might have drawn a foul.

Coch Ted Ecker admits that the meetings with Arlington of late are always like a state tournament game. "Anytime Arlington and Wheeling get together, there's a lot of tension," says Ecker. "That's probably due to a mutual respect."

"They (the 'Cats) are not afraid of them (Cards) or anyone else around here right now. They know they have to play a very good brand of basketball against them."

Forest View used a running game to shock Arlington. Wheeling will try and do the same with its fine overall quickness. Schaumburg and Barrington will attest to that quality of the 'Cats play after being blitzed last weekend.

This weekend promises to be the biggest test of the 'Cats until the Christmas tourney and state tourney. Tomorrow they'll have to take on hosting Lockport. "I can't really think of any other double weekend that puts two potentially tough teams back-to-back like that," adds Ecker.

He'll be sending his usual starting lineup against the Cards in George Kaage, Westrich, Bill Kenney, Bill Pickler and Scott Keenan. The latter two had outstanding games over the weekend, but all five starters are capable of doing just that at any time.

FREMD AT ROLLING MEADOWS

After Friday, there will be at least one less leader in the North Division and one less undefeated team in the MSL.

That's because Fremd and Rolling Meadows, half the total of teams currently deadlocked at the top of the standings in the North with 1-0 slates, will be tangling with one another on the Mustang court tonight.

Leon Kasuboske feels his team will be ready for the showdown.

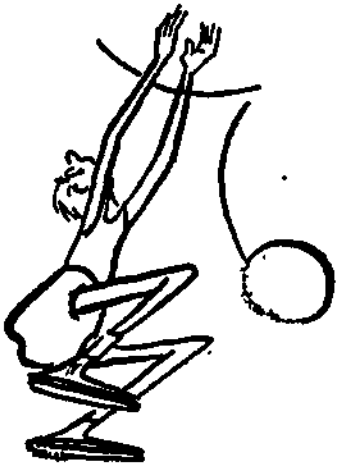

The Viking helmsman, fresh from a triumph against defending MSL champion Prospect, credits his analysts to the hustle his Fremd charges continue to show as the season progresses. It's the kind of eagerness that doesn't allow for a regular rest on his laurels after a victory.

"I mentioned at the beginning of the year that we had a bunch of kids who really want to play ball. Some of the reserve players have been pushing extra hard and right now I'm not certain who will start in at least a couple of positions."

One eager in particular who seems to have an eye on a starting assignment is Steve Dwyer. He came off the bench against the Knights to notch eight points, six rebounds, three assists and thoroughly impress his coach. "Playing football and then getting hurt near the end of that season slowed Steve up a bit, but he's really starting to come around now. He showed a lot of hustle and savvy last Friday."

Kasuboske also cited Tim Gross and Ken Hanks for their relief performances and even saved some salutes for one of his starters, Bob Frank. "Randy Weber scored a lot of points for us and gained his recognition. Bob didn't gain much attention but he certainly deserves the credit for his defensive performance."

Frank was put on Prospect's prolific scorer Al Black in the second half after a 16-point first half display. Black only had six more after that.

All-in-all "Kas" was well pleased with the team effort against the Knights. He expects more of the same against Meadows if Fremd is to extend its domination beyond last year's two 20-point triumphs. "They're not especially big but have a lot of things going for themselves like youth, speed and aggressiveness. I think (Pat) Geegan especially bears watching... he seems to make that team run."

But Meadows can't run without the ball and that will put the pressure on the rebounding department. "We've been doing well on the boards for our size," says Mustang head coach Ken Arneson.

But Meadows was granted just 35 shots from the field in its only loss of the year to Fremd over the weekend. Although the Mustangs cashed 21 of those attempts for a miraculous 60 per cent, Arneson stressed that his club must shoot 55-60 times a ballgame to win.

"We remember (Doug) Mize from last year," says Arneson. "We had him up to our nose on the offensive boards and I think he got 20 points. We can't let that happen again."

The Mustangs will go with Geegan and Randy Kramer or Tom Holt at forwards, Steve Breitbell and John Hogan at guards and Dave Thorstensen at center. Scott Green, after nursing a sprained ankle, appears available if the Mustangs need him.

"We had 22 turnovers Saturday night and we're expecting Fremd to press us up and down the floor. We're preparing for it, but if we don't break it, it could be a long night," he added.

HERSEY AT PALATINE

Hersey has been staring at a press in each of its six games this season. Tonight's battle at Palatine doesn't figure to give the Huskies a breather bringing the ball up the floor.

"They will be smaller than we are, so I'm sure they'll try to test us with their quickness," Hersey coach Roger Steingraber predicted.

The Huskies faced a rugged press Saturday in their 56-52 loss to Maine South, but the pressure tactics weren't that effective. Dave Corzine, Hersey's 6-foot-11 center, dismantled the press by taking the inbound pass and dribbling the length of the court.

"We don't like to see him do that," Steingraber admitted, "because it wears him out. But if our guards can't handle it, we'll have to ask Dave to help us out."

Another encouraging sign for the Huskies has been their bench. As Steingraber explained, "I can interchange seven or eight players without losing a thing. We're not afraid to substitute and I think we can do it with confidence."

Hersey poured eight different players on the floor (nobody fouled out) against Maine South and found a new starter in forward Tom Good, who earned the berth against Palatine tonight by canning six of seven shots from the floor.

Good will join soph Clyde Glass around Corzine while Mark Krause and Tim Conard will handle the backcourt chores.

"We'll be seeing one of the best guards in the league in (Jim) Arden," Steingraber said. "(Jim) Maycan and (Buddy) Hughes make them a well-balanced team."

The Huskies, meanwhile, will be bolstered by the return of 6-6 Rich Madison who missed both games last weekend with the flu.

Coch Ron Finrock's scout saw the Maine South game and was also impressed with the job Good did. "He thinks he's an excellent ballplayer," says Finrock of his scout's (Norm Jones) report.

"He (Jones) feels Corzine has improved his total ball game. His confidence looks much better and he's more agile."

Some might think that Finrock would rather face Hersey without the big man, but that's just not so. "I'm happy to see him back," says Finrock, referring to Corzine's being sidelined early in the season. "He does our conference a lot of good."

Finrock will be sending these "little fellows" against the biggest Huskie of them all — Jim Maycan (6-2), Steve Robbins (5-10), Jim Arden (6-1), Buddy Hughes (6-2) and Scott Cole (6-3).

Arden had a fine weekend with 23 against Conant and 21 against St. Viator. Finrock was very pleased with his showing, and said so after the game. He also had this to say for the consistent play of Cole: "He took eight shots and made seven against St. Viator. I haven't checked my statistics recently, but I'm convinced that he's shooting well over 60 per cent from the field."

"He hasn't had a bad night. He has a high shot and fades on it (hitting mostly from about 12 feet out)."

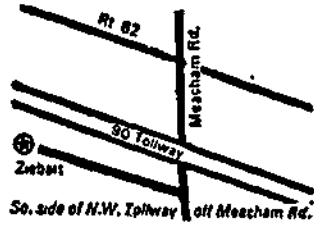

Finrock says that his team will "attack" Corzine — bring the action directly at the big guy and challenge him. This should make for an interesting attraction for the fans.

Three contests in South spotlight

Al Black. The duo have carried the bulk of Prospect's scoring on their shoulders and both are juniors.

Slayton will also start three-year youngsters Doug Bonthron and Mike Quade while Jim Anderson represents the lone senior in the quintet.

"We knew it was a matter of time before these kids started playing together, but we're still waiting," Slayton said. "I just hope it isn't too much longer."

"Conant is always a very physical team," Slayton observed. "We've got to go at them on the boards."

ELK GROVE AT FOREST VIEW

The nuclei try to defuse the nucleus tonight in the Falcons' gym.

That's not an advertisement for a meeting of the science club, but simply an abstract way to look at the contrasting styles of Elk Grove and Forest View.

The Grens are a team built around the multi-talented nucleus, Ken Pollitz. The Falcons are one of the smallest squads in the MSL, and out of necessity rely on quickness and teamwork to win.

"We've got to scrap and work together if we're going to win tonight," Falcon coach Ted Wissen commented. "This game is a natural rivalry and whenever you have a game with a close rival like Elk Grove you know it's going to be a good one."

Rivalry or not, the Falcons have momentum on their side, emanating out of their two victories last weekend, including an upset win over Arlington.

"Against Elk Grove we'll stick to what we've been doing all season," Wissen revealed. "We'll press and we'll try to keep the ball moving."

The Falcons will go with the same lineup that produced last week's wins. In the backcourt, 6-foot-3 Mark Russo and 6-0 Mike Meyer will start while 6-3 Larry Monroe will be in the pivot. Kurt Haaland, 6-3, and Craig Brinkman, 6-1, will operate out of the corners. But Wissen isn't optimistic about stopping Pollitz' individual achievements.

"He's a very good ballplayer," Wissen said. "I don't think any team can really stop him, but we'll make him work." If "making him work" means using the run-run-run style of play, Coach Bill Parmentier expects it.

"They got Arlington in the running game," he said. "We'll be trying to keep them off the board and not let them run."

Pollitz, a strong rebounder, will have to receive help from his teammates on the boards against this muscular Falcon team. Parmentier wasn't sure who would join his big man on the floor besides Greg Kelley and Steve Carson. Jim Hammers, Don Weadley and Bill Prince are vying for one spot with Jeff Smith being pushed by Bob Boyle and Tom Stadler for the other.

"The only way of having a good team is to get help from somebody else offensively," says Elk Grove's veteran head man. "We need offensive punch."

Doing the majority of the punching has been Pollitz. He's averaged a lofty 28.7 over four games while the rest of the team's been combining for a 28.0 average.

Parmentier says this of his third-year varsity star. "He's a human being, too. There's going to be nights when things don't go as well as they've gone."

"I hope we balance it (scoring) out a little more. They've got to score if given the opportunity from their positions."

Inexperience for all but Pollitz has been the difference. "I feel like they don't have the confidence offensively yet. I think we've got kids who are capable of scoring. What it takes is a good night."

This weekend's challenging double-header would be the perfect time.

BUFFALO GROVE AT SCHAUMBURG

The agony and the ecstasy make an appearance on the Saxons' court this evening.

The agony, at least in terms of MSL results, is Schaumburg. The Saxons were walloped by Wheeling last Friday, 97-29, although they did make some amends the following night, topping nonconference foe West Leyden to boost their overall slate to 1-2.

The ecstasy is Buffalo Grove. The Bi-sons, seniorless in their first varsity season, are 2-1, owning non-league victories over Wheaton-Warrenville and Stevenson. Like Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove is 0-1 in MSL play.

The Saxons looked bad against Wheeling and coach Joe Breault freely admitted it. "We stood around, we didn't hustle, our shooting was poor..." he lamented. "We just showed up." But he hinted that the 68-point loss may have been a blessing in disguise.

"The loss shook the kids up," Breault revealed. "We went out the next night and beat West Leyden, a good team that was 3-0 until we played them. Our practices this week have had a lot of zip. Maybe the shock plus the win could turn our whole season around."

If the Saxons do win tonight, their record will be at the .500 level for the first time in the school's three-year varsity cage history, according to Breault. "We're definitely not overconfident," he said. "They're a young, aggressive team, but I think we can beat them. I know we'll be more competitive than we were last Friday."

Dave Hill and Wayne Morgan, two names familiar to area football fans, will start in the backcourt for Breault. Ray Kralicek will open at center, flanked by sophomore John McElraith and either Jim Schimble or Steve Bengtson.

The ecstasy, in the meantime, would probably seem a little more complete to Bison coach Paul Grady if it weren't for the frequently interspersed growing pains.

Grady is a full-grown coach, of course, but his charges are anything but mature yet, and their sometimes erratic play (no matter how exciting and productive) is bound to produce a few grey hairs on their mentor before the season is over.

In three contests Buffalo Grove has built up big leads and lost them, fell way behind and caught all the way up. It's the kind of action that draws crowds and taunts emotions but is not precisely an ideal coaching situation.

"I'm not down on the kids by any means. I very much expected this season to be a somewhat unnerving one," Grady claimed. "The fact is, we're very young, anxious and mistake-prone...the talent is here but it's going to take time for it to develop."

So far the steadiest play has come from elders Tom Stonerook and Dave Smithers, both juniors on a club laden with frosh and sophomores. Other help has come all the way down the line since the coach is not a bit hesitant about going to his bench.

In the Grove's game with Rolling Meadows last Friday, in fact, Grady substituted for practically his entire first unit with two plus minutes to go and the verdict still very much in question. "We have to find out sooner or later how all these kids are going to perform under pressure. So far I'm not disappointed."

With regard to the Saxons, Grady is ready but wary. "From the looks of their scores last weekend, they may be a bit erratic too. They do have maturity on their side though as well as the home court advantage and that win Saturday had to buck their confidence back up."

Correcting a misleading statement about diabetes

THE HERALD

I read in a new book that diabetes and low blood sugar coexist in an individual. Is this possible? If so please explain.

Yes, I am familiar with the statement in the book you cited. Like many other statements in this book, it is very misleading. It is also a half-truth.

The problem begins when the mechanism to release insulin becomes faulty. This may occur in earlier stages of diabetes. When a person eats a lot of sweets normally the body releases a lot of insulin to help process the sweets and keep the blood glucose sugar from rising too high. The insulin helps move the glucose sugar into the cells where it is processed to either energy or converted to fat.

The diabetic has a problem in not forming enough insulin. That is why the blood glucose level rises too high. The first stage of this may be when the pancreas still manufactures insulin but has trouble forming it fast enough to meet the load of glucose entering the blood.

THE RESULT IS that the glucose is absorbed, and the body uses other mechanisms to start lowering the blood glucose level. Then, when the expected insulin is released, the blood glucose level is already lowered.

The insulin is no longer needed in such large quantities. The excess insulin causes the blood glucose level to fall too much and causes the symptoms of low blood glucose sugar.

This problem is not at all on the same basis as most of the functional low blood glucose sugar problems. It is actually a manifestation of a disease of the insulin forming mechanism. Basically, it is not associated with an excess formation of insulin, just a faulty timing mechanism.

I believe it is wrong to imply that the two disorders are the same thing, which they are not.

About 15 years ago my father had part of his stomach removed because of an ulcer. Should he watch the amount of

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

cholesterol intake even with only part of his stomach? He says he doesn't have to, and he eats a lot of eggs, beef, pork, etc. which contain cholesterol. He is also overweight. Could he be in any danger from this?

Yes, we could be in danger. The stomach has very little to do with fat or cholesterol. Nothing is absorbed from the stomach anyway. It mixes the food, liquifies it and breaks down protein with that acid pepsin juice that is related to ulcers. It is a storage reservoir.

Obviously your father has adjusted to his operation, and his food, as in other people, enters his small intestine and is absorbed normally. That means the calories, excess fat, excess saturated fat and cholesterol are processed just as in other people. He has exactly the same risk that any other overweight American male has who eats too much of everything and too much of the wrong things, in particular, to the point of being overweight.

O Christmas tree!

Are you real or fake?

by GENIE CAMPBELL

A spindly silver foil arbor was consumers' introduction to artificial Christmas trees . . . and it resulted in their drawing sides . . . those willing to trust technology and those totally aghast. What a rotten thing to do to Christmas!

However, despite the scathing remarks directed at the metal fakes, they indeed survived and while no longer as popular themselves, they gave rise to a continuing line of artificial trees somewhat akin to the real thing.

Green artificial balsams and scotch pines are becoming increasingly more realistic looking. No longer a center pole merely painted green. It's now covered with something resembling brown bark. And that wonderful woody scent? It comes in cans.

Conservationists might agree. If one can't plant a permanent live tree, an artificial one purchased and reused for a number of years is more ecology-minded than a real tree erected annually and then, stripped and dead, tossed in a post-holiday garbage pick-up.

Real trees were trimmed in 35 million homes last year. But in another five million residences, the trees were simply disassembled and put back into their boxes.

Wayne Pappalardo's family has been in the Christmas tree business for more than 25 years switching from live to artificial in keeping with the times. Currently his best seller at Lopez Casual Furniture is a green seven and a half foot tree, though four to five foot trees are very popular with apartment dwellers. And white trees are often chosen for very formal living rooms.

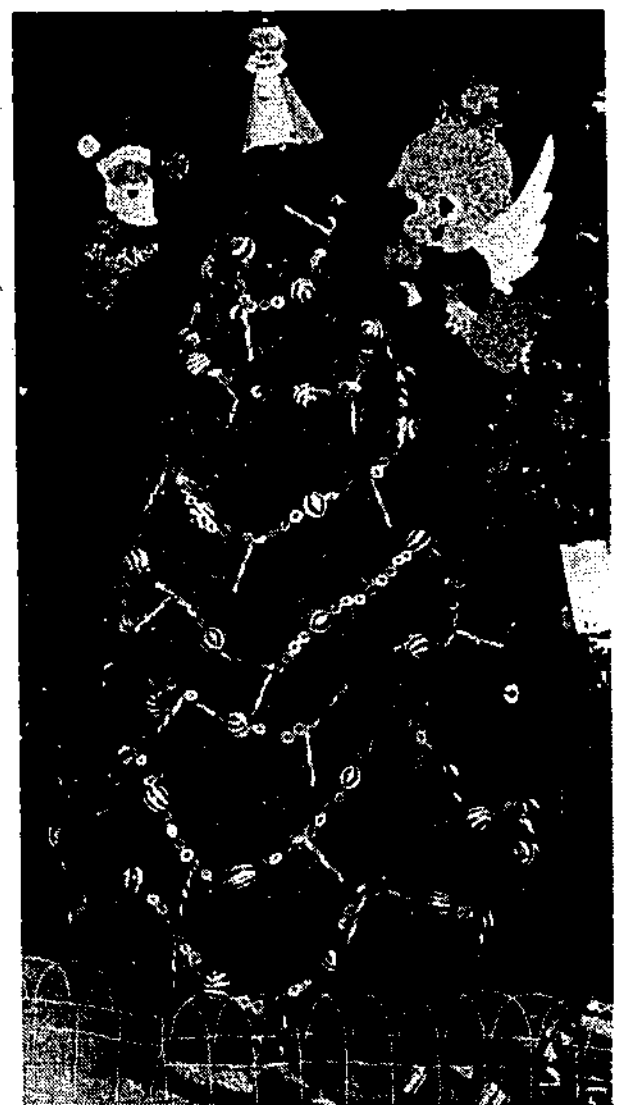

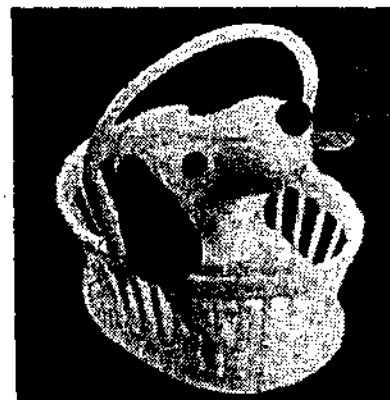

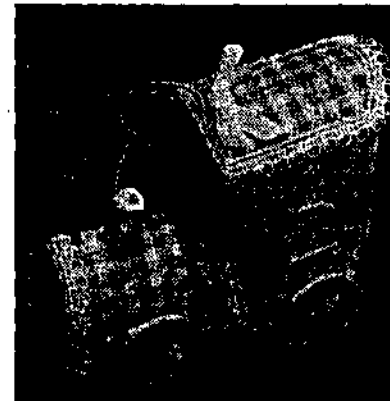

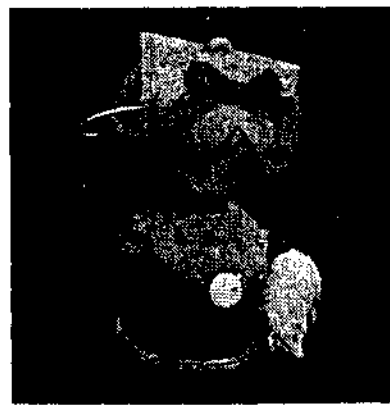

UNFORTUNATELY, holiday fires have taken their toll over the 400-some years since Martin Luther chopped down the first pine, brought it indoors and fastened on candles.

"Many people are investing in artificial trees just because they are less of a fire hazard," said Pappalardo. "They can be put up earlier and left up longer with no danger of dry needles causing a fire," he continued. "And you know what you're buying. The trees don't come frozen."

With real trees becoming more expensive, particularly in urban areas where they have to be trucked in way before the holidays, people are finding that investing as much as $50 in an artificial tree may actually pay in the long run.

The expected lifespan of an artificial tree is 10 years though most people dispose of them sooner and buy newer models.

Artificial trees also are preferred by some people just because they will support heavy handmade ornaments without ever drooping.

FEWER ORNAMENTS ARE needed when colorful garland is used. This kind, resembling candy, is becoming much more popular. Garland is particularly recommended for artificial trees because the branches are proportionate.

ONLY BIRDS AND whimsical animals are used to decorate this white formal artificial tree which is enhanced with rows of gold garland.

Youth orchestra plays holiday concert Sunday

Seventy-eight members of the Northwest Suburban Youth Symphony Orchestra, will open its second season with "Children's Holiday Concert" Sunday at Rolling Meadows High School.

For the past few months, orchestra members like Julie Cormier, right, have been spending their Saturday mornings practicing at Arlington High School. Other members come from Arlington Heights, Barrington, Des Plaines, Glenview, Hoffman Estates, Long Grove, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Prospect Heights.

The program will begin at 3 p.m. and will feature "The Festival March" by Bergen, "The Toy Symphony" by Hayden and "Straussiana," a waltz selection by Strauss.

The Town Criers of Forest View High School, Arlington Heights, will also be there. The orchestra also will play "Christmas Piece for Strings" arranged by Harvey, "Bratslava" by Holesovsky and an audience participation song, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," by Mendelssohn.

Supported by the efforts of member parents, individuals and business patrons, The Northwest Suburban Youth Symphony Orchestra was formed last year as an outgrowth of Music for Youth, a non-profit group.

Future audition sessions will be scheduled for interested children from kindergarten through eighth grade. Currently there are openings in viola, bassoon, trombone, trumpet and oboe sections.

For further information, readers may call Mrs. Fran Froelich at 359-7695.

A special Christmas concert will be given at 2 p.m. Dec. 23 at Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg. Other concerts are scheduled for March 10 and May 10 of next year.

THERE ARE CERTAIN decorating techniques to use with live trees and different ones for artificial, according to Wayne and his wife, Marcia, while some may be utilized for either type.

"First, people don't realize that today's artificial tree can be shaped," said Marcia.

Concealed wires enable individual branches to be bent at whim.

"If a tree is first shaped, it will look much better after the decorations are put on," said Wayne. "A piece of plywood under the base will make a tree stand up straight on carpeting," he added.

Tinsel is recommended for real trees that are not symmetrical and have open spots that need camouflaging. On the other hand, garland is more appropriate for artificial trees because it can be applied smoothly and proportionally.

THERE ARE MANY different ways garland can be strung. Trees can be scalloped with big loops hanging off the bottom limbs or it can even be applied up and down instead of around. Since garland is relatively inexpensive and a wide assortment is now available, including such colors as shocking pink and lime green, a new look can be achieved annually with only a small additional monetary outlay.

Garland that resembles small wrapped packages, or fruits and candies will make up for fewer ornaments.

Old-fashioned Christmas trees once decorated with homemade goodies are again popular. However instead of edible treats, ribbons and plastic fruits are being used . . . It's less messy. But then again, Snoopy will be showing up on lots of trees during this holiday period. Also, Mary and her little lamb and would you believe . . . a pink elephant or two?

Unbreakable whimsical characters, painted wooden ornaments and lots of bells, bows and birds are replacing the glass balls that are beautiful but fall off and shatter everytime a branch is brushed accidentally.

"MANY FAMILIES come in and allow each one of the children to pick out a new ornament for the tree," said Marcia.

"Snoopy is their favorite."

Actually it doesn't matter if gingham checked trains, red mice and cartoon celebrities are beating out Santa and his reindeer on the tree. Personal taste seems to be the only rule of thumb today. Color themes are sometimes followed . . . a white tree in all blue or a green tree trimmed in all white. Peace can be highlighted by sticking to white doves and ribbons, while a nursery rhyme tree may feature Humpty Dumpty and Jack and the Beanstalk.

Lighting has become a big issue this season because of the energy crisis.

Enough small Italian twinkle lights to decorate a full-sized tree require about the same amount of electricity to burn as a 100 watt bulb. On the other hand, the older fat Christmas lights use seven watts apiece.

"Lights will make or ruin a tree," said Wayne, who added that one set of lights per foot of tree is the general rule to follow though sometimes the trees with shorter needles have more open space and look better with more.

The Pappalardos are holding a decorating workshop for Christmas trees this Tuesday, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., in their Rolling Meadows store, 2170 Plum Grove Road. Reservations are recommended, 359-0670.

Returns to Arlington Park Theatre

Actress Pamela Britton has found her Utopia

by GENIE CAMPBELL

To face a packed audience nightly is every performer's dream. But to receive standing ovations continually as well is theatrical Utopia.

Is it any wonder that Pamela Britton easily exclaims, "I can't wait to get to work every night."

The visiting actress is completing a return engagement with co-star Don Knotts in "The Mind With the Dirty Man" at Arlington Park Theatre.

The same cast played here this past summer. At that time demand for tickets was so great that the show was brought back for a second run. The standing ovations have not ceased.

"IT'S AN AUDIENCE show, not a critics' show," Miss Britton accounts for the adult comedy's wide appeal despite criticism earlier by some Chicago reviewers.

"There's magic happening with this show. Its reputation is being spread by word of mouth. It's the kind of play you just accept for what it is."

"The Mind With the Dirty Man," which received three Jefferson nominations during its previous staging at Arlington, offers lots of laughs, risqué but not distasteful humor and the spontaneous outlandish antics of Don Knotts as only he can project them.

"He is such a treat to work with," smiles Pamela, "and a genius in his field . . . humor."

By now Pamela Britton is well acquainted with Knotts' timing and routines. She is also quite familiar with Arlington Park Theatre.

In addition to "The Mind With the Dirty Man," Miss Britton also played opposite Knotts in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" staged at Arlington a year and a half ago.

NOR IS SHE A newcomer to Chicago. Born and raised in Milwaukee, Miss Britton began her show biz career in Chicago radio, closely following in the footsteps of her mother, Ethel Owen, once "queen of the Chicago radio soap operas."

After the family moved to New York and Pamela established both a solid acting and musical career, she returned often to the Windy City in such productions as "Oklahoma," "Brigadoon" and "Guys and Dolls."

During this return trip to the suburbs she is enjoying the role of a tourist on her days off, mingling with the host of shoppers in the loop, exploring new eating places or running out to Woodfield with some of the other cast members who have all become very close through the success of this show.

IT'S A SWITCH from her last stint at Arlington Park Theatre when she seldom

"I'm a great horse enthusiast," she offered. "Every day I was at the track. I didn't go into Chicago once."

Watching Secretariat run was a highlight event.

Miss Britton, typecast as a slightly blond comedienne from such former television appearances as Mrs. Brown in "My Favorite Martian" and Blondie in "Dagwood and Blondie," extends a genuine smile and exuberance that are reminders of those past roles. Otherwise a certain graciousness and a quiet manner convey quite another impression of a theatrical lady who right now is most appreciative of her local acclaim.

"NO, I HAVEN'T tired yet," she remarks about the Arlington show. "All of the performers get along so well together . . . on stage and off. Of course I would tire if that ever ceased."

And she is looking forward to opening with the same cast at the Huntington Hartford in Los Angeles the beginning of February and later in the year, London.

Part of the appeal of playing at the Huntington Hartford for Miss Britton is knowing she will also be home.

And out comes a picture of her daughter and grandson, 2-year-old Michael, who live in Oakland and will be seeing "grandma" at Christmas.

"Theater is so much a part of me I could never dream of retiring completely," said Pamela, adding she doesn't particularly enjoy traveling anymore.

"What I mean is that I wouldn't really want to take a show on tour. This way I'm away long enough for my family to miss me but not long enough for them to get used to getting along without me."

IN ADDITION to her own career, Miss Britton spends quite a bit of time accompanying her husband, who is in the hotel business.

"I never know from show to show what I will be doing next though it's really no worry to me," she said.

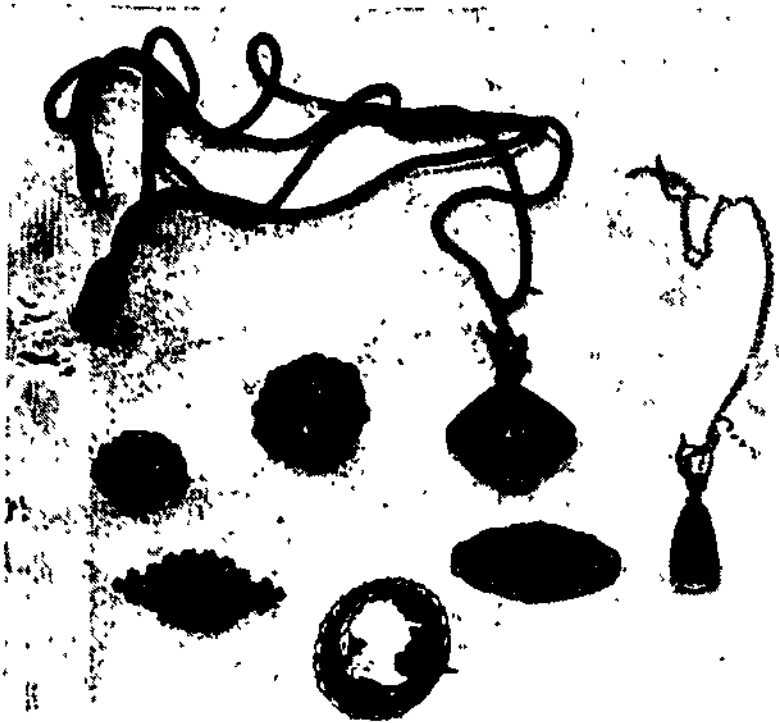

Her work is a pleasure, not a necessary livelihood. This winter she will guest star on Bill Bixby's new series, "The Magician" and hopes other like appearances will present themselves.

A new series would be tremendous if she could pattern it off "My Favorite Martian," work enough to keep her busy but not completely tie her down, for she doesn't ever want to give up those excursions to Oakland.

HERS IS A Hollywood success story. A rewarding career and marriage.

"I guess it's worked for me. My husband and I have our separations, but when we are together, we don't waste time dickering over small things. We make the most of our time together and as a result, I think we are much more interesting people."

Victorian jewelry appeals to women as a collectible

Victorian jewelry is one sort of collectible that appeals to every woman. The jewelry booth at any antique show is always crowded with eager lookers and buyers with noses pressed against the glass cases like kids in candy stores.

And why not? Jewelry, unlike so many antiques, takes up little room, seems to escalate in value as any good investment should, and can be displayed very easily by wearing it. Now it would be a little difficult to wear your collection of fine French paperweights or pewter chargers, but it is possible to carry around an entire collection of pins, bracelets and rings, and be thought very chic.

The jewelry we most often see in shops and at shows is from the Victorian era, for it was often handsome and interesting and costs little compared to jewelry made of diamonds and other precious stones. The stones most often found in jewelry of this period are cameos, garnets, amethyst, seed pearls, jet and corals. The settings may be plain or engraved solid or plated gold.

LOOK IN YOUR older relatives' jewelry boxes for long thin chains with little gold slides. These are watch chains that ladies of the early 1900s used for their watches or lozenges, worn around the neck with the watch tucked into the belt of the shirtwaist. Sometimes the slides only are collected today, made into charm bracelets.

Many of these are reproduced, and the new ones are very pretty and indistinguishable (to the average eye) from the old, but be sure you do not pay an antique price. This is true of any Victorian jewelry, all of which is being copied more or less faithfully today.

Shown are some examples of pins and bangles of the Victorian period, made of jet, garnet, cameo and a gold locket which holds an intricate braid of human hair. Hair jewelry was a rage of the period, and one may find rings, bracelets, pins and necklaces, as well as watch chains for men, made of or set with minute designs made of real hair.

IF YOU HEAR a dealer refer to "pinchbeck," she means an imitation gold metal made of copper and zinc which was often used for jewelry at the turn of the century. It was developed by Christopher Pinchbeck, an English watchmaker, in 1732.

The last gasp right now is Southwest Indian jewelry, presumably "made right on the reservation" by the last of a few remaining artists in silver and turquoise.

Collecting with Grace Carolyn

I become suspicious of anything that is suddenly seen in every store, every antique shop, even in the mail order catalogs. Do not pay bonus prices because it is called "antique" unless you are very sure you know what you are doing. I would also be very careful when buying the new Indian pieces, which are being touted as "good investments." I wonder...

If you have questions, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope. All questions will be answered in the column or personally. Address in care of Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Novel realistically depicts dilemma of modern woman

"FEAR OF FLYING"

BY ERICA JONG.

Holt, Rinehart & Winston, $6.95
Young liberated women across the nation have been waiting for a novel like this — Erica Jong's answer to Henry Miller and Holden Caulfield rolled into one. At last we have a truly female odyssey, not the popular idea of one's journey through Alice-in-Wonderland imaginations leading to trails of proms, weddings and babies, but a tale of the sexual adventures of the soul-searching, mind-wrenching travels of a real young woman in the year 1973.

This is no soft dreamy book. It makes no apologies. It is neither tentative nor cautious. Miss Jong has written a hard-driving, witty, sardonic, sexually graphic piece of art where the heroine is as genuine and realistic as any who has appeared since the feminist movement helped a host of female writers crawl out from under their rocks.

Isadora Wing, the highly sexed, highly intellectual heroine, yearns for independence and freedom, to be able to go to bed with everyone from the train conductor to the poet, in short anyone she chooses, without being plagued by guilt, to be free of all her fears which range from flying to dark rooms. Yet something powerful and relentless inside her craves to be safe, secure, sheltered, to lose herself completely in the love of one man.

Isadora's dilemma is the dilemma of the modern woman — how to become liberated without losing femininity, how to deal with the female instinct toward homing, subjugation, annihilation of self, as it clashes with women's newfound sanction to soar into the world. Miss Jong has dealt well with the fear of flying.

"HARRY DEXTER WHITE"

BY DAVID REES.

Coward, McCann, George, $12.50
This biography of one of the most controversial American shapers of the post-World War II world pays tribute to White's pre-eminence in international monetary planning. It leaves the impression that White was not a Communist, as was charged in the Hiss spy case, but an overconfident internationalist who felt himself above national loyalties.

"THE WALLED CITY"

BY MARCEL CLOUTZ.

Evans, $8.95

George Orwell's world of "1984" has arrived.

It is Cloutz's nameless walled city, peopled by refugees from villages destroyed by an unidentified enemy. It is governed by a prefect through his commissioner, who reports daily by letter.

The book stall

This modern allegory about an increasingly mechanized and materialistic world has a surprisingly upbeat ending.

"WHEN ELEPHANTS LAST IN THE DOORYARD BLOOMED"

BY RAY BRADBURY.

Knopf, $5.95

This laureate of science fiction has collected his poetry into a slim volume of delicacy, high imagery and some humor. While his time travel consists mainly of going back into his own youth you CAN go home again, he does venture briefly into space.

"THROUGH THE CRUST OF THE EARTH"

BY LORD ENERGY.

McGraw-Hill, $10.95

Others may explore outer space or the comparatively penetrable ocean depths, but this scientist explores what is beneath the earth and his treasures range from gem stones to fossils which may be worth more than diamonds in terms of scientific information yielded.

Alice Cooper has run out of shock

Alice Cooper, one of the originators of the '70s "shock rock," appears to be running out of perversions, grotesque humor and plain bad taste. Of all things, he serves up a bunch of love songs in his new album, "Muscle of Love" (Warner Bros. records).

There are no songs of blowing up schools or loving the dead as in his previous two albums. Instead there are songs of cheap street-bought love and immature schoolish crushes. They prove Cooper can't play anything straight, even love.

One of these love songs is the pretty good "Hard Hearted Alice," a ballad of all things. (I guess Cooper is following the Rolling Stones' lead). Specifically, the song has some nice music, especially with its slow beginning. Unfortunately, the lyrics are pure junk.

AS ALWAYS, THE remaining songs are divided between hard rock and not so hard Hollywood movie music. One of the best rockers is the title song with its nice, long guitar riffs and the Cooper humor in lines like, "Holy muscle of love, it must be a gift from above."

Most of the other rockers — "Working Up a Sweat," "Never Been Sold Before" and "Woman Machine" — are not too distinguished but okay to bounce your feet to. A touch of Dixieland music is injected into "Crazy Little Child," one of the more pathetic of the movie music songs.

The album's real sparkler is "Teenage Lament '74" which relies heavily on the combined choral talents of Liza Minnelli,

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

La Belle and Ronnis Spector for its success. It has more vitality than the other songs. Back to movie music again, Cooper manages a couple of nice moments in an otherwise boring "The Man With the Golden Gun" (he almost even stole the title from a movie).

"MUSCLE OF LOVE" is an album that doesn't shock and offers little new in the way of music. All of which doesn't mean it is a bad album. It is simply disappointing, as is the album package itself.

What's creative about a cardboard box that annoyingly takes up the space of five normal sized albums on a shelf? The school desk of "School's Out" and the billfold of "Billion Dollar Babies" (both Warner Bros.) were better. Come to think of it, so were the albums better.

Boston's J. Gells Band made it big with their reggae-inspired single "Give It To Me" taken from their "Bloodshot" album (Atlantic records). It was a good song from a solid, exciting album. Now the band continues the good sounds in "Ladies Invited" (also Atlantic), their fifth album.

J. Gells Band plays dance music, music that inspires the feet to get up and move. Drawing on an intense interest and background in the blues, rock and roll and rhythm and blues, the band forges intense rhythms and forceful beats.

THE BEST SONGS in the album are "I Can't Go On," with its funky beat, and "My Baby Don't Love Me."

Two of the better young British bands are Genesis and Queen. Genesis plays progressive rock, filled with allusions, rich images and soaring sounds. Queen is a rock 'em sock 'em band in the Led Zeppelin "heavy metal" tradition.

Genesis' second American album is "Selling England By the Pound" (the Famous Charisma Label records). The album is one tonal picture after another, often reminding one of Emerson, Lake and Palmer or King Crimson (although not as electronic as ELP and far better than King Crimson).

The soft, melodic "I Know What I Like (In Your Wardrobe)" and the instrumental "After the Ordeal" with Peter Gabriel's flute solos are striking. Also good are "Firth of Fifth" with its classical sounding piano introduction and "The Cinema Show," a modernization of the Romeo and Juliet theme. The album's only weak point is that it's sometimes very obscure in its lyrics. "The Battle of Epping Forest," a sort of British "West Side Story" in miniature, is the most confusing example.

QUEEN'S ALBUM "Queen" (Elektra records) is an above average debut. Although information on the group is skimpy, the albums songs, we are told, were written and developed over the past three years.

The sound is loud, with thunderous drums and droning guitars. There is some distortion of vocals and shifting of sound from speaker to speaker. The vocals are usually fine with some Beatlesque harmonies at times. Good listening is guaranteed in songs like "Keep Yourself Alive," "Great King Rat" and "Doing All Right."

Mark Young Art Corner exhibitor

Mark A. Young, a Mount Prospect resident and art teacher in the Park Ridge elementary schools, will exhibit his work in the Art Corner of Des Plaines National Bank this month.

Young received his early art training from his father, the late William Mark Young, a well known Chicago commercial artist, and at the Art Institute of Chicago. He also holds a B.A. from Northwestern University and an M.A. from National College of Education in Evanston.

Watercolor is Young's primary medium, although he does some work in oil and pen and ink. He chooses scenic and historic America for many of his paintings, but has included some nautical subjects and athletes in his current exhibit, on view in the bank at 678 Lee St. in Des Plaines through Dec. 31.

Young belongs to Des Plaines Art Guild and Northern Michigan Arts and Craftsman in Traverse City.

Harper Players offer four one-act plays

Four one-act plays will be performed at Harper College tonight and tomorrow night by the Harper Studio Players.

Beginning at 8 p.m. in Room E-106 on the Palatine campus, the student actors will present "The Wonderful Ice Cream Suit" by Ray Bradbury, "Death Knocks" and "Count Dracula" by Woody Allen and "Braille" by Lane Baleman.

Admission is $1 for the public. Students and faculty with Harper I.D. will be admitted free.

Lutheran General decks its walls with area, UNICEF art

Paintings depicting holiday scenes will be on exhibit this month in the lobby of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

The exhibit is part of the Service League's Art Originate program. Altogether 30 area artists are represented in this display.

In the Art Originate program, local artists are invited to lend their paintings to the hospital for several months. The paintings are displayed in patient rooms, waiting rooms and public areas of the hospital. Paintings are for sale and may be purchased through the Service League.

FORTY PIECES of the permanent UNICEF (now known as United Nations Children's Fund) art collection are also on display in the lobby through December.

Done by children of all ages in more than 35 countries, all the artwork depicts activities of children. The exhibit includes drawings, paintings and sketches in various media. It was made available to the hospital through the Chicago branch of the U. S. Committee for UNICEF.

Approximately 100 pieces are added to the permanent collection each year. Many have been used as illustrations for UNICEF Christmas cards, wall calendars, books and other material.

The Metropolitan Youth Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mary K. Rosen, will present its first concert of the season Sunday at St. James Cathedral, Wabash Avenue at Huron Street, Chicago. The program begins at 3:30 p.m. There is no charge.

Entr'acte

ORCHESTRA MEMBERS from this area are Linda Handlin and Marc Janusz, both of Palatine, and Alleen Kelley of Arlington Heights.

Now in its 15th season, the Metropolitan Youth Symphony is open to outstanding music students of high school and college age.

Rehearsals are held Sunday afternoons at the YMCA Building, 19 S. LaSalle St. Auditions are given throughout the year and may be arranged through Mrs. H. Nielsen, 779-8904.

A musical play, "My Fair Broker," will be presented by the Mighty Homefinders Art Players Monday at Mangams Beverly Lake Restaurant.

The Mighty Homefinders Art Players is a group which makes up the "cultural" arm of Homefinders Realtors.

THE MUSICAL is being presented for Homefinders' employees by Bob Zaun, president; David Hanner, vice president; the Homefinders office managers and clerical staff. Zaun wrote the skit.

"My Fair Broker" is the fourth annual production. Others were "Goldlocks and the Three Buyers," "TV We Like to See," and "Homefinders, 2072."

Footlighters set tryouts for 'Diary of Anne Frank'

Auditions for "The Diary of Anne Frank," February production of the Des Plaines Footlighters, will be held Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m., at Rand Park Fieldhouse, Des Plaines.

A cast of five boys and five girls will be needed for the drama, scheduled for Feb. 22, 23 and 24, according to Ken L. Johnson, resident director of the Footlighters, sponsored by the Des Plaines Park District.

Students from first grade through high school living in the park district area are eligible to try out.

The play, second production in the Footlighters' 11th season, is based on the posthumous book "Anne Frank: The Diary of a Young Girl," the record of a young girl's life while hiding with her family in Amsterdam before the Nazi conquerors of the Netherlands herded them off to a German concentration camp.

The "diary," begun by Anne when she was 13 and discovered in 1945 after the young author's death at the age of 15 in the camp, was published in 19 languages. The play founded on it was performed in more than 20 countries.

Footlighters will close its 1973-74 season next March with a musical production of "The Wizard of Oz."

Regular, Saturday drama workshops are also conducted by the Footlighters. Information about tryouts for "The Diary of Anne Frank," drama classes or other phases of the young people's theater may be obtained by calling 296-6106 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Textiles workshop

A textiles workshop is being held at Countryside Art Center this Wednesday, 7 to 9 p.m.

"Variations on Four Harness Twill Threadings," subject of the special program, will include treadling the regular twill and also loom-controlled and finger-loom controlled weaving using treadling variations. Samples will be on display. Charge for the workshop is 50 cents. Countryside Art Center is located at 414 N. Vail in Arlington Heights.

Christmas concert at Harper

The Harper College Camerata Singers will present European Christmas carols and the Harper Concert Choir will perform a rarely heard English Renaissance composition in a concert at the college next Tuesday evening.

The program will also include three numbers by the Harper Wind Ensemble.

The public is invited to attend the 8 o'clock concert in the College Center. There is no admission charge.

Harper music instructor Jerry F. Davidson will direct the concert choir in "Sing Joyfully," a rarely heard work by English Renaissance composer William Byrd. The Choir will use copies of the recently released original plates of the work.

The Camerata Singers, under the direction of instructor Willard E. Thomen II, will perform carols from four European countries, Germany, France, Spain and England.

Soprano soloist Carolyn Larson of Glenview will be featured in "The Carol of the Birds," and tenor soloist James Hartman of Palatine in "Hacienda Belen va un Burrico." Both numbers are traditional Spanish carols.

The Harper Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Dr. Robert J. Tillotson, will perform the "Overture to Candide" by Leonard Bernstein, arranged for band by Walter Beeler; "Chant and Jubilo" by Francis McBeth; and "Symphonic Suite" by Clifton Williams.

Night out

Kona Kai: a genuine island flavor

by GENIE CAMPBELL

MARRIOTT'S new KONA KAI POLYNESIAN RESTAURANT does almost the impossible . . . make you believe you're in the islands, rather than the outside fringes of Chicago.

Sipping a tropical fruit drink that arrives at the table garnished with a flower (mine happened to be a fragrant gardenia), admiring the surroundings which include monkey pod tables, lots of Polynesian artifacts and even a waterfall complete with stream, and listening to the gentle strains of island music, make you forget you've just come from work and this is only a short reprieve until the alarm again rings tomorrow. No matter, it is a unique, enjoyable interlude.

The dining room is built on three separate levels and is divided into many small alcoves which makes the entire eating experience intimate even though the room itself is rather large, seating altogether 583 people including 128 in the cocktail lounge. Many new restaurants are following this trend of partitioning with a great deal of success.

Traditional Polynesian dishes such as Cho Cho, (flaming marinated steak slices) and shrimp curry are listed as main entrees along with numerous appetizers (egg rolls are still my favorite but Crab Rangoon runs a close second) and Cantonese vegetables.

This past Tuesday the Marriott was not only celebrating the grand opening of its European paintings at Arlington Towers

More than 500 oil paintings will be on sale by European Art Importers Guild of Media, Pa., at Arlington Park Towers Hotel tomorrow and Sunday.

The paintings will be on display at the Round Table One room at the hotel. The show represents up and coming European artists including Hellner, Ballet, Newman, Johnson and Van Dyke.

Prices of the paintings range from $5 for an 8 by 10 inch size to $84 for a 24 by 48 inch. Handcarved wooden frames also will be on sale.

Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. There will be no admission charge.

Kona Kai, but also the sixth anniversary of the entire motor hotel located at 8533 W. Higgins Road.

JEANINE NAPOLEON, now at the TOP OF THE TOWERS through next weekend, is billed as a "sultry, sensuous songstress." I'll have to go along with that. But notwithstanding, she also is nice to listen to, with a strong but soothing voice that comes across well on such numbers as "One Last Bell to Answer" and "Delta Dawn."

Hail, Hall, the gang's all here or leastways on their way . . . again. Another singles weekend though the meeting place has changed. Not the Hyatt Regency O'Hare. No, I'm afraid they learned their lesson. ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS is hosting this one next weekend from Friday through Sunday. There's a variety of packages . . . from $45 if you pack four into a room to $71 if you insist on remaining single. There are prices in between for triple or double occupancy.

Yet the main focus is again Friday night for a big singles party being held out at the track this time, which should alleviate some mischievousness. There's not as much to throw around. Perhaps Barry Sax is out to make amends. His organization CAN-AM is again promoting the weekend. Think he will over sell? Think he will run out of food? I'm holding my breath. I bet Arlington Park is, too.

GLEN CAMPBELL is at the MILL RUN THEATRE in Niles through this Sunday and JOHN GARY opens Monday in the BLUE MAX of Regency Hyatt O'Hare. Appearing with him will be comedians LEWIS & KIP.

"THE MIND WITH THE DIRTY MAN" is finishing up its second run at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE but not before MAYOR RICHARD DALEY gets a chance to see it. The honorable mayor is coming to the suburbs Tuesday evening to catch the comedy starring DON KNOTTS and PAMELA BRITTON.

COTTON BALL TREE

This snowy tree is simple enough for preschoolers to make. Here are the materials needed: heavy paper or light weight cardboard, spool, cotton balls, gummed paper stars, pencil, long strip of green or brown crepe paper or florist tape.

Using a dinner plate for a pattern, draw one third of a circle on paper. Cut it out. Tape or staple it into a cone. Glue the crepe paper strip around the pencil. Paint the spool and let it dry.

Squeeze some white glue out on a little square of foil or cardboard. Dip each cotton ball in the glue and put it on the cone. Hold each ball in place until it is stuck. When the tree is covered with cotton balls and dry, stick on paper stars.

Poke the pencil point down into the spool. Balance the cone on the eraser end.

Festival Chorus to sing 'Messiah' in Dec. 16 concert at Elk Grove High Elk Grove Festival Chorus in concert with the Northside Symphony of Chicago will present the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" and "Sing We Now of Christmas" by Harry Simeone, Sunday, Dec. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Boulevard at Arlington Heights Road.

Anthony V. Mostardo will direct and the concert will feature dancers from Zaki Labovsky's School of Dance in Wood Dale.

Soloists for the Messiah include Maria Lagos, soprano; Carolyn Pugsley, alto;

David Miller, tenor; and Jerry Pugsley, bass. Miss Lagos has been featured on WGN-TV Artists Showcase, and was a finalist in the Opera Guild Auditions of 1972.

Soloists in "Sing We Now of Christmas", all members of the Elk Grove Festival Chorus, are Betty Jarosch and Camille Tholl, sopranos; Art Gardiner, baritone, and Al Lamont, bass. All have had past experience as choir soloists.

Information about tickets is available by calling CL-3-6711. Tickets will also be available at the doors at $2 for adults and $1 for children.

'Butterflies Are Free' opens at Guild Playhouse Dec. 13

Des Plaines Theatre Guild will be the first community theater in the Chicago area to present the comedy "Butterflies Are Free."

Five performances of the Leonard Gershe play about a sensitive, blind young man's struggle for independence and the young woman who helps him find it, are scheduled at the Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines Dec. 13-16.

This is an extra production, not included in the 1973-74 season subscription series of five plays, and tickets for all performances of "Butterflies" are now on sale at $3 each. Curtain times will be 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 13; 8:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14; 8:30 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15; and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16.

The matinee is a benefit for the Service Projects Fund of Soroptimist Club of Des Plaines.

Reservations may be made at 296-1211 between noon and 8 p.m. daily, and tickets may be purchased during intermission at the final performance of the Guild's current production, "Forty Carats," tomorrow night.

Tickets for the benefit matinee may be purchased from any Soroptimist member or by calling Lyla Guthardt, First National Bank of Des Plaines, 827-4411.

Director for "Butterflies" is Steve Strong of Chicago, who just finished starring in Best Off Broadway's production of "The Music Man."

Four local artists in weekend show

Four local artists will be featured in Temple Judea's Spectrum III exhibition of fine art and crafts tomorrow and Sunday in the Temple Community Hall, 8810 Niles Center Road in Skokie.

Hours of the annual juried exhibit are 8 p.m. to midnight tomorrow, and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Included will be horology in pictures, pen and ink drawings, collages, enamels, serigraphs, woodcuts and oil, acrylic and watercolor paintings. Metal and wood sculpture will be displayed as well as hand-painted china, stoneware, pottery, Columbian and Israeli jewelry and for the first time this year, live plants and terrariums.

Wood sculpture by Ed Jirasek of Arlington Heights, moving metal sculpture by Joseph Burlini, also of Arlington Heights, oil paintings by Dawn Butler of Schaumburg and acrylic paintings by Christi Hansen of Mount Prospect will be part of the show.

Symphony to highlight instruments

Northwest Symphony Orchestra will play its second concert of the 1973-74 season at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in Maine East High School Auditorium, Dempster and Potter Roads, Park Ridge.

This will be a purely orchestral program featuring solos by principal players. Perry Crafon will conduct.

The first half of the concert will be devoted to Mendelssohn's "Scotch Symphony," lightly orchestrated composition of the Romantic Period in four movements to be played without the usual intervening pauses.

The second part of the program will feature the "Eine Kleine Nacht Musik," one of Mozart's greatest Serenades and among the best loved orchestra pieces for strings.

The concert will close with "Death and Transfiguration" by Richard Strauss. This work, written in 1889, is based on a poem by Alexander Ritter which centers on a dying man's struggle with death.

Season tickets at $7.50 for the remaining three programs or single tickets at $3 may be reserved now by contacting Mrs. Ann Butler at 631-6132 after 6 p.m. Student admission and Golden Ager admission is $1.50. Children under 12 are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Wax remover, soda should clean slate entry

Dear Dorothy: Can you tell me how to clean my slate entrance way? I've tried soap, detergent, liquid cleaners and even washing soda — all with no luck. It was cleaned at some time with an acid, and maybe this is causing the difficulty. — Catherine Brown

Maybe you have a coat of wax that is repelling the cleaners. Remove the wax with a wax remover, then scrub thoroughly with a good washing soda solution. Rinse and wipe dry. Next day use some paste wax — very sparingly — and buff. Several days later, do the paste wax routine again, then once more a week later. That ought to take care of it.

Dear Dorothy: Tried your recipe for lentil salad and found it delicious. I

It's the 16th year for woman's club Yule party at Elgin

For the 16th consecutive year the Mental Health and Welfare Committee of Arlington Heights Woman's Club will sponsor a Christmas party for patients in a ward at Elgin State Hospital. This year's party will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Each patient will receive a package of gifts. Christmas music will be provided by the Illinois Federated Woman's Club 7th District Chorus and Carol Ann LaPlaca, junior at Western Illinois University will sing and accompany herself on the guitar. Christmas cookies and fruit cake will be served.

Committee members, who make monthly visits to the ward, include Mrs. Marvin Schuler, Mrs. Charles Nute, Mrs. Frank Currier, Mrs. Malcolm Smith, Mrs. Theodore Sammuelsen, Mrs. Norbert Mettelka, Mrs. Theodore Kleisner, Mrs. George Dorsey, Mrs. Fred Hartman and Mrs. Charles Rose, chairman.

Seek instruments, used bikes, parts

A drive to obtain used bikes, parts for repairing bikes and used and new musical instruments has been launched by Northwest Suburban Section of the National Council of Jewish Women. The group is also seeking a piano for teens at Elgin State Hospital who are in need of new and diversified indoor activities, according to council members.

All items will be picked up for those who call 438-2973 with donations.

thought, however, that it looked a bit drab and tried everything I could think of to go under, on top or alongside. Tried a cooked green pepper, tomato, lettuce and a few other oddments, but nothing really seems to suit. Corn chips came closest, but not really right, I think. Any thoughts? — M.L.E.

No, I really can't offer any. I see your point, but come up blank. I guess I liked the salad enough not to notice it didn't look dressed up.

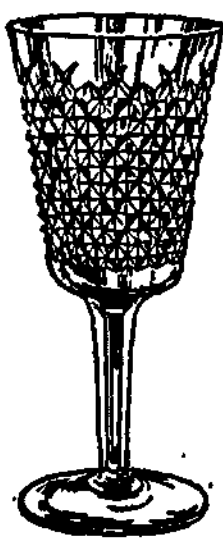

Dear Dorothy: Every once in a while I will get pasteurized American cheese which is white rather than yellow — which is what I like. Why the same type of cheese in different colors? — Marge Williams

It's just how that particular batch was colored. If you will close your eyes while eating either color you'll find they taste exactly the same.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXE
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three I's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The Herald's photography department — Number 1 in the state!

That's right! The Herald's eight-man staff of professional photographers teamed their efforts to earn The Herald the "Newspaper of the Year" award in a recent statewide competition sponsored by the Illinois Press Photographers Association.

The 15 winning photos entered by The Herald photography department were representative works of its entire staff. The competition they faced was tough — the knowledgeable judges reviewed entries from all the major Illinois newspapers, including the four Chicago dailies, and found The Herald's superior to all.

Top-notch photography . . . just one more reason to make the award-winning Herald your daily source for news.

Santa's Gift Gazette

The HERALD

Friday, December 7, 1973

EVERY CHRISTMAS talented designers at Klehms, Arlington Heights, make up individual centerpieces for holiday decorating. In the Greenhouse they also have all the needed materials for "do-it-yourself" projects.

Music stores resound with melodic gift ideas

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there's a pear-shaped package for you under the Christmas tree, you may be in for a "plucky" Christmas.

There will be thousands of fretted instruments given to amateur musicians of all ages in the Yule. Frets include not only guitars, but banjos, ukuleles, mandolins and the almost forgotten dulcimer, currently making a comeback.

The American Music Conference says Santa's helpers have a wide variety of instruments and accessories from which to make a selection.

In addition to the full range of fretted strings, music stores carry a full complement of instruments and accessories.

Musical stocking stuffers for the small fry include harmonicas, flutaphones, melodicas, rhythm sticks and claves. For the partial amateur the choices include recorder, lute, harpsichord and lyre. Also the dulcimers, horns, and other old world instruments.

There also are electronic instruments, organ and electric piano, ranging in price from $200 to about $4,000.

For the musician who already has an electric guitar there are sustainers, wah-wah pedals, fuzztones, and a variety of other rhythm sounds.

Prices range from about $50 to $600 for these accessory items. A small portable synthesizer costs about $500.

Sheet music, a welcome gift for young and old musicians, starts at about $2. Almost every song imaginable — from the earliest Christmas carols to the newest pop hit — can be found in print.

Along with sheet music, there are self-instruction aids for almost every instrument and such items as piano lights, metronomes, music stands, carrying cases, new mouth-pieces for brass and woodwind and new bows for violins and other strings.

Grandest of all, of course, are the keyboards — from upright pianos to baby grands and pipe organs to electronic marvels with three keyboards and synthesizer controls.

Whatever musical gift is selected this Christmas, it will be a present the recipient will enjoy for many Christmases to come.

Helbig Jewelers mark 25th year in business

Helbig Jewelers, now in its new location at 1016 Grove Mall, Grove Shopping Center, Elk Grove, is celebrating its 25th year in business in the northwest suburbs.

Coinciding with the anniversary celebration, Helbig Jewelers is offering free engraving of all jewelry purchases from now until Christmas. Free gift wrapping of all Christmas purchases is also available during this period.

Owners of the jewelry shop are Curt and Ruth (Karstens) Helbig. Helbig, a specialist in diamond resetting and clock and watch repairs, is a graduate of the Chicago School of Watchmaking. He has also studied at the Gemological Institute of California and is presently working towards his designation as a certified gemologist. Helbig is equipped to service all clock needs from wristwatches to grandfather clocks.

Mrs. Helbig attends the gift shows and does most of the buying for the shop. "We primarily do most of our buying from Chicago wholesalers," Mrs. Helbig said. "Because of this we can usually offer our customers two to three day service on items we don't have in stock."

Another service Helbig Jewelers offers is distributing catalogs and delivering purchases to the chronically ill and bed-ridden.

Helbig Jewelers also keeps a complete record of ring and watch purchases in a fireproof area of the store. This is done to aid clients who report stolen or lost jewelry to their insurance agencies.

Customers who purchase charms are welcome to join Helbig's Charm Club. When a member has purchased seven charms, the eighth charm, worth up to $7.95, is free.

From now until Christmas, Helbig Jewelers is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., weekdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays.

Thoughtful gift

Rapidly becoming a must in all well-equipped homes for quick access to information on why suddenly the house may have been plunged into darkness, is a modern battery transistor radio.

Outside power may fail. The battery operated transistor radios will operate; which suggests a thoughtful gift, especially for the older folks.

is more than twice what it was last year!
Is that bad?

No. It's good. It proves that gold is very valuable. Why shouldn't it go up just like a good piece of land goes up in value? Lots of people look for good land. Lots of people love gold jewelry. So the value rises. If you bought gold jewelry last Christmas you've already saved a lot of money. And if you buy it now you'll probably save more money. It simply stands to reason that beautiful rare things must go up in value. So here is our advice: IF YOU CAN AFFORD IT, BUY NOW! But most on how quality of gold jewelry and especially in diamonds. It's the best quality which always rises in price and value.

IF YOU GET ENGAGED THIS CHRISTMAS... HERE IS A LITTLE HELP

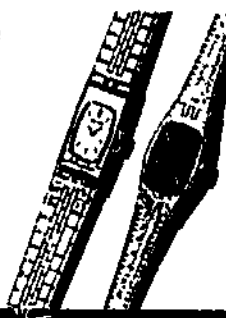

DIAMOND PRICE FACTS
Don't spend more than you can afford. A good rule to follow. Spend about a month of your salary on the engagement ring. But make sure you get the most for your money in the ring style that pleases her most.
DIAMOND BUYING FACTS
About half of all engagement rings are chosen by boy and girl together. But in many cases the young man buys the diamond alone. Or he talks it over with us first and then brings the girl in for final selection. It's up to you!
DIAMOND STYLING FACTS
Modern girls are individualists. Some want an absolutely perfect diamond even if it is smaller. Others want the largest stone possible even if it has slight flaws. Some want ultra modern, others traditional styling. These are the things to talk over with us.
COME IN! AS SOON AS POSSIBLE! We have heard so many young couples. We can help you to come to the right decision. Get your wishes and our experience to the guide. To the most wonderful Christmas of your life!

Big spenders

America's standard of living keeps going onward and upward.

Despite grudging complaints about the price of meat in particular and everything in general, Mr. and Mrs. U.S.A. continue to treat themselves well.

Before this year's Christmas trees are torn down Americans will have drawn an income of $1 trillion — that's 1,000 billions.

In spending a piece of this trillion during the holidays, more people will travel home via first-class air fare than ever before, buy twice as many sailboats, and will pass up buses on an increasing basis for taxicabs, while doing their shopping.

By the time New Year's Eve is bedded down, RCA estimates, more than eight million color television sets will be sold, a vast number of them as Christmas presents.

Cars are moving at a record number also, and while small cars pace the field, the luxury ones have reported sales up to 14 percent greater.

And way up there is the sky where people buy fur coats, sales are increasing sharply this year on top of a 15 percent rise a year ago.

FILL YOUR HOME WITH THE GLORIOUS SOUND OF MUSIC—MADE BY YOU—YOURSELF—PERSONALLY, IT'S EASY ON A YAMAHA ORGAN

Come in and see how fascinating an organ is. Do you know that when you depress an organ key — no music master or musician in the world can make it sound more beautiful than you can? That's the way an organ is. No matter how timidly or strongly you touch the key, no matter how lightly or hard you press — you'll get the same tone, and it will be the same tone, that the greatest of organists would get. What other instrument may you say this about?

Learn a few chords, a few one-finger melodies — and you're making lovely music. Of course, you can't learn without trying. You can't even know how simple it is without checking. But if in your heart you really want to play satisfying music on an organ, you can learn. And we can help you. We can start you and see that you make progress. Investigate now. Be playing music at Christmas time.

Dry cleaning firm opens men's shop

Prim Cleaners, 1425 E. Palatine Rd., Arlington Heights, has offered its dry cleaning and laundry services to the people of the area for over a quarter of a century.

Carl Hahn, owner of the cleaners, has recently opened a men's store on the premises. The shop carries name brand sportswear, featuring men's sport jackets, shirts and slacks.

During the Christmas season, Prim Cleaners invites the public to come in and get acquainted with the new diversified dry cleaners, laundry, tailors and men's store.

Prim Cleaners is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Take an ecological approach to giving

Our commercialized version of Christmas doesn't always do a lot for the environment. If you'd like to give a gift that takes a different approach and adds to the solution rather than the pollution, some following suggestions might be of help to you:

Buy a gasoline stove for campers, a size suitable for backpackers runs from ten to fifteen dollars, and eliminates the need for campfires.

Natural history field guides and exhibit format books for the various and many people or groups interested in conservation. These help to promote an appreciation of the environment. Buy a membership in an environmental organization for an interested person. Student memberships run about five to eight dollars and regular memberships in most groups are about fifteen dollars.

There are lots of gifts that don't harm the environment and many ways to contribute to the safety of the environment.

It is ecologically sound practice to avoid excessive wrappings. Some people use oversize boxes and stuff them with paper, or use layers of wrapping when one would do. You might even wrap a gift that shows a special amount of environmental awareness in old newspapers. Any use of recycled paper, for sale by many environmental groups as well as some commercial producers.

A most unusual flying machine

NEW YORK (UPI) — By 1809, Washington Irving was describing Santa as a jolly Dutch citizen looking very much like Father Knickerbocker. But the famed novelist began to wonder how Santa, on a horse, could get to all the nation's rapidly-increasing homes on Christmas Eve.

So Irving invented the familiar reindeer-drawn sleigh. And that's how Santa, a century before the Wright Brothers and their flying machine, zoomed off into the skies.

Good evergreens for use indoors

Pine, fir, juniper, yew and arborvitae are the most satisfactory narrow-leaf evergreens for indoor use.

Most pines are quite stiff, but the white pine is graceful and soft. Balsam fir, juniper and arborvitae are the most satisfactory as well as pleasingly fragrant and will keep for several months in water or through the Christmas season without water.

Spruce is not suitable for indoor decorations because it loses its needles rapidly and tends to be messy. It can, however, be used for outdoor decorations.

Many people think of the balsam fir as the traditional Christmas green. It is probably the easiest of the narrow-leaf evergreens to use. It has rich, dark green color and short nonprickly needles which it holds well, and it is excellent for table decorations.

FOR AT-HOME holiday evenings spent with friends, you can't beat this casual look modeled by Sue. The pants are a blue acrylic pleid. The casual look is topped off with a light blue acrylic shrink and a pink blouse with blue and white flowers. All from Betty's of Winnetka, upper level, Woodfield.

Put a glow in her heart with a gift of diamonds

It's the gifting season and once again Santa is busy making his rounds, looking for the bright, the spectacular, the right ways to say Merry Christmas. Since Santa is such an acknowledged authority, the Jewelry Industry Council wants to point out that most of Santa's special people receive precious packages from the jewelry store.

Sure to gladden female hearts is the glitter and glow that dazzles with diamonds, rubies, sapphires or emeralds, shimmers with silver, glories in gold, warms with all the splendid colors of semi-precious stones. A pin, a bracelet, a ring, a sumptuous necklace: these are the ways to jewel her Yule.

Particularly exceptional gifting is the jewelry set all aspartle with small diamonds. Santa knows the radiance of love's stone celebrates the season and fulfills its dreams best. He also knows small diamond designs aren't limited to a privileged few Santas.

Everyone who loves the diamond can give love's stone to his or her love this very Christmas. Because small diamonds do carry affordable price tags, Santa ties and tags them several ways for under-the-tree time: a free-form pendant; graceful, branching ring; traditional pin and earrings.

Diamond-decorated cuff links, diamond-rimmed watch, diamond-initialed ident are for that special man in every feminine Santa's life.

What about a gift of fashion that combines the sheen and thrilling variety of gold and its textures with the holiday lights display of colored stones . . . and keeps Santa's budget jolly, too? That's what gold filled jewelry does and naturally Santa quickly loads his sleigh with all the gold filled goodies he finds at the jewerery store.

And that's a lot! Ropes in all lengths and motifs and mixes of colored stone beads; classical lockets in jumbo size; Victorian pendants; rigid neckwires to dangle such suspendables as an ivory heart, a modern mobile. Button earrings clip on for gold filled style making.

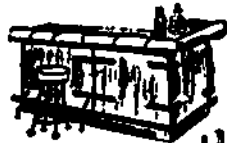

Bangle bracelets line up in a wonderland of looks meant to go to the elbow. Rings can be dainty and Victorian, modern and polished or textured, showy with lots of stones on display.

SOME ENTERTAINING GIFT IDEAS that you can take with you anywhere are offered by Zenith. Top shelf, left to right; a solid state AM-FM portable radio; and a monophonic portable solid state cassette player/recorder with microphone that locks away in the unit. Bottom shelf: monophonic portable phonograph plays anywhere on batteries, on AC indoors; and a blue denim 12-inch black-and-white TV set.

'Carry-about' entertainers -- great for on-the-go guy, gal

Your family and friends can take it with them this Christmas.

Advanced technology, including solid state devices, has made possible a world of "carry-about" entertainers — television sets, phonographs, radios, and cassette player/recorders.

The small screen 16- and 17-inch diagonal color TV sets can go from room to room. Larger screen "move-about" receivers can be placed on carts to take color TV viewing to more than one home location.

This year's black-and-white TV comes in a kaleidoscope of sizes and shapes. New designs make them fashionable in many surroundings. For example, Zenith is now offering 19-inch diagonal portables with A-line styling and a modern cantilevered base. Cabinets are grained or solid colors.

If a young member of your family yearns for a TV of his own for Christmas, a small screen portable with a 12-inch diagonal screen is a suggestion. Here, too, colorful cabinets highlight this year's designs.

There is even a four-speaker stereo phonograph that is portable. Its speaker matrix sound system gives you four dimensional sound and plays attached or separated from the main cabinet. All in all, it's a compact solid state package.

Trim-line cabinetry highlights other portable monophonic and stereophonic phonographs. There are battery-operated phonographs and radio-phonographs with recessed carry handles. These go anywhere and play anywhere — for the young "go group."

There are transistor portable radios on the market that can be carried in the shirt or hip pocket, hung from the wrist on a strap, or carried comfortably in the hand. Bright colors and crisp cabinet designs make these small radios eye-catching Christmas gifts.

Almost any man or woman on the go will be delighted with a portable cassette tape player/recorder. Battery-powered units come in compact packages useful in a schoolroom, college lecture hall, at home, in the office, or even on a mountaintop.

Things to give gourmet cooks

Any gourmet cooks on your Christmas gifts list? If so, there is a whole exciting world of accessories to give even the most discriminating chefs.

Among useful items are: Professional-type work sets, for preparing oriental dishes; a two-way bread maker kettle; souffle dishes; noodle makers; and a folding omelet pan.

Useful and decorative kitchen aids comprise other items from which to select presents. Among these are metal pan racks, a hanging peddlers' scale and multipiece wood or metal kitchen tool sets.

There are plants to please everyone on your gift list

Christmas invokes thoughts of warmth, coyness, family togetherness — home. Add to the atmosphere this year with gift selections of live plants. They give a feeling of "hominess" to any house or apartment long after the holiday season is past.

Terrariums make very good gifts. They give the recipient an indoor garden in a minimum amount of space. Growing conditions inside a terrarium are ideal; so care is also minimal. They are available in all sizes and shapes, something to suit everyone's fancy and pocketbook. Have an interesting container at home? Fill it yourself.

At Schmitt Nursery in Prospect Heights, you will find a large selection of individual plants and suitable containers, as well as already made terrariums. Someone there will be happy to help you with your plant selections and give you planting assistance.

Holiday things you can make

Turn plastic drink-cup covers into charming decorations: cut off the rims, spread glue generously on both sides to hold glitter, beads, buttons.

Make papier mache tree ornaments; soak shredded newspaper in water; drain, then mix in glue. Mold ornaments and let dry, then paint.

Styrofoam balls make interesting tree ornaments when decorated with gift-wrap ribbon, trim, sequins and beads in colorful, imaginative patterns.

FROM THE WORLD-FAMOUS Lladro studios in Spain come a variety of hand-made porcelain sculptures. The sculpture above is representative of the time-honored Iberian skill and quality that goes into each Lladro piece. They are now being shown at Frederick International Jewelers, Mount Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect.

Hanging baskets are always welcome. They come with various plants, from ivy of all types to wandering Jew and ferns. They fit beautifully in any room. You may even want to treat yourself to one of these.

There is a plant for everyone on your shopping list, even children. They are especially intrigued with cacti. In addition to the potted poinsettias associated with the Christmas season, consider other varieties. How about a lush tropical palm, Norfolk Island pine, schefflera or rubber tree? They enhance the home or office and become even more beautiful and valuable in months and years to come.

Terrariums: popular gifts

APOPKA, Fla. (UPI) —Terrariums, which are popular Christmas gift items, originated as containers for shipping thousands of tea plants from China to India during the Victorian era. Their development is credited to Nathaniel Ward, who invented them after he set out to study a sphinx moth crissalis hatching in a covered jar.

Ward's discovery launched the tea industry, says John's Nurseries, a leading foliage plant grower here. The nurseries have introduced a six-inch diameter terrarium set that includes specially grown plants matched in size and colors with scientifically blended soil.

ONE WAY TO encourage verbalization, dexterity and imagination in children is with the "Grover" Hand Puppet, part of the new Sesame Street line by Child Horizons, Inc.

Nursery offers advice on live tree transplant

A living Christmas tree is a joy for the holiday, and when planted outdoors, will give your home years of landscape beauty. Many families have one each year, and have lasting memories of happy holidays. It's a wonderful family tradition.

Klehm Nursery in Arlington Heights offers these easy steps to assure transplanting success.

First, select the location where you will plant the tree. Well before the ground freezes dig a hole at least 24 inches deep and about 30 inches wide. Store the removed soil where it will remain dry and free from freezing. Line the hole with mulch such as hay, straw, leaves or grass clippings. This will prevent excess moisture and freeze-up.

Leave the dormant tree in its easy to carry container while using indoors. The tree should not be kept indoors for more than five to seven days. A longer period may cause the tree to break dormancy and start the flow of sap. This would cause transplant shock when planting it outdoors. At the end of the five to seven day period move the tree to a cool garage, porch or protected nook to allow it to become acclimated to the cold. It should remain there for ten or 12 days.

Then, weather permitting, remove the mulching material from the pre-dug hole and set in the tree at the proper level. Replace the soil that had been removed and stored, water lightly to settle the soil. Spraying with Wilt Pruf will help to retard water evaporation.

Enjoy the days of Christmas past at enchanting Greenfield Village

The spirit of Christmas is alive and well in the enchanting little village of Greenfield in Dearborn, Mich.

Greenfield Village is the home of nearly 100 historic buildings moved from all sections of the country and restored to appear exactly as they did during the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries.

Visitors to the Village are free to wander through the 260 acres of American history. A walking tour of the village will take you to the days of Christmas past, with glimpses of the manner in which earlier Americans observed the holiday season. If you wish, for a nominal charge, you can take a sleigh or carriage ride from the Gatehouse to the Town Hall on the Village Green.

On the tour there are many points of interest you won't want to miss.

In the village is Henry Ford's birthplace. You'll know you've arrived when you see the American Flag-decorated Christmas tree.

When you come up to Sarah Jordan's Boarding House Christmas greetings from Thomas Edison welcome you. Delightful carols by the Edison concert band are heard through the gem portable wax cylinder phonograph.

At the Plympton house, the 17th century home of an indentured servant and his family, you will see and smell bread being baked on the stone hearth.

Costwold Forge is where the village blacksmith used to shape wrought iron objects on the anvil. Take a moment to see this by-gone craft reenacted.

Harpichord, soprano and alto recorders recreate the musical Christmas mood of the 18th century at the Secretary Pearson House.

The Town Hall is a good place to warm up before continuing your tour of Greenfield Village. Here you are welcome to enjoy complimentary hot spiced cider and cookies.

The Plymouth Carding Mill offers a fascinating demonstration of the spinning and weaving crafts.

The Noah Webster House serves as a dwelling for a Christmas tree decorated with glass balls and candles in tin holders, patterned after the earliest known illustration of a Christmas tree in America (1836).

In the farm kitchen of the Edison Homestead you'll see a taffy cooking and pulling demonstration and hear recorded Christmas carols accompanied by the dulcimer, a popular 18th century string instrument.

The music you'll hear in poet Robert Frost's Ann Arbor home is a concert of harp music written in the early 19th century. The dining room table is set for the traditional New Year's entertaining.

At the Swiss Chalet a silversmith demonstrates his craft. This building served as both home and shop for the silversmith.

When you enter the Stephen Foster Birthplace you will smell the delicious aroma of mincemeat tarts and pies cooking in the kitchen.

Perhaps symbolic of Christian Christmas in New England, the Martha-Mary Chapel features carillon chimes played from the steeple. From time to time, school and church choir groups will sing in the chancel.

For food and a short rest, stop at the Clinton Inn for a luncheon visit. If it's Christmas presents you are looking for, the Waterford General Store offers a nostalgic setting for you to do your shopping in.

Adjacent to Greenfield Village is the Henry Ford Museum, occupying 14 acres. The three main displays at the Museum are The Fine Arts Galleries, displaying American decorative arts; The Mechanical Arts Hall, relating the development of America's mechanical arts with full-sized locomotives, modern autos, historic planes and other earlier modes of transportation; and The Street of Early America Shops, recreating in 14 shops the work of craftsmen who used hand tools.

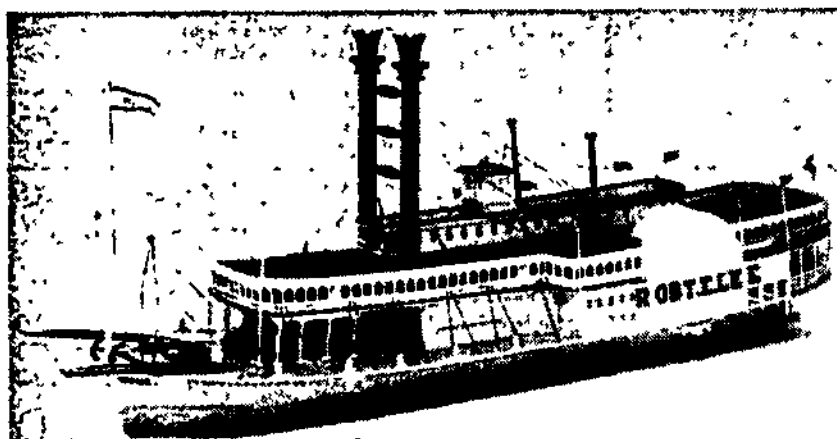

During the Christmas season the Street of Shops holds a working craft exhibit, serving as outstanding entertainment for the entire family. To name just a few of the craft and home art demonstrations, there are demonstrations in glass blowing, pewter casting, printing, doll making, herb potpourri, wreath making and flower arranging and pottery making.

Enhancing these activities are the elegant examples of period decorations throughout the Decorative Art Galleries. In the Musical Instrument exhibit area, Mini-Christmas concerts are performed daily from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

The Greenfield Village Players also present a special Christmas offering on stage in the Museum Theatre. The week before Christmas, morning performances are limited to school children in reserved, organized groups. During the week after Christmas, general audience performances are at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the Museum Theatre box office on a non-reserved basis.

The Museum and Village are open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and until 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. They are closed on Christmas and New Years Day. Admission to each attraction is $2.50 for adults, $1.00 for ages six to 14, and youngsters under six are admitted free.

YOU CAN RECREATE the beauty of the Robert E. Lee, pride of the Steamboats, with this model from Revell. Lee is resplendent with intricate railings and carvings, wrought iron funnel decorations, five engraved decks; movable paddle wheels and rudder, colorful flags, decals and much more.

Give a toast to Christmas

Is it nostalgia, or the approaching bi-centennial? It's hard to pin down the reason behind the growing affection for traditions and traditional styling.

Whatever the reason, Christmas is a perfect time to re-discover the customs and crafts of our heritage.

The tradition of greeting the Christmas season with a "wassail" — or toast to good health — actually dates back to the Middle Ages.

In 16th century England, it became the fashion to add toasted bread to drinks, and later on to do so in honor of a person or sentiment. By the end of the 16th Century, the word "toast" took on the meaning of the salute.

While a wassail is a type of toast — a toast to good health — the word "wassail" has come to signify not only the toast, but the drink itself and the container in which the drink is served.

When "wassailing" spread to the new world, the wassail bowl and goblets were usually of pewter — with good reason. Pewter was readily available, easy to care for (it didn't tarnish), and was of simple, yet handsome appearance.

Today, the "wassail" is usually a spiced ale or cider rather than a hard liquor.

Whatever the variations, a combination of the two traditions — wassailing and pewter — remains a charming reminder of our nation's roots and cherished heritage.

JACK WINTERS fashions a Christmas gift that makes a great way to look at the office . . . or for casual daily living. Monotone plaids to mix or match in the palest of ivories and camel are available at Lorraine-Anne Shop, downtown Arlington Heights.

New uses for old trees

New uses are being found for the trees we decorate with tinsel, lights and ornaments.

Many people today are buying live trees and replanting them, others are donating them to parks in their area. Some who buy cut trees recycle them into mulch after the holiday season is over.

In most cases, however, Christmas trees will wind up burned in municipal incinerators or buried in refuse dumps. There are many people who are unaware of recycling alternatives or because of locations, unable to use the recycling alternatives that do exist.

For environmentally minded homeowners, the trend seems to be toward live Christmas trees. According to nurserymen, the sale of live Christmas trees is increasing across the country. People are beginning to realize that any tree cut off at the base can be purchased alive. Garden centers report that there's a big trend in this direction.

Let us put some green into your Christmas shopping . . .

with CREDIT RESERVE CHECKING

It happens . . . especially at Christmastime . . . The balance in your checking account isn't sufficient to cover the cost of your Christmas shopping. Where will you get the money?

1. You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account - CRC — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

2. A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

3. You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

COLORFUL LITTLE PEOPLE Pails make great Christmas gifts, as well as unusual gift packages. Children can use the 16-inch high utility containers for hundreds of storage uses. From Spiegel Industries Corp., a division of Beatrice Foods Co.

Please young 'scientists' with these gift classics

NEW YORK (UPI) — That young person on your gift list leans to things scientific? There are lots of choices in toyland.

For children ages six to 12 there is a magnetic science kit from Electronic Data Controls Corp. "The How and Why of Magnets and Magnetism" includes do-it-yourself experiments.

Included are materials to build an electromagnet, a 40-pound bar magnet, plus an assortment of magnets and magnetic materials with detailed experiments and directions.

It's hard to go wrong with the science gift classics — such things as: engine kits, anatomical kits, botany science kits, visible dog and horse kits, insect and reptile kits, nuclear submarine kits, aircraft carrier kits.

The kits from Renwal, a division of The Learning Aids Group Inc., also include the visible auto chassis. The most famous of these kits are the visible man and the visible woman.

Long considered one of the finest and most popular hobby kits ever devised, the visible man owes his perennial popularity to faithful detailing. At least one model of the "man" can be found in most schools.

Another good kit is one called The Senses. Actually it is five assembly kits in one: two transparent eyes and the muscles that move them, two ears, showing details of the inner ear, and a model that shows the tongue and the organs of the throat.

Secrets of plant life are revealed to the student in a botany science kit that shows in large detail the many layers of cells which manufacture the food needed by the plant.

Shops take extra measures to guard against shoplifting

'Tis the season to be jolly and Christmas is coming but for merchants 'tis the season to be wary.

As every store owner knows, the throngs of shoppers who make Christmastime profitable are accompanied by increased numbers of shoplifters.

Police departments clearly indicate that shoplifting is a mushrooming crime problem that becomes particularly acute as Christmas nears.

A theft or attempted theft is reported as shoplifting only if it is actually observed. More often than not, an arrest results. Police officials and merchants attribute the rise in "self-service" stores and to the view of a seemingly number of people that stealing from a business is less wrong than stealing from a person. "There's a little larceny in everybody, and "self-service" stores bring out the worst of it."

As Christmas approaches, the value of shoplifted merchandise rises much more steeply than does the actual number of reported shopliftings.

A variety of measures are taken to discourage shoplifters. Some stores employ uniformed guards to scare off would-be shoplifters. In any event, shoplifting, and providing security have become a "major expense" for many store owners.

Games offer economical way to fill leisure time

With the costs of leisure time activities such as movies, sporting events, plays and concerts continuing to skyrocket, it is easy to see why games provide more hours of enjoyment per dollar spent than any other family activity.

Even television, which rarely offers a program that can be enjoyed by all members of the family, must take a back seat. And books, whose value in terms of opening new vistas of knowledge and entertainment is certainly great, are usually read alone and only once.

Perhaps one of the most important aspects of a game is its role as a "unifier," bringing the family together to communicate and interact within the context of a mutually enjoyable endeavor.

This Christmas there is a bumper crop of new family games to augment those that are stored in closets all over America, with boards broken, pieces missing and rules forgotten or lost.

Games players who rejoice in winning a round of Monopoly should be delighted with something called "Billionaire." If you accept the premise that being a millionaire is really passe these days, then this "empire building board game" is for you.

Players compete to corner the markets on oil, aerospace and other industries ranging in value from $20 million to $250 million. "Billionaire" is a prime example of another unique aspect of a game; it's different every time you play it.

Although not new, the classic detective game, "Clue," has been redesigned this year with a new board, new playing pieces and new cards. The players take the roles of detectives, hunting for the victim, weapons and clues. The object is to deduce who did it, with what and where.

After all the mind exercise from "Billionaire" and "Clue," the family can limber up with some body movements with a new action game called "Phil and Tony Esposito's Action Hockey." You don't have to be a hockey buff to enjoy this fast-paced number.

The game can be played by as many as four at a time, in doubles fashion. The game is an enclosed, miniature hockey rink; complete with two teams, goals and puck — and you work the magnetic controls and try to score points for your team.

Believe it or not, there's a game called "Waterworks," billed as the "leaky pipe card game." The object is to be the first to complete a pipeline from spigot to spout using cards showing various sections of pipe. It sounds easy until you learn that there are "leaky pipe" cards that can be used by players to sabotage the efforts of their opponents.

Tycoons, detectives, hockey players, plumbers — these are only a few of the worlds the family can enter by simply opening a game box.

WISE SANTAS STOCK UP HERE

LACY LUCY is a do-it-yourself doll for preschoolers from ages four to seven. New from Child Guidance Toys, this doll has all the educational value of sewing cards, plus a real, soft doll to play with afterwards. It consists of two soft, flexible plastic parts that fit together over a die-cut foam piece and two long laces to "sew up" this adorable doll.

Festive holiday plants become blooming gifts

Holidays give florists shops an extra colorful glow.

With the increased number of plants available, now is the time to add a few "lowering varieties to festive decorating schemes, and to place gift orders.

Fruit plants such as cherry and pepper can enhance any indoor garden. They prefer a cool temperature, so choose the proper spot in the house for them.

One way to keep them comfortable is to select them in clay containers, which keep plant roots cooler.

The porous pot wall serves as an air-conditioning system. As moisture is released through pot walls, the soil inside stays cooler than the surrounding air.

Old standbys are around, too. The cyclamen, with its butterfly-like blossoms in pastel shades or deep reds, is something every houseplant enthusiast deserves.

If Santa doesn't bring a cyclamen, consider buying one.

If cyclamen is watered daily — whenever the topsoil in the clay pot feels dry — and kept in a cool atmosphere, every bud will open and more will continue to pop up.

Hostess gift for the holidays might be the faithful chrysanthemum. Mums bloom for a long time if watered on a regular basis.

Not only bright red and white poinsettias, but also exquisite pinks are available.

Warm water is the rule for this plant, and it must be kept out of drafts and set back from cold windows.

Another good idea is removing foil or other wrappings from clay pots. The wraps can interfere with drainage.

IT'S MAINLY MEANT to be a toy for toys, books, etc. or even soda pop and ice for a child's party. Molded of polyethylene for durability and strength.

ONE OF THE AREAS most popular places to find the Unusual is The Pink Peony at Klehm's Nursery in Arlington Heights. This is a house packed with authentic antiques, collectibles and memorabilia. Some of the items that have attracted special attention are the cut glass and the marble top furniture.

HANDMADE MEXICAN furniture and accessories make welcome gifts for the home. Pier I Imports, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, feature furniture made as in the Spanish Co-

Woodfield Bank extends hours

Woodfield Bank at Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg announces its newly extended drive-in banking hours from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. The drive-in location, with six drive-in lanes, will be open on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

In addition, for holiday shopping convenience from now until Dec. 30, the drive-in location will be open from noon to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Customers can also take advantage of a checking account free of any service charges for a year by opening and maintaining for the same period a savings account of $100 or more or by adding $100 to an existing account.

Toys galore!

NEW YORK (UPI) — Santa's helpers making playthings for under the nation's Christmas trees expect the manufacturers value of toys shipped in 1973 to be ten percent ahead of the 1972 figure.

The figure, $2.6 billion, includes also shipments of games and Christmas decorations. The value of toys shipped has more than doubled in 10 years. In 1962, a comparable figure was $1.1 billion.

Building a tiny Christmas tree

A giant pine cone can be turned into the world's smallest Christmas tree. Just mount an eight to 12 inch pine cone on a piece of plastic foam, decorate as you would a tree but with sequins and glitter glued on the cone edges. Top off with a star.

Christmas customs

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly" is a traditional refrain in English and American homes, but in Spain and Italy, householders decorate with flowers instead of evergreens at Christmas time.

The Christmas tree, popular throughout the United States and Northern Europe, the creche, or manger scene usually replaces it.

In Sicily, many families use Christmas trees, but they decorate them with apples and oranges instead of tinsel. This carries out an old tradition that all the trees bore fruit when Christ was born.

Prune holly trees before Christmas

By a very nice coincidence, one of the best times of the year to do the pruning on holly trees is just before Christmas. Pruning helps rather than hurts, if it is done right.

When pruning American holly for Christmas, the pruning should be distributed over the entire tree. Keep in mind the typical cone-shaped form of the tree and try to maintain it.

If a twig is cut back to a branch or a branch is cut back to the trunk, no new twig or branch will start at that point, but if you cut back to a bud or if a stub is left, new growth will develop. Tree paint isn't necessary for small wounds.

Use sharp tools for pruning holly. Never break off a branch. The direction in which holly buds point is the direction in which new shoots will grow. By pruning back to the proper bud, the direction of the branch can be controlled and unsightly gaps can be filled in.

Holly should be cut the day before it is used and the stems should stand in fresh water as long as possible, because the dry air in the room causes the leaves to slowly lose color and drop. It should look good for several days or under the best condition for several weeks.

Rose bowl oldest

Today there are numerous "bowls," and if one wishes to be can start the day and end the evening watching champions compete.

It is estimated that over a million and a half watch the Rose Bowl game and their parade. This football game between eastern and western teams was instituted in 1916 and has become a permanent feature on New Year's Day.

750,000 expected to visit 1973 Pageant of Peace

The National Christmas Tree was permanently planted on the Ellipse Thursday, October 11 at noon, in preparation for the 1973 Pageant of Peace.

Fifty-seven smaller trees, representing each state and territory in the Union have been placed to form the traditional "Pathway of Peace."

The Christmas Pageant of Peace formally begins the evening of December 14 and runs daily through January 1, 1974.

Selection of a living tree, according to Ronald H. Walker, Director of the National Park Service, affirms the agency's environmental role and the desire of a great many Americans that the cutting of a mature tree is not in the public interest for a short-term display.

A donation of the National Arborist Association, the new living tree is a 42-foot-high Colorado blue spruce, from the foothills near Shickshimy, Pennsylvania.

Forty-years-old, the tree will be the focal point of the Pageant, which also features Santa Claus and his reindeer from the National Zoo; a burning Yule log; daily musical entertainment by bands and choirs from across the country; and arts and crafts exhibitions by school groups and senior citizens from the local community.

Representatives of the Christmas Pageant of Peace, Inc., committee forecast an estimated 750,000 visitors to this year's event, topping the previous record of a half million for 1972.

First carols were sung in the second century

Sounds in December heard on every street corner and over every radio station in the land make it abundantly clear that carolling is as much a part of Christmas as the traditional tree, the exchanging of gifts and Santa Claus himself.

Carolling is nearly as old as Christmas itself since it was the second century that the Bishop of Rome urged his people to "sing in celebration of the birth of our Lord".

However, St. Francis of Assisi, who lived in the 13th century, is regarded as the father of carolling as we know it today. St. Francis of Assisi, other clergymen and perhaps court musicians composed carols that told of the birth of Christ and the joy that event brought to the world.

Carolling fell into disrepute in the 17th century. In spite of their religious overtones the singing of carols was forbidden by the English Puritans. Those who later colonized America carried that disapproval with them.

It wasn't until Restoration in 1660 that carolling was permitted again by the Puritans and the custom slowly revived in England and this country as well.

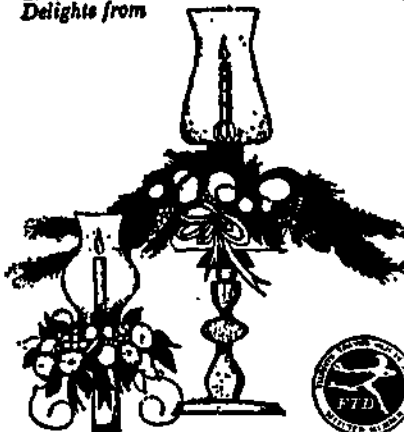

The most familiar of the carols we sing today were composed in the 18th and 19th centuries. In 1703 — "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks", in 1708 "Joy To The World", in 1739 "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing", in 1818 "Silent Night", and in 1968 "Little Town of Bethlehem".

INEXPENSIVE AND entertaining stocking stuffers include the hundreds of Whitman and Golden Items from the Western Publishing Company, Inc. Books for all ages, doll-making kits, card games and puzzles are just a few of the surprises children will find in their Christmas stockings.

Christmas gifts: an old tradition

Like greetings, gifts are synonymous with Christmas, as part of a custom that probably has its beginning in the Wise Men's presentation of gold, frankincense and myrrh to the Christ Child.

Some researchers trace the gift-giving tradition to even earlier, pre-Christian times. During pagan holidays observed at about the same time as the modern Christmas, ancient Romans and Britons exchanged gifts in token of the season.

SAFTEE DART GAME, from Cadaco, Inc. is a unique new concept in a dart game. It is completely safe for children, adults, walls and furniture. Foam padded darts, weighted for accuracy stick to the board like magic.

Don't let your holiday be spoiled by thieves

The danger that your holiday will be spoiled by a thief is increased because there is usually more to be stolen and better opportunities for the burglar to ply his trade. Seasonal visiting, parties, last minute shopping and fewer daylight hours all leave the home wide open for burglary.

Deterrents to burglars during the holidays are just as effective at any other time of year. Make the home look occupied, even when it isn't. Leave a light burning and don't allow home deliveries to pile up. Provide good locks. They won't guarantee a house won't be entered, but they do provide enough of an irritant to make thieves look for easier victims.

Keep valuables out of sight. Many families leave unwrapped gifts under the tree after they are opened, giving the burglar a chance to find what's worth stealing. Packages left in a car should be left in the locked trunk.

Steps to protect homes include providing plenty of light. Shadows give thieves a place to work.

Great gift idea!

Shoot!

What is I.I.D.?

The Illinois Institute of Diving Inc. is the largest scuba instructional service in the mid-west. It is multi-certified offering Professional Association of Diving Instructors (PADI), National Association of Underwater Instructors (N.A.U.I.) and YMCA certifications. The Institute teaches diving 52 weeks a year at 40 locations throughout Illinois, Wisconsin, and Florida from college credit to community programs for all ages and specialty courses for women only, non-swimmers, poor swimmers, cave diving, photography, advanced, senior, divemaster, assistant instructor, and travel courses throughout the seven seas. Scuba diving is a safe sport. The factors contributing to its safety are good instruction and proper training, adequate open water experience under a supervised environment, and organized diving groups.

BIDS YOU "WELCOME"
Come with us from the evening of December 25 to January 2, 1974 and bubble in the new year underwater. You'll spend a wet 8 days in the High Springs and Brandford areas diving in a new UNDERWATER ENVIRONMENT of grottoes, shipwrecks, sponges, springs, caves with progressively deeper penetrations, and river drifts leading up to traverses. This and scuba diving is a challenge you may want to explore. Whether you're interested in the exercise it affords the spoken treasure it can help you find, or the new people and environment to which it will introduce, you will not find the sport disappointing. Scuba diving is every bit as exciting as it sounds. Just ask a diver!

Santa Claus, Indiana greets thousands yearly

The operator of a Santa Claus employment service says Santa Claus standards are higher each year.

There are black Santas, bilingual Santas and Santas of all sizes and shapes. This was stated by an agency that has placed more than four hundred Santas around the country over the years.

A FUTURE ASTRONAUT tries out the moon-roving capabilities of the ERV (Environmental Research Vehicle), a new Tonka toy whose reciprocating wheels move with "double-jointed" action.

In an average day Santa may interview 1200 children. For the average $3 an hour they are paid, the fat, jolly gents that are hired are expected to work six days a week; avoid smoking and drinking like the plague; roll out the Santa spiel endlessly — and prepare for the worst.

College-age men make the best Santas because they get along best with children and can take the wear and tear. Santas are taught to handle children like fragile china, and to use the word 'folks' instead of mother or father, because so many children don't live with their original parents.

It's never too late to begin a diary

There are lots of good resolutions that could (and should) be made without waiting for the official beginning of a new year. There's one that's peculiarly suited to Jan. 1, and this is the year to make and keep it.

Buy a diary and write something in it every single day. Also, encourage children to form the happy habit of diary keeping.

The time to start this, is on the first day of January, because that's when calendars and diaries begin.

One nice thing about diary keeping is that it's never too late to start. You can begin when you're eight or eighty.

Cooking Christmas dinner fireside

This Christmas try something a little different for the traditional family meal. Gather the family around hearthside and charcoal grill part of the meal right in the fireplace. It makes an especially warm and cozy gathering for the smaller family.

The techniques for charcoal cookery in the fireplace are simple and let you enjoy the delicious flavor of foods cooked over charcoal briquets all year around.

Special charcoal grills are manufactured for use in the fireplace — for instance, one by Structo. The grill and firebox or pan are attached to a pole that adjusts to fit in the fireplace opening. But any of the smaller grills that will fit in your fireplace may be used including hibachis, the smaller models of the kettle cookers and the portable grills.

Fireplace chefs would do well to note a few tips from the experts at the Charcoal Briquet Institute. Adequate ventilation is a must for all charcoal grilling, so make sure the fireplace flue or draft is open and the smoke goes up the chimney.

To light the briquets, use either a liquid or solid starter or an electric type starter. Never use gasoline or kerosene. After lighting the charcoal never remove it from the fireplace. When you're finished grilling either let the coals burn out in the grill firebox or empty the live coals out in the fireplace to use as a base for starting a wood fire.

For the fireside Christmas dinner, try a turkey breast, a nice change from a whole turkey. Most turkey breasts are found in the frozen meat section of the supermarket and range in size from three to ten pounds. For the larger eight-ten pound breast, simply fillet it or remove it from the breast bone on either side.

The boned breast is wrapped in bacon and grilled very slowly over a bed of coals. The key to juicy, tender turkey breast is to grill it slowly. If there is room, while the turkey is cooking, do double duty with the lighted briquets and cook the squash too. Place the whole squash right on the coals and let them cook, turning often, and the flavor is simply delicious.

Grilled Turkey Breast (Makes 8 to 10 servings)

1 turkey breast, about 8 pounds

Salt and pepper

½ pound sliced bacon

Cut through skin along both sides of the breast bone and remove breast meat. Follow contour of carcass, taking off as much meat as possible in two large pieces. (Slimmer bone in water with seasonings and use for soup stock, gravies, etc.)

Sprinkle each piece of turkey with salt and pepper. Wrap bacon strips around each piece and secure bacon with skewers.

Grill about eight inches from low coals for one hour. Turn occasionally with tongs. Turkey is done when lightly browned and tender. Check for doneness by cutting a small slit in largest part of meat.

Note: Turkey breasts vary in size from about three pounds to 12 pounds. For a small turkey breast (under four pounds) crack breast bone, flatten meat and grill in one piece. Time will vary with the size and thickness of the breast.

If using a large frozen turkey breast which has been thawed, cook both breast pieces. Leftover cooked turkey may be served cold for sandwiches, used in casseroles or wrapped tightly and refrozen.

Different brands of charcoal give off varying degrees of heat. To test the temperature of a charcoal briquet fire, it is recommended that you cautiously hold your hand, palm side down, just above the grill. Judge temperature by number of seconds hands can be kept in position. For this recipe a low temperature is desired. Your hand should be kept in position for five seconds.

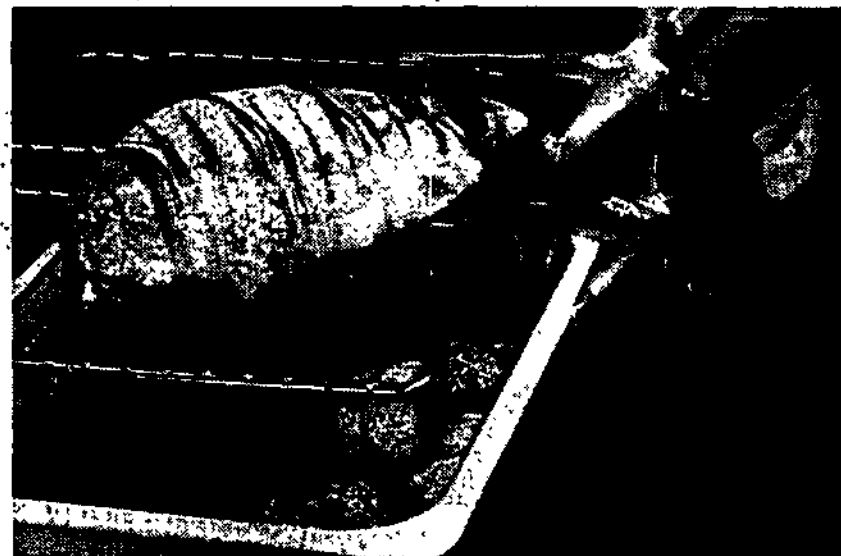

To lower temperature of charcoal fire, raise grill or separate coals. To raise temperature tap the outer gray layer from coals and push coals closer together. If more coals are needed, add them to outer edge of hot coals.

Ember Roasted Acorn Squash

Place acorn squash in coals, leaving a few briquets to surround each. Turn frequently with tongs until fork tender, about 1 hour, 15 minutes.

When cooked, remove from coals; cut in half and remove seeds. Serve immediately with butter, salt and pepper. About one tablespoon of maple syrup may be added to each squash half. Allow one acorn squash for two servings.

HAVE CHRISTMAS DINNER by your fireside with a charcoal grilled turkey breast and ember-roasted acorn squash. Use any small, portable grill in a well ventilated fireplace and enjoy the good flavor of foods cooked over charcoal year 'round.

Choose holiday hair-do with easy care qualities

The way you look is certainly important all year 'round and it's especially important during the holiday season with the additional rounds of parties and festivities. Your hair, the way it looks and feels, plays an important part in the way you think you look. So you'll want to make sure it gets the best possible attention, without spending hours taking care of it.

Selecting the right shampoo for your type of hair plays an important role in the way it looks and so does the hair style you select. Choose one that flatters your face, and that's easy to take care of between hair cuts.

One of the important things in choosing a hair style is to select one that is versatile enough to look good whether you're dressed in jeans or ready to go to a formal party.

Whatever style you choose you'll want to be able to wash, set and dry it without spending hours taking care of it. As part of your hair care routine, select a dryer that will give you fast, comfortable drying time.

A new super speed hair dryer from General Electric will give you comfortable, fast-drying time and it's designed to accommodate those jumbo hair rollers. The touch tilt hood is adjustable so you can read, write letters, manicure your nails, or even watch television in comfort.

The remote heat control is right at your fingertips so you can easily adjust it to the desired setting. The right combination of volume, air speed and hood shape, combined with your temperature control selector, add up to help get you out from under as quickly as possible so you can enjoy the fun of the holiday season and other year 'round social activities.

GIFTS THAT KEEP living all year 'round are sure to be appreciated by everyone on your gift list. One such gift is the Aztec Sports Kit by Thermos that stylishly carries meal for two — which makes it an ideal companion for every leisure living activity.

Sport kit makes smart gift for diner-on-the-go

Compact, complete and an easy traveler are the terms that best describe gifts for people on the go. With spiraling food prices, more and more people are carrying food and beverages wherever they go.

One of the easiest and most convenient ways is in a compact kit that contains everything needed for carrying a lunch for two. Insulated Sports Kits by Thermos, for example, come in a variety of colors and styles, all complete with wide neck and standard vacuum bottles for keeping food and beverages hot or cold, and covered containers for sandwiches, salads, relishes or desserts.

Since the carrying case is insulated, it helps maintain the temperature of everything inside.

These vinyl kits come in a variety of styles and vacuum bottle combinations ranging from solid colors and woodgrain motifs to colorful plaids.

Whether traveling, boating, camping, attending a sporting event, picnicking or going to the beach, outing kits are perfect gifts and ideal companions for budget-conscious people on the go.

Good advice for safe play

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six tips for mothers who want safe toy play:

- Think before you buy — at Christmas or anytime. Don't impulse buy.
- Read and keep informed of developments in toy safety.
- Teach your child proper safe play with toys. Set good examples.
- Supervise toy play according to the situation. Consider the child's age, personality, surroundings and experience.
- Check the broken toys. Repair or discard them.
- Protect the young child from the potentially dangerous toys of the older child.

Invite friends in for eggnog

The eggnog party is especially traditional for New Year's Day, and a welcome treat all through the winter season. One thing about an eggnog party — you don't have to worry about what to have to drink. Your guests are coming for the eggnog and you can expend all your efforts to making it as lush as your taste dictates. A good eggnog tastes even better when accompanied by sandwiches with a zingy taste.

Eggnog, it has been said, was probably originated by some inspired English physician or housewife as a builder-upper for frail anemic children. It is delicious as well as filling and strengthens, and it is no wonder that it emerged from the nursery into the social scene (with the addition of bourbon and other liquors) as an English holiday drink.

Carving know-how

The first rule of carving to remember is that all meat has grain. Meat grain may be best visualized as bunches of tiny, closely-grouped tubes, each brimming with savory juices. When the meat is cut with the grain, the slices will consist of these tubes, side-by-side — in other words, chewy or tough.

When meat is cut across the grain, the slices are made up of short lengths of these tubes standing end on end — tender and holding all their natural juices.

Make sure donations go to worthwhile charities

Many requests from charitable organizations will soon begin asking you to give "in the Christmas spirit." Most requests come from worthwhile organizations but there are still questionable groups trying to take advantage of your generosity.

Keep in mind the following pointers when you're asked to give this holiday season — as well as the months ahead:

Know if you're buying or contributing. Often, charitable organizations will ask you to buy an item — a box of greeting cards, neckties, light bulbs — as a contribution. According to federal tax laws you can only deduct from your income tax that portion of the contribution that is not in payment for an item or service.

Know your rights. If an organization sends you an item by mail requesting that you buy it as a charitable contribution, you can: Keep the item without paying for it (under federal law, anything that is sent to you by mail is considered a gift; or keep it and send a donation in any amount you choose. If you decide not to contribute, you are under no obligation to return the item, regardless of the instructions accompanying it.

Don't give until you know the facts. If you have doubts about a certain organization, don't hesitate to question the solicitor or to write to the national headquarters and ask for information. A reputable charity will answer you. For information on a local organization or group, check with your local Chamber of Commerce or Better Business Bureau.

Get a receipt. This is important when money is being collected door-to-door. Unless you pay by check, a receipt will be your only record of the contribution.

Question telephone solicitors. A very common method for obtaining contributions is over the telephone. If you are contacted by someone who says he represents a charitable group, first ask if the organization is non-profit and request the name and address of its headquarters.

THERE ARE "very special" gift items for you and your home at Something Special in downtown Arlington Heights — solid brass accessories, Delft and Imerli pieces, unusual furniture, antiques and reproductions.

Window trimmings are easy to make

Shades of Santa — or a bowlful of mistletoe or a cherry snowman are attractive and fun-to-make window decorations.

You'll need a regular shade, some glue, colorful pieces of felt and shiny paper, buttons, tinsel, cotton, a scissors and some imagination.

Children, toddler to teen-ager can participate.

Here are some directions to get you started:

Cut a jolly Santa out of red felt, with buttons for eyes, shiny black paper for a belt, and snowy white cotton for a beard.

For mistletoe use green felt or colored paper with red buttons for berries. Brown or gold felt trimmed with tinsel can be the bowl.

Paste these decorative ideas or any other motif on the window shade. It gives a festive look at night. In the daytime the shades roll up as usual for the holiday sun to shine in.

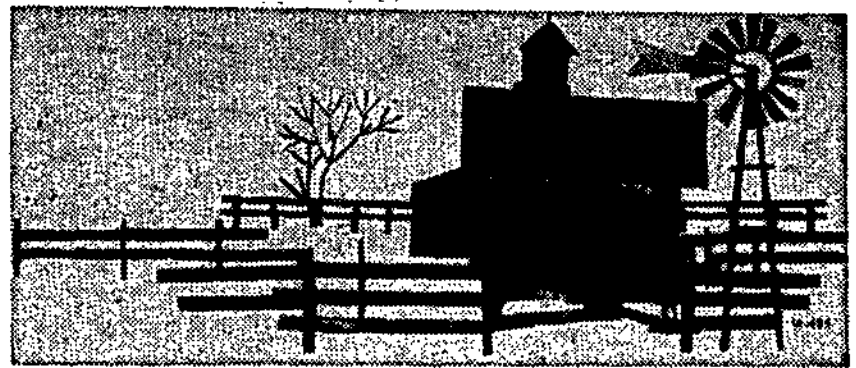

SIT'N SPIN by Konner is a new, small space adaptation of the classic merry-go-round for in-home enjoyment by children from 1½ to 4½. It stays firmly in place while the child propels himself around at whatever speed he chooses.

Collector plates make handsome Christmas gifts

Buying a limited edition plate is like buying stock. In future years, some editions will go up in price, while others may go down.

The famous Danish Christmas plates were the first limited edition plates that have become more valuable each year. Part of the reason is because the series has continued over fifty years and many collectors want to complete a set.

Collector plates should be purchased for a reason — because you like them. The investment potential should be a minor attraction.

DRESSY BESSY AND Dapper Dan are soft, cuddly learn-how to dress dolls that little ones will love and cherish long after they've mastered the intricacies of clothing closing. These huggable little dolls are made by Playskool.

Christmastime welcomes a variety of new dolls

For all the "little persons" in your house here's a rundown on the new dolls being offered this Christmas. Saucy, from Mattel, makes facial gestures. "Real little girls' expressions go from grinning glee to a foreboding frown in a matter of seconds — all reflected in a cute, pert, sassy and sweet face," said a Mattel representative. "Like real 'little girls,' a wink, blink, smile, frown, yawn, pout and grin are just a few of the expressions that can appear on the face of Saucy."

The facial expression of Saucy involve both eye and mouth movements that are "comparable to the real expressions of little girls" everywhere, say the Mattel people.

The face of this doll comes alive as the child moves the doll's left arm. With each turn, her face will reflect moods from happy to sad. To make the little person playing with her giggle, Saucy will cross her eyes.

There also are bean dolls. These apparently are unisex. They are called Blitty Bean, Puppet Punky and Puffen. Soft, cuddly, washable. A child's hand inserted in Punky or Puffen can give the puppets lifelike animation — male or female.

Shindana Toys, a division of Operation Bootstrap in Los Angeles, Calif., is a "new" toy company that has a dual purpose. From its conception in the minds of black men who wanted to rebuild after the Watts riots of half a decade ago, it has been superb in the development of toys that help children grow in imagination. The first dolls were the first authentic ones for black children.

The newest Shindana talking doll repeats the company's motto — "Learn, Baby, Learn." Profits from Shindana go into a child development center.

The Shindana dolls include: Rhonda. "This lovable black rag doll is colorfully dressed in the latest fashion — a big apple hat, mod dress and knee socks. Shindana also hasn't worked sex-stereotyping out of its doll line and at the Toy Fair described Rhonda as "22 inches of love for a little girl." Lea, a 1973 introduction, comes in black and white versions.

Airline travel certificate makes a highflying gift

A unique gift-giving idea is available at American Airlines.

Travel certificates, good for air transportation, vacations and tours, can be purchased at any of the airline's 12 Chicago area ticket offices or ordered by mail through the company's reservations office.

Thousands of tours to hundreds of areas are available, and the travel certificates can also be used in exchange for guest accommodations. Honeymoon package tours are available for the soon-to-be-wed couple. How about a golf, tennis or ski tour for the active friend or relative. Vacation packages that include itineraries for every kind of traveler are also obtainable.

Here are some of the more popular tours. Fly-drive vacations: the tour price includes air transportation, car rental and hotel or motel accommodations. Air-Sea cruises, which include air and sea fare, accommodations and meals.

Some far-out ideas include renting a ship with your own captain, renting a villa staffed with servants, or even renting an island.

Holiday weddings

Weddings offer a further festive air to the Christmas holidays and each year more and more couples choose this season to make the traditional ties. In spite of generation gaps, counterculture and women's lib, the wedding is still with us, in holiday seasons and out.

The surge in weddings at Christmas probably began during World War II when every family crowded as much into "this" Christmas as possible for you didn't know who would be home for the next one.

Then in post-war days there was the tremendous GI bill era when young men were away to school for most of the year (they went to college right through the summer in that era.)

Still later, as more and more girls went away to college and became engaged to boys also away at school, it continued to be logistically feasible to schedule as many family events as possible during the holiday.

AN ENTERTAINING Yule gift is the 15-inch color television portable set and stand ensemble by RCA. This "Projecta" is the first to have the 15-inch screen size with the thinner "in-

Advent calendars gain in popularity in U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A charming European Christmas custom — sending Advent calendars to children — is getting a toe-hold in the United States.

A number of card shops and department stores market the calendars which should be purchased in November. Most of the calendars are designed in West Germany and Denmark and bear a European village or religious scene. Some are self-standing and depict castles, buses, angels and doll houses.

The scene incorporates numbers running from one to 24 which indicate the position of a flip-open panel that reveals a Christmas scene. The idea is to open a panel a day from Dec. 1 to Dec. 24, which covers the pre-Christmas liturgical season known as Advent. The last panel always depicts the manger scene.

Cost of these novelties ranges from $1 to $3. If you can't find a shop that sells them, write to House of Calendars, 81 Irving Place, New York, N.Y. 10003 and request its brochure describing 40 Advent calendars.

Merry Seiko DX-mas.

PIONEER PE KLH

PIONEER'S SX 525 is a medium powered, low priced AM/FM solid state stereo Receiver with advanced circuitry and a sensitive tuner section. The power output of the SX 525 (52 watts of continuous power) is adequate to fill the average size living room with virtually undistorted sound. This versatile Receiver also features two tape monitor circuits which enable you to record on two tape recorders simultaneously.

The PE 3012 automatic turntable incorporates an array of features not available in any other turntable at or near its price of $99.95. For music lovers, it allows even the most modest of component systems to include a fine turntable instead of an ordinary record changer. Some of the features of the 3012 include variable pitch control, a viscous-damped cue-control as well as PE's exclusive "fall-safe" feature that prevents the tonearm from descending to the platter unless a record is on it. The turntable package in this system includes base, dust cover and STANTON 500E Broadcast Standard cartridge.

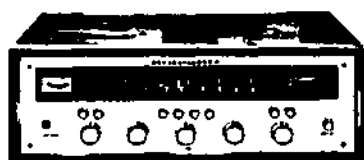

The KLH 32 is the first moderately priced loudspeaker system to provide the level of performance and the characteristics of expensive loudspeaker systems. Its flat frequency response and excellent musical balance will clearly indicate its relationship to far more costly KLH loudspeakers.

Total of individual component list prices $530.80

MARANTZ DUAL CERWIN-VEGA

The MARANTZ 2220 AM/FM Stereo Receiver is one of the most versatile Receivers in the $300 price class. Its performance clearly demonstrates an ability to deliver the cleanest sound possible with a minimum amount of distortion. The Marantz 2220 also incorporates all of the basic features necessary to satisfy those seeking the highest level of performance in the $400 to $600 system price range.

The DUAL 1214 Automatic Turntable operates with the same ease and convenience as the more expensive Dual turntables. Aside from having fewer features the 1214 is made to the same high standards of precision and reliability. The tonearm can track flawlessly at one gram. The turntable package in this system comes complete with base, dust cover and STANTON 500EE Broadcast Standard cartridge.

The CERWIN-VEGA MODEL 24's are 12" two-way speaker systems housed in oiled walnut enclosures. These speaker systems are efficient enough to permit an amplifier of 20 watts RMS per channel (such as the Marantz 2220) to reproduce more natural bass response than any other loudspeaker in its price range. (Under $100)

IF YOU WANT to update your family-or living room in time for holiday entertaining consider this beautiful cocktail table with parquet top and exotic "cognac" finish. It is 42 inches square and 15 inches high — large enough for guests to have desserts, snacks or beverages, with room to spare. Available at Petersen's Designer's Shop, Elms Shopping Center, Arlington Heights.

Holiday flower tips

NEW YORK (UPI) — To keep holiday flowers looking tip-top, follow these tips.

Place stems in deep warm water. Pour warm water into the container in which they will be kept. Cut stem ends diagonally with a sharp knife. Remove all foliage below the water level. Add a commercial flower preservative to the water.

Poinsettias have a milky substance or juice which should be sealed into the stem by quickly dipping stem ends one or two inches into boiling water.

When stem ends get soft recut to remove the bad portion.

When flowers wilt, recut stems and place in warm water.

Boxing Day: an English custom

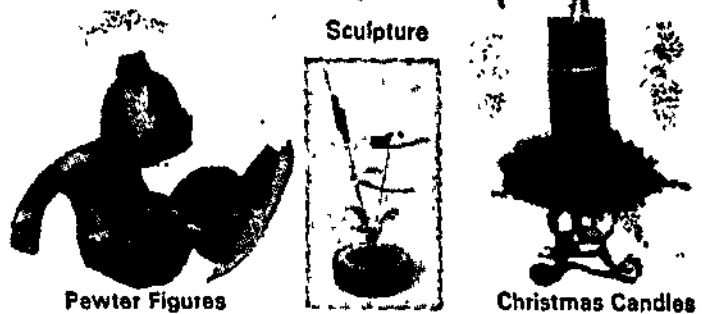

Boxing Day has nothing to do with boxers or fistieuffs of any kind.

Boxing Day began in England about the time Scrooge was giving Bob Cratchit such a bad time. During the days of Queen Victoria, it was the custom of the upper classes to visit their inferiors — servants and the like — on the day after Christmas, bringing them gifts in holiday gift boxes.

It didn't seem to matter if the gifts were ones they had received themselves the day before and decided they didn't want. The servants knew their place — and they gratefully accepted their patrons presents and the boxes in which they were packaged.

The custom of distributing gift boxes on the day after Christmas is what led to the day being named "Boxing Day."

TURBO TOWER OF POWER is a dramatic new entry in the mini automotive category from Kenner. The child powers the car by pumping the Tower until the air pressure builds up to a

Jewelry gifts suit men and women equally well

Enduring gifts keep the spirit of giving alive and cherished far beyond its normal span of litseled trees and decorated displays.

Many such gifts go under the tree right from local jewelry stores, notes the Jewelry Industry Council.

From the precious light of diamonds to the practicality of fashion jewelry, from gleaming karat gold to glowing pearls, from watches to rings to sterling silver teaspoons, these are the things that have a special place reserved for them in a woman's life, and get special notice at gift-giving time.

To make it a cheery Christmas morn for the men on the list, jewelry gifts open new fashion vistas.

Cufflinks, stone set rings, monogrammed blazer buttons, pocket and smoking accessories are Santa-pleasing surprises, all.

Then there's the newsmaking automatic chronometer, also for him.

Teen boys want to be counted manly, masculine and "with it."

Gifts that give them a feeling of prestige and pride could be sporty watches, monogrammed ident bracelets, rings, unusual cufflinks, larger tie tacs, engraved belt buckles, leather pocket accessories.

Jewelry is one of a teen girl's most womanly assets, and she thanks her lucky stars her Santa knows it.

Mini earrings, dog collars, contour necklaces, bracelets, cultured pearl jewelry and a ring for every finger could be "openers" on Christmas day.

A particularly ladylike watch, perhaps with a touch of color from enameling or a touch of glitter from a tiny diamond, is the stuff her holiday dreams are made of.

And how the youngest enjoy Christmas! That little miss in her party dress should dearly love a gold locket and matching bracelet, or a pearl necklace that can keep growing as she does.

And what about a ring for her young brother?

For tiny cherubs, eyes alight with wonder, there are shiny silver cups, diaper pins, porringers, rattles, teething rings, toothbrushes.

The home, the center of every holiday celebration, gets its share of attention when gift givers shop at local jewelry stores.

Decorator clocks for every room in the home, centerpieces, figurines, pewterware are among many gift ideas.

3 million own second homes

Nearly three million American families now have second homes, vacation cottages, hunting cabins or ski lodges — nearly twice the number of only five years ago.

Many Americans in effect will be spending their first Christmas in their second home this year as they visit their dream cottages while the children are off from school and their father is taking vacation time due him before the end of the working year.

Choose Christmas pets with much thought, care

A puppy is a Christmas gift that can bring joy, a headache, or heartache, depending on the family involved — and the dog. Today's lovable little ball of fur can turn into tomorrow's household delight if the buyer knows what he is doing.

There is the dog's disposition to be considered. All thoroughbreds have predictable characteristics. Some breeds are more likely than others to take an intense dislike to the mailman; others are almost sure to dig in the garden; some breeds are howlers; a few varieties are difficult if not impossible to housebreak.

In a cross-breed, the dog owner cannot be so certain of characteristics. Often the sire is of unknown origin.

As the number of different breeds in the ancestry increases, so does the inability to predict what the dog will be like in disposition, size and adaptability.

Most Christmas puppies will be bought for children many of whom may not be old enough to know how to treat a dog.

One breeder refuses to sell to families with very young children because he says that the puppy has to take too much mauling. "If the dog snaps to defend himself, it's always the dog that gets the blame."

The local animal shelter can often help choose the right pet. An educated guess as to what the dog will be in a few months can keep the giver from selecting the wrong type of dog.

Tree buying tips

When choosing your Christmas tree this year follow this checklist for a tree that will last through the holidays:

Don't buy if a bent needle breaks, needles fall to the ground when the stump is tapped, the stump is not moist and sticky.

The tree is healthy if the needles are pliable and firmly attached to the branches, branches are free of foreign matter such as vines, moss, tree is free of barren branches, butt is smoothly cut.

Tracing Santa

Santa's source, legend says, goes back to the fourth century, when St. Nicholas, a bishop of Asia Minor, was noted for his generosity and gift-giving.

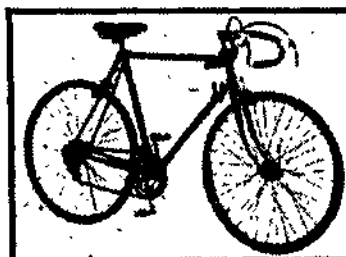

In some countries, St. Nicholas still retains his role as gift-bearer. His day is, traditionally, December 6th, and European children await him on St. Nicholas Eve, December 5th.

A gray horse and a white donkey have each been credited with the honor of transporting him on his gift-giving journeys.

LET THERE BE more light . . . in your home, for Christmas. The beauty of this table lamp is its utter simplicity, with its rectangular off-white linen shade and polished "mirrored" chrome base and column. You'll find it at Petersen's Designer's Shop, Elms Shopping Center, Arlington Heights.

NU BLOX, from Kusan, Inc., is an exciting and colorful 50-piece activity set featuring a zoo, shopping village, airport and school play area, that the child puts together himself. Included are 15 large rectangles, 15 small shadow box rectangles, four triangles and 12 cylinders. The blocks are molded of high-impact styrene with safely-rounded corners.

Give Child a special treat: a letter from Santa Claus

This Christmas you can give your child a special treat — one that will be remembered for years to come — a special letter from Santa Claus, with a postmark from Santa Claus, Indiana.

Topps in Rolling Meadows is offering this area exclusive as a special favor to its Christmas shoppers. A "Letter to Santa Box" has been set up at the entrance of the store. Letters and envelopes are supplied by Topps.

All you have to do is self-address the envelope, place an eight-cent stamp on it, insert the letter, and drop it in Santa's mailbox. In a short time, your child will be delightfully surprised with a letter from Santa.

To make your child's Christmas even merrier, Topps also carries a full line of entertaining toys from brand name manufacturers including Mattel, Ideal, Fisher-Price, Playskool, Marx, Milton Bradley, Hasbro and Remco.

When it comes time to buy this year's Christmas tree, you'll find a wide variety of real and artificial trees at Topps Trim A Tree Center. Everything you need to dress it up is also there — from lights to garlands to ornaments.

Follow these steps for a safer holiday

Christmas just wouldn't seem the same without a Christmas tree to add to the festive atmosphere. But these trees can also hold hidden dangers unless proper care is given to them. Follow this tree care advice for a safer holiday season.

Sprinkle branches with water before decorating.

Avoid placing the tree near a fireplace, heater, TV or radiators.

Check electrical lights for wear.

Don't overload nearby electrical circuits.

Avoid using flammable decorations.

Nationwide opens sixth art gallery

Nationwide Art Center recently opened its newest gallery at 1154 S. Elmhurst Rd. in Mount Prospect. The gallery is located in Countryside Court, a shopping center situated between Golf Rd. and Dempster St.

The gallery, Nationwide's sixth and largest in the Chicago area, occupies over 2,200 sq. ft. There are more than 3,000 oil paintings on display, all original works of art by world renowned artists such as Sohler, Kowalski, Dieste, Wagner, Sandini, Alvise, Friedrick and many others.

"The response to our new gallery was overwhelming," says Dan Anshel, president of Nationwide. "We try to have something for everyone," he adds, noting that Nationwide's collections include landscapes, seascapes, still lifes, portraits — "almost every subject and size imaginable." All paintings are ready to hang in beautifully hand-carved wooden frames.

It's a nostalgic Christmas

Ham: a holiday dinner favorite

A delectable baked ham on an attractively garnished platter is elegant fare for a New Year's Eve buffet or the traditional New Year's dinner — wonderful, too, to have on hand — to serve cold when friends and relatives drop by. Its tempting flavor is perfect for any meal the whole holiday through.

Ham bakes so easily — there's little watching or basting necessary. A half hour before it's done it should be dressed for the occasion — scored and glazed with a brushing of light corn syrup and studded with cherries that are held in place with cloves. Back into the oven it goes until it glistens. For a final touch; a frill of paper on the shank and a bright ribbon.

Fruit is a perfect accompaniment for ham, such as grapes, strawberries, melon balls, orange and grapefruit sections.

Don't forget, if you are planning on only a half ham, you can garnish it as beautifully as a whole one.

Advent wreath

A beautiful custom that originated in Austria is the advent wreath. The wreath is made of pine or holly and has four candles in it.

One candle is lighted each of the four Sundays preceding Christmas, while one of the children reads a part of the Christmas story from the Bible. All four candles are lighted on Christmas Day.

1973 Christmas cards carry nostalgic themes

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christmas card designers, falling in line with the nostalgia trend, have taken a long look this year at Christmas Past when jolly St. Nick, sugarplum confections, roaring fires, sleighs and ice skates were the chief symbols of the season.

Card companies still are offering religious cards (down to 22 per cent of the market), New York skyscraper scenes, Chinese watercolors, peace symbols and abstract designs, but the emphasis is definitely on the Currier & Ives theme: "Home for Christmas."

One manufacturer ascribed the nostalgia trend to "our new sense of heritage as we approach the American Bicentennial." The industry sensed the trend two years ago when the 1973 lines were being planned and zeroed in on it with a vengeance.

Nostalgia cards range from the beautiful Charlotte Sternberg's Currier-like painting "Home for the Holiday" for the American Artists Group to the American Greetings' reissue of its 1912 Kewpie doll cards. In excellent taste are the Metropolitan Museum's box of 19th Century wood engravings titled "An Old Fashioned Christmas."

The 19th Century custom of scented letters has been translated into scented cards by Hallmark, which offers three nose-pleasers of the season — pine, bayberry and ginger. Naturally the card matches a Christmas tree, a candle, and a ginger cookie Santa.

One of the most enchanting Victorian cards is Norcross' self-mailer foldup which shows the family Yule scene, 30 to a pack. Its verse is equally charming:

"Let the toasts pass — One to another — Neighbor to Neighbor — Brother to Brother."

"We shouldn't be surprised by the emphasis on nostalgia," said Madeline Robinson, a Rust Craft executive. "Last year peace and ecology were stressed because we were still at war and we were deeply worried about ecology when the 1972 lines were planned. But the trend in everyday greeting cards ever since has been nostalgia and it's climaxing this Christmas."

"The premium is on new writing approaches," said Hallmark vice president George Parker. "The writing has been updated to keep pace with the remarkable rhythms of the time to better fit the changing fashions in language."

In line with the 19th Century feel, some companies are counting heavily on the tactile attractiveness of flocked velvet papers to increase their sales. Day glo colors on pearlized paper are making their debut this year. Increased use of expensive, high gloss papers is noticeable in cards of all leading companies.

Martin Dash, marketing director of the American Artists Group estimates that Christmas card sales this year will be about the same as 1972 when 2.5 billion cards costing $400 million were sold in the United States. Although inflation has not hurt card sales, some quality cards are being used as substitutes for gifts for distant relatives and friends, Dash said.

Some of the more expensive fine arts cards, such as the New York Museum of Modern Art's watercolor of radishes by Jim Dine, are suitable for framing. So, too, are Regency's embossed cards including a crewel work Biblical scene that has the look of real yard on linen.

Uniworld Toys help child learn brotherhood values

Aurora Products Corp. has announced the marketing of its unique new line of "Uniworld" Toys in selected department stores in the U.S. Uniworld Toys were developed in concert with the United States Committee for UNICEF, which is receiving a share of the purchase price of the toys.

Uniworld are the first toys ever distributed under license from the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. They depict the home-life styles, customs, and activities of people in all parts of the world.

In its "Bam-Beano" Bean Bag People, Aurora has created a special new world for children featuring miniature and distinctive figures of the people of many lands which are squeezable and cuddly. "Bam-Beano" sets are packaged in typical little "homes" with hinged or sliding doors and a carrying handle — a Spanish hacienda, an Eskimo igloo, an African grass hut, and others — along with unique accessories such as an elephant seat or Eskimo kayak, typical wooden animals, and a distinctive sound — a bell, a horn, or chimes.

The "Mary-Many-Face" dolls change their outfits and moods with a flip of the finger, from a pert and pretty African girl to a saucy Spanish senorita to a kimono-clad Oriental youngster. Other Uniworld items include "Center Ring Circus" where six little acrobats from as many nations perform on trapeze, high wire, and parallel bars. "Cuddle Car" is a soft, cuddly international travel car for pre-school youngsters.

Uniworld activity sets include a U.S. and a giant International "Color 'n' Glue Map" which comes with "stick-on" people, "stick-on" animals, and "stick-on" flags. "Color 'n' Dress" dolls allow youngsters to design fashions for three charming wooden dolls — 12 outfits with matching accessories.

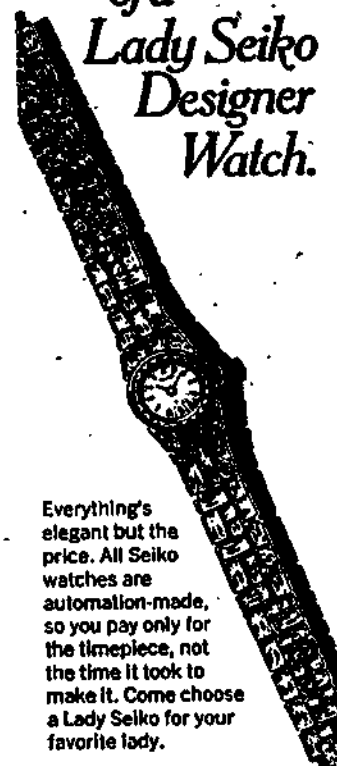

Uniworld Toys were developed by Aurora's product development staff with guidance from prominent children's specialists at the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. They are designed to help teach values such as brotherhood, understanding, and cooperation while the child is having fun. Each Uniworld package lists the goods or services that UNICEF can buy with its portion of the price of the toy.

THE BIG BIRD of Sesame Street fame is reborn as a giant jigsaw puzzle for the preschool set. Put together, this new Child Guidance puzzle is six feet tall and four feet wide. It comes in twelve heavy board pieces, designed with a simple jigsaw fit. Putting this Big Bird together is lots of fun, but it also teaches the preschooler part-whole relationships.

Would you please print a picture of Susan Dey and give me some information about her? How old is she? What is she interested in?

K.E.
Arlington Heights

Susan Dey

Susan is interested in a number of things. During her spare time she most enjoys gardening, camping, and cooking. Of course her interest in her acting career is self evident. During her three years as Laurie of the series she claims, "I've learned comedy timing, how to move in front of a camera and how to project a character." More than likely Susan, now 21 (as of Dec. 10th) has the usual interest in fellows too. Keep heart, fellows, she is still single!

Was there ever a series called THE MILLIONAIRE? My mom says that it was on a long time ago, but it lasted quite awhile. If there was such a show, what exactly was it about?

D.S.
Elk Grove Village

Indeed there was such a show. It starred Marvin Miller as secretary to an eccentric billionaire who presented, tax free, one million dollars to surprised people. The gift affected a different recipient each episode. The series was produced for the 1954-1960 seasons. Listen to Mama!

Could you tell me who he is and something about him? Please print his picture.

S.R.
Mt. Prospect

David Carradine is the man. The son of actor John Carradine, David lives in a ramshackle old house in the Hollywood Hills and wears jeans and an old shirt. Like the character he portrays, he likes to walk barefoot!

David Carradine

During his two-year stay in college, he majored in music, but after finding that he liked acting so much, he left school to join a production of "Othello". Later he joined a professional Shakespearean repertory company. After a hitch in service and a round of coffee house playing the guitar, David played Luertes in "Hamlet" and was spotted by an agent and signed to a contract. This led to several guest TV spots and eventually took him to Hollywood. In addition to a few movie roles, Carradine has another series to his credit--SHANE. Besides KUNG FU, David has helped to write, direct, and produce two movies of his own.

...

I am a big fan of Connie Stevens, so would you print her picture and tell me how old she is? When is her birthday?

D.M.
Elk Grove Village

Connie Stevens

Connie's real name is Concerta Ann Ingotie. She hails from Brooklyn, New York, where she was born on August 8, 1938, making her 35. She began her show business career by winning several talent contests in Hollywood. Connie's credit encompasses stage, TV, and film roles. For a time she was best known for her singing, with numerous recording hits.

...

Could you please tell me who played the mother on PLEASE DON'T EAT THE DAISIES?

C.C.
Des Plaines

Pat Crowley played the mother with Mark Miller opposite her. The other co-stars included Kim Tyler, Brian Nash, Joe and Jeff Fithian, and Lad as Ladadog. The series was produced for the 1965-67 TV seasons. Prior to that a film of the same name had been made, based on the best-seller book, also of the same title.

I would like to know if Wally Cox is dead and if Tina Louise will ever act again.

K.T.
Palatine

A lot of confusion about the death of Wally Cox stems from the fact the HOLLYWOOD SQUARES shows both new and repeats of the show, the newer ones without Wally. The man who first gained fame as MR. PEEPERS died Feb. 15th of this year. He had starred in several movies, guested on numerous TV shows and also wrote two books. With the cancellation of her series, Tina Louise is acting, but not nearly as much on TV as before. She has appeared in several Broadway productions, plus a few guest shots on other TV series. One of her more recent movies was that made for TV called "Call to Danger." Tina is acting, but it is more difficult to find her!

D.L.

John Denver

Before John made his debut as a 'single', he was, for almost four years, a member of the Mitchell Trio, being selected from more than 250 other applicants to fill the spot vacated by Chad Mitchell. Write John in care of RCA Records, 1133 6th Ave., New York, N.Y. Denver records exclusively with that record company.

On the Cover

The season wouldn't be the same if Andy wasn't caroling!

What's Christmas without Andy Williams and the Family, you ask? Always one of television's most popular special holiday hours, "The Andy Williams Christmas Special" is back once again, with the host, his wife Claudine Longet, and the entire Williams clan aboard. The one-hour special will air on Thursday, December 13, on the NBC Television Network.

11 War and Peace
Leo Tolstoy's "War and Peace" the gigantic yet intimate story of human beings embroiled in war, is shown this evening. "War and Peace" is more than the story of two great powers at war. It contains Tolstoy's comments on a half feudal world that is soon to disappear, his disenchantment with the heroics of war and his affirmation of the wisdom of the common man. It is also a story of young love and the agony war can inflict on the innocent. In this first of nine episodes, the Rostov family is introduced, and also a clumsy young man named Pierre, and an ambitious General named Napoleon Bonaparte.

Bob is his own master at the art of needling

The world knows that Don Rickles is the master of the large put-down, but most people don't realize that, among his friends, one of the champions of all "needle" artists is Bob Hope.

Hope's pet targets are longtime friends and he delights in applying a little "needle" when he thinks they might be strutting just a bit. Wearing a new suit or tie around Hope is like running the gauntlet. A bright-colored shirt can be lethal.

"Are you going to wear that shirt all day?", he asked producer Mort Lachman when the latter appeared in a bright floral print.

To another member of his staff who sported a new seersucker jacket in a somewhat prominent stripe, Hope observed, "It's funny how they always look so great on the hanger." He delivered the line in a crowded elevator (and fortunately it struck the owner of the jacket as funny as it did the strangers in the elevator).

One of Hope's writers who prided himself on his fashion-able wardrobe was devastated when Bob queried in a dead-pan manner - "Boy's Department?"

Recently one of his staff has taken on about 20 pounds by giving in to his sweet tooth while on the road. Bob chided him with the comment, "I must say this is the first time I've ever seen a pastry tray wearing shoes."

Hope never "needles" anyone unable to defend himself and even hecklers in the audience get a soft brush, but those close to him collect Bob's 'put-downs' on the 'in' group.

On the streets

Aging Robin Hood reeks havoc in the City

Detectives Stone and Keller battle against time to prevent an aging "Robin Hood" from blowing up buildings in their city on the ABC Television Network's "The Streets of San Francisco," Thursday, December 13.

In "Winterkill," the detectives' quarry is Wade Tillman, a strong and sly man in his seventies, who is all too familiar with the financial pinch oppressing many senior citizens. Tillman holds up a gas station to pay for his best friend's rent. Then, his late-blooming criminal career suddenly escalates after a rich friend, Carl Armstrong, turns down his demand for money to pay for another friend's desperately needed eye operation. Tillman hides bombs in Armstrong's highrise buildings to force Armstrong to meet his demand.

Karl Malden stars as Detective Lt. Mike Stone and Michael Douglas as Assistant Inspector Steve Keller. Guest stars are Paul Fix as Tillman, Denver Pyle as Armstrong, Linden Chiles as Tillman's son, Robert, and Ruth McDevitt as Maude Mitchell.

Came, in delivering a religious sect from persecution, finds himself caught in a simmering feud brought about by lack of tolerance.

The not-so-pretty ones

A PERSON NEEDS only to turn on the late movie for a string of a couple weeks, and he would probably see a Carroll O'Connor ("Why, there's Archie Bunker!") or a Peter Falk ("Darn if that isn't Columbo!") featured in a secondary role.

IT ISN'T THAT these two fine actors didn't possess the talent years ago, as much as they didn't possess the one ingredient that spelled success in the late 50's and early 60's — a pretty face. Granted, handsome actors and attractive actresses still have a lot going for themselves in 1973, but it's no longer THE prerequisite for getting noticed.

Perhaps this is the age of the anti-hero, the not-so-pretty face. One can merely look at television's success stories over the past couple years and see credence in that claim. And at least one top TV network official credits this apparent change in the public's viewing tastes as a primary reason behind the industry's current programming problems.

PERRY LAFFERTY, CBS programming vice-president, in a recent address to Hollywood's Radio-TV Society, speculated on the whys and wherefores of the public's altered attitudes. "Like our competitors," he said, "we are constantly evaluating the margin that can make a (TV) hit. Some years ago the public started telling us something, but it wasn't until a couple of years ago that CBS started to make a conscious effort to accommodate them. We've made several unconscious efforts, but unconscious isn't good enough."

Lafferty rattled off a list of those who now are among TV's leading stars: Peter Falk, Buddy Ebsen, William Conrad, Telly Savalas, Bea Arthur, Jimmy Stewart, Richard Thomas, Red Fox, David Carradine, Jean Stapleton, and Carroll O'Connor, among them.

"NOT A SINGLE one of these very gifted actors and actresses were what we used to, five short years ago, consider 'typical' TV leads," Lafferty told Hollywood reporters. "A bald-headed sex object? A bald-headed mystic? Two gentlemen in their sixties? An irascible black man? A teenage folk hero? A rotund private eye?"

"THE AUDIENCE IS responding to a whole new kind of series star. Consider the form of 'All in the Family' (which) is identical to the form of the original Ozzie & Harriet Show. But two things have changed," Lafferty explained. "What the characters in the show say, and the type of performers who play leading roles. I don't mean to categorically state that future Mary Tyler Moores, Jack Lords, Chad Everetts and Rock Hudsons won't be employed on a weekly basis, but I think in the seasons directly ahead of us, you'll find the off-beat, the 'original' guy or gal with something extra, ahead (in the ratings)."

Crediting this nation's youth, and their views of old institutions "in a different way," Lafferty concluded that "since weekly TV series most generally mirror the people and the times, I guess it was only natural that comedy and drama would start to investigate all types of areas that were forbidden before."

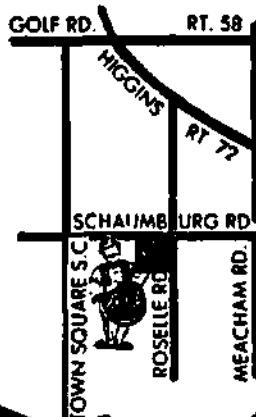

That's to television's credit. Perhaps more so to the American public's credit. People have turned off many pretty faces that have nothing to say. And television has responded well, discovering that many of those not-so-pretty faces are by no means unpopular ones.

Larson supports fire protection by township unit

by JOE FRANZ

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson has joined a special committee in recommending that Buffalo Grove put its entire area under the jurisdiction of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

Larson chose the transfer to the Wheeling district over an alternate proposal that called for the formation of a new fire district to take in the corporate limits of the village. Both moves would eliminate the system by which the village is receiving fire protection from three departments.

Larson told the Herald yesterday that the recommendation is being reviewed by members of the village board, who will consider it Monday at a workshop session. It is not known whether the board will act on the proposal at that time.

When contacted yesterday the trustees said they did not want to comment on the recommendation or how they will vote until they study the report.

IN HIS REPORT Larson said the formation of a new fire district would be expensive and impractical in comparison to a switch to the Wheeling district. Because of a tax lag, he said there will be problems getting money for the initial operating expenses of the new district.

Although 75 per cent of the needed money could be obtained through tax anticipation warrants, Larson said the warrants could create a serious debt for the district. The debts and shortage of operating money could cause cuts in the current level of fire protection, he said.

If the board decides to annex into the Wheeling district, Larson said there would be no problem obtaining money for operating expenses. Wheeling district officials have said the revenues for the entire district are sufficient to absorb the additional area until tax money becomes available.

Trustee James Shirley, an advocate of the new district, said yesterday the village has no guarantee the Wheeling district would continue to subsidize the village portion of the district. Although the village's agreement with the district is only verbal at this time, Larson recommends a written agreement be signed before any transfer is made.

SINCE THE NEW district would be in existence only until a municipal department is formed, Larson said it would be too cumbersome to create a new taxing body.

Officials predict that with anticipated growth, the village will have tax revenue adequate to support a municipal department by May 1, 1976. Shirley, however, questions whether that will happen since building in recent months has slowed down. He said the village therefore may not grow as fast as was originally predicted.

Larson also said if the village were to form a new fire district, residents would pay higher property taxes, but a majority would not receive an increase in fire protection. There would, however, be a decrease in home fire insurance rates if a new district is formed, he said.

IF THE VILLAGE board approves Larson's recommendation Monday, a referendum transferring the entire village to the Wheeling district could be voted on as soon as February. If the referendum was passed then the Wheeling district probably would be responsible for providing fire and paramedic service to the entire village within 90 to 120 days.

Currently homes north of Old Checker Road are served by the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District, while the rest of the homes are served by the Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc., which is employed by the Wheeling district. A portion of undeveloped village land is in the Vernon Township Rural Fire Protection District.

The Long Grove district has said it will not fight formation of a municipal department, but will resist attempts to transfer its area to the Wheeling district. The long Grove district has said it has not decided whether it would favor creating a new fire district comprising only Buffalo Grove.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses stop down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing com-

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

...When what to commuters' wondering eyes should appear but Horst the Roofer and his high-stepping gas beaters

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch, admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitchers were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared larked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

The Phoenix Construction Co. has offered to lower densities, building heights and increase its cash donations if granted a zoning change to allow multi-family housing along the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

The village board in September rejected the project, but then reversed its decision and directed the plan commission to hold a public hearing on a revised plan for the property. The plan commission's public hearing on the revised plan was Wednesday night.

Although the new plan has not come to a formal vote, the plan commission expects to make a recommendation to the village board within the next two weeks.

The project, turned down by the village board, called for 913 units on three tracts surrounding the golf course and 240 units

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some Northwest suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for The Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown from Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 280 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Botterman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

April tax hike referendum

School board wants to rethink vote

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board members want more time for discussion before approving a resolution supporting a tax hike referendum in April.

The board adjourned its meeting this week to reconvene next Monday when several board members said they wanted more time to discuss the proposal.

A majority of board members have already agreed in committee, to seek a 15-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate hike in a referendum increasing district revenue about $775,000.

DIST. 59 ADMINISTRATORS have said revenue will be cut heavily in about three years, due to a change in the state's formula for figuring state aid to schools.

Board member Gerald Smiley, who was not present at the committee meeting, said he favored waiting for a while to see what happens to the state aid formula. Smiley added that he would vote for holding a referendum, however, "to give the people a chance to voice their opinion."

Smiley said he would support a referendum aimed at raising money to fix roofs in the district's school buildings. A recent survey showed that school roofs will need about $350,000 in repairs over the next several years.

Board member Judy Zanca questioned whether district taxpayers could afford any tax increase at this time.

Board members who want a tax rate hike are in disagreement among themselves about how the money will be used, if the referendum is successful and want that point decided before officially approving a referendum.

SEVERAL ALTERNATIVES have been mentioned as possible uses for the added revenue, including the addition of educational programs and the reduction of tax anticipation warrants — the money school districts borrow against anticipated tax revenues — to meet expenses while waiting for the tax money to be collected.

The meeting will convene at 8 p.m. at the district 59 administration office, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a new math textbook for all grades in the district. The new series, published by the Silver Burdette Co., was chosen by a 12-member committee of teachers and administration representatives.

The new books will be used starting next year. Total cost for the changeover to new books is about $35,000.

Acting upon a recommendation from the Dist. 59 Teachers Council, the board also approved extending the school Christmas vacation by two days to include Jan. 3 and 4 in an effort to conserve energy.

The loss of school days will be made up by extending the school calendar two days at the end of the year to include June 17 and 18.

POLICEMAN-TURNED author Lt. August Schwiesow fills his off-duty hours with police memorabilia as he researches police department history.

No best seller...

...but Lt. Schwiesow's book shows keen insight into police history

by JOHN MAES

Chances are it will never make the bestseller list and it doesn't seem destined for popularity with the Book of the Month Club. But for veteran members of the Des Plaines Police Department, the publication of one new book will have great significance.

The publication, now being researched by Lt. August Schwiesow, is a history of the Des Plaines Police Department.

The book, according to Schwiesow, will trace noteworthy names and events in the department to its rudimentary beginning in the late 1860s when a single constable was paid less than $70 per month to keep order in town.

SCHWIESOW SAID the idea for the book came when he was about to write a 10-page historical report on the department but said he decided to expand the publication to the form of a book.

"It was an interest and natural curiosity about the people who have preceded us on this department," he said. "I wanted to pay some attention to the incidents that occurred rather than just a list of names throughout the history of the department."

Schwiesow's research has taken him through the aged, handwritten volumes containing the minutes of the then Des Plaines village board. Flipping page by page through the huge compendium, he looks for village records of police activities.

"It's interesting to see how the town developed over the years and how the police department grew with it," he said.

SCHWIESOW, WHO does his research during his off-duty hours, said he will use historical information from old newspapers, personal experiences and "other valuable information and pictures tucked away in the attics" of department veterans.

The book will highlight significant faces and events in the department such as Chief Howard Becker, who was with the force in the 1930s and 40s.

"Howard Becker was the first man to take constructive action toward organization and structure of the force," said Schwiesow. "He was a friendly, well liked man and there isn't an old timer around who wouldn't remember him."

Becker, died in 1957, shortly after retiring from a career spanning 31 years.

OTHER ITEMS to appear on the pages will be the career of Chief Pug Kennicott and Patrolman Harry Bending, who was shot to death while on duty in 1962.

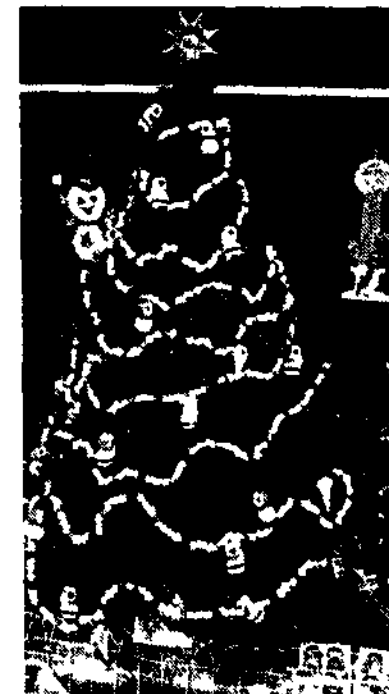

Schwiesow sees the 1920s as an important era for the department. "It grew from two full time men in 1901, to five in 1927, due largely to the advent of the city form of government in 1923."

"The 20s signified an era when the chief of police was given the authority to run the department somewhat independently. Before that, the department was much more strongly controlled by the city than it is now."

SINCE THE book is still in its infant stage, Schwiesow is not certain to what year he will trace history or exactly what form the book will take.

He estimated having about 300 hours research remaining. "Hopefully the rough draft will be finished in about a year."

He is also not certain how long the book will run but said, "I want it to be authoritative yet concise and not ramble on."

Students at Maine North deserve referendum 'yes'

The 1,503 students at Maine North High School deserve educational programs and facilities comparable to the three sister schools in Dist. 207. For this reason we urge residents Saturday to vote in favor of the proposed $8.5 million referendum to complete the school.

Maine North is now only partially finished. Half of a $15 million 1967 referendum was used to build Phase I of the high school. This first stage included only the necessities and board members promised to seek a second referendum to bring the school up to par with the others.

The decision to complete North or leave it a half-school will be decided at the ballot box tomorrow.

Students in the new school, opened in 1970, are being educated at a disadvantage when compared with Maine East, West and South.

Home economics and art classes are held in science laboratories. Music classes, rehearsals and practice sessions are held in business education classrooms. There are no photography, carpentry, woodworking or printing classes because the equipment just isn't there.

Those who participate in athletics are bused to other district schools because North has no swimming pool, football field, track or spectator facilities. The school is without an auditorium or stage for speech and drama, site work remains unfinished and another parking lot is needed.

The North Central Association, which evaluates high schools and junior colleges, pointed out the weaknesses at Maine North suggesting general improvement of site development (including the addition of football fields, sports areas and landscaping) and providing needed classroom facilities.

Passing the referendum will not increase taxes — a major concern to homeowners in the district.

The district is retiring old bonds and has received rate reductions on the fire prevention and safety, special education and junior college tuition funds, lowering the rate by 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Polls to be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Voting hours for the $8.5 million referendum for completion of Maine North High School will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. tomorrow.

Polls are located at the four Maine Township high schools: Maine East, 2602 Dempster St., Park Ridge; Maine North, 8511 Harrison St., Des Plaines; Maine West, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines; and Maine South, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge.

Residents should vote at the high school in their attendance district.

The referendum will bring that figure up 6 cents so property owners would still realize a net 16 cent tax cut in the 1974 high school levy.

Parents and students have complained because of the lack of facilities. They feel the situation has continued too long and the time is now to complete the orphan school.

We agree. Maine Township has three of the finest schools in the state. A yes vote will bring that number up to four.

Scouting news

Junior Girl Scouts of Troop 3 are having a craft and bake sale Saturday at West Park at 9:30 a.m.

Funds earned from the sale will be used for tours of special interest and the troop camping program.

The troop meets weekly at West School with Mrs. Wynn Howard, Mrs. Arnold Heysler and Mrs. John Tufel as leaders.

Bike safety to get township sharing funds?

The Elk Grove Township Board will meet in special session Tuesday to consider possible expenditures of township revenue sharing funds.

One of the items on the agenda will be whether the township will provide funds to finance an in-depth study of a bicycle safety course, proposed for Elk Grove Village.

Officials from the Elk Grove Park District, who are trying to drum up support for the bicycle safety facility, have asked the township for a $4,000 to $5,000 grant to finance such a study.

Park district officials presented a report to the township board Monday night, explaining the bicycle safety facility in detail and listing several local agencies which have given their support to the project in writing.

Also to be considered for township funds is Shelter Inc., a new group starting up in the area, which will provide temporary care for children involved in child abuse cases. The board approved a resolution at its Monday night meeting supporting Shelter. The actual grant will be officially determined Tuesday.

The board also approved a resolution supporting an interchange on Interstate 55 at Bluestem Road in Elk Grove Village. Alexian Brothers Medical Center has started a campaign to secure the interchange which hospital officials say would improve access to the hospital.

School board caucus

The Des Plaines School Board caucus will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the Central Telephone Co., 2004 Miner St.

Caucus Pres. Clay Rawn will discuss the duties and responsibilities of school board members with Dist. 62 board Pres. William Kremers and Dist. 207 board Pres. Robert Claus.

The caucus candidate inquiry committee will submit the names of incumbents and prospective candidates for the school boards.

Santa to arrive on a fire truck here Saturday

Santa Claus will be coming to Des Plaines on a fire engine Saturday.

Santa will arrive downtown — escorted by local police and firemen — about 2 p.m. He will enter the city from the North Pole around 1:30 p.m. at Oakton Street and River Road.

His route will take him west on Oakton to Lee Street, north of Ellinwood Street, east to Pearson, north to Miner and west to his traditional house.

The gaily decorated house is located on the parkway along the Chicago and North Western Rwy., between the train station and Lee Street.

Santa will meet children and listen to Christmas wishes until 5 p.m. Saturday. He'll take time out from his busy schedule of meeting with children elsewhere in the world to visit Des Plaines weekdays from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. until Dec. 23.

Local merchants are now open Friday evenings for the convenience of Christmas shoppers. Most stores will also be open Sunday Dec. 23 for last-minute shopping.

Christmas decorations have already dressed up Des Plaines for Santa's arrival. Downtown decorations including Santa's house, Santa's mailbox and the large reindeer are erected by employees of the Public Works Department and paid for by the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce.

According to C. W. "Tony" Kallschuck, Chamber executive secretary, the pole decorations will not be lit this year because of the energy shortage. Kallschuck said only Santa's house will be lit this year.

Singles to swing at track

Hundreds of swinging singles are expected to "get it on" at Arlington Park Race Track Dec. 14, when Can-Am International throws its second Chicago-area singles party in three weeks.

Party-goers packed the Regency Hyatt House at O'Hare on Nov. 23, for what was promoted as the world's largest international singles mixer. Several thousand more were turned away at the door.

Barry Sax, the 29-year-old founder of Can-Am International, has promised that the problems associated with the first party — too many people, too little food and no place to park — will be corrected at the Arlington Park bash.

Just how the crowd will be handled was discussed last night at a scheduled press conference.

The party will be held at the race track in tandem with a singles three-day weekend package at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gapers as it rolled

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

by JOE SWICKARD
You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippietree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitches were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

Arson suspected in $2,500 fire

Arson is suspected in connection with a fire that caused an estimated $2,500 damage late Wednesday to a display trailer at Johnny's Mobile Homes, 2811 Mannheim Rd., according to Des Plaines firefighters. There were no injuries.

Evidence of two separate fires were found in the front and rear of the trailer, according to reports. The blaze broke out about 11:30 p.m. and firefighters said the front and of the trailer was filled with smoke. They had to force their way in to extinguish the flames.

The fire in the front section of the trailer progressed and ignited a bed by the time firefighters arrived. The exact cause of the two fires was under investigation yesterday but Lt. Richard Arthur said inspectors believe they were set intentionally.

Highland Park quintet boasts a new look

by MIKE KLEIN

The Unpredictable One is playing his jaws-harp again. But even with the same melody — "I like us in the division," says Chuck Schramm — it's a whole different tune.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, Schramm takes his Highland Park Little Giants, one-third defending Central Suburban basketball champs, into Glenbrook North. It's an important North division league opener for both schools.

"It's going to set the tone for the whole league season," said Glenbrook's Dan Perry whose Spartans might have enough to win it all. "They jump up at the beginning, give you an all-court press and everybody works which is a change from the past."

"And Schramm is so unpredictable," Perry continued, "you never know what he'll do."

The Little Giants, New Trier West and Maine South were co-champions last winter. Glenbrook North forced the three-way tie with a late season upset of Maine South's Hawks.

Nobody, except ex-Little All-American Schramm, thought Highland Park could finish up top. The Giants were first year refugees from the now dying Suburban League. And they didn't even play like a team.

"I made no bones about it, they were a bunch of individuals," Schramm says today. "We use last year's ballclub to represent selfishness. As soon as someone starts acting selfish, we remind them of last year. The boys that were juniors didn't like it."

The root of last year's troubles was Bob Santini, now departed CSL leading scorer at 22.8 points per game. "Santini got involved with his own game plan and it would create a problem," Schramm said. Too often, Santini's game plan called for overlooking the good pass to take the bad shot.

Gone from last year's club, 11-2 in CSL play and 14-8 overall, are Santini, excellent 6-foot-8 center Chuck Bergen and 6-3 forward Moe Smith who led the CSL in temper tantrums.

They've beaten West Leyden (83-56) and North Chicago (63-60). Highland Park's season opener was an 83-72 loss to highly ranked East Leyden.

"This is the first club I've had that really plays together," Schramm said. "They're very unselfish, really get along and a nice team to coach. They put fun into winning."

"These kids know what to do and keep their cool," he added. "They're a bunch that when the going gets tough, they calm down pretty much."

Glenbrook North or New Trier West... that was the early seasonal prognosis for the CSL North division. But it was hard to overlook Highland Park after East Leyden's Eagles couldn't romp.

Seven-foot-one Tom Dore had 41 points and 6-8 Glenn Grunwald, All-Chicago area last winter as a frosh, added 22 for East Leyden. The Giants have no player taller than 6-6 junior center Rich Schwalbach.

"That loss probably did us more good than the wins. It built our confidence," Schramm said. "We followed the game plan, did exactly what we were supposed to do."

But he conceded: "I think East Leyden is a little tight now and forcing it. If they played loose, they'd kill everybody."

Six-foot forward Steve Shapiro tops the Little Giants with a 22.8 scoring pace. Schwalbach averages 17.8 and 6-2 forward Victor Venturi, coming off a groin injury, hit 12 points in the win over North Chicago.

Glenbrook's Spartans will counter with Ted Govedarica-Govedarica to the bucket. He's shooting 28.5 points per game after four dates.

"If Govedarica gets a couple down early, he'll keep going," Schramm said. "We tried to stop him last year, kept shutting guys in-and-out, but he was tough." Govedarica had 22 and 23-point games against Highland Park.

"He seems to be handling the ball more than last year," Schramm said. "We'll try to force him out, not give him anything, but we will concede his 20 points. If he misses a few, then our problems are solved."

It'll be Niles West at Deerfield in the evening's top CSL South division game. With Maine South (4-0) apparently for real, the next question is who might threaten the Hawks? Could it be Niles West or Deerfield?

Niles' Indians, 1-2 with a 17-point win over Evanston, are regrouping with only one starter, junior guard Marty Block, back from last year's super-sectional team. Niles was eliminated at Northwestern by New Trier East, state runner-up to Chicago Hirsch.

Deerfield is a better bet, if nine returning lettermen don't get foggy about their nine-game losing streak that closed out last winter's season. The Warriors slumped from 7-4 to 7-15.

"We reached a point where we no longer believed in ourselves," said Deerfield's Ron O'Connor. "So many of those games we lost ourselves rather than the other team won. We weren't very smart."

So far, they're thinking positive with wins over tough Wheeling (69-43) and Carmel (67-49). Their second game was a 61-50 overtime loss to North Chicago.

Carmel, with center Bob Svele getting 26 points and 18 rebounds, led 50-50 over Deerfield. "They didn't know when they were beaten," Niles West's Billy Schnurr said. "Deerfield did anything but fold."

It's tough to figure Niles West. They never have a really bad team. And they come on strong late. The Indians lost to Maine South by eight and three points last year before eliminating them by one in sectionals.

"We're always impressed with Niles

King-sized task for West

by MIKE KLEIN

"Anybody can go out and shoot a basketball, even old-timers like me," claimed Gaston Freeman, "but the big thing is defense. I was just reading Johnny Wooden. He says 15-40 per cent of all baskets are scored off defensive errors."

And therein, may lie Maine West's salvation when the Warriors open their Central Suburban season tonight at home against league favorite Maine South. Game time is 8 o'clock.

If the Warriors, who haven't won in three starts, can keep the pace slow and pressure Pete Boesen's defensive play, they might have a shot at upsetting the unbeaten (4-0) Hawks.

But should they get caught running, or let Boesen go unchallenged defensively, it's probably all over for West.

"If Boesen would happen to make a trip this weekend with his father, that would be worthwhile information," joked Freeman when told South's Bernie Brady might experiment with his lineup.

Offensively, Boesen is a beautiful player. He's picked up scoring slack that departed with two-time All-Chicago area selection Jerry Jones, now at Western Illinois. Boesen's 28 points and 14 rebounds led the Hawks past Elgin, 63-51, last weekend.

"He does a good job of freeing himself to get the basketball and is almost a tremendous shot around the baseline and pivot area," said Elgin head coach Bill Chesbrough.

"I think he does get set up a great deal by (Pete) Schmelzer. And the people who play wings for Bernie do a good job of looking for Boesen. The other thing he does well is go to the offensive boards."

But his defense is suspect.

"I think you can go to the basket on Boesen because New Trier East proved that," said Chesbrough. "Drake (Terry, Elgin's 6-8 All-State candidate) was getting the ball too far from the basket. If he'd been closer, our assignments would have worked out better."

But how to do it? Brady said he'll put 6-6 senior Schmelzer on West's Doug Myers, at 6-8 the Warriors' tallest and best player.

Schmelzer always gets the toughest defensive assignment. He guarded Drake man-to-man. Drake got 20 points and 10 rebounds. Schmelzer had 11 points, 10 rebounds.

Maine West has lost its starts by increasing margins of two, 15 and 22 points. During that span, they've switched from a run-and-gun offense that couldn't to a more methodical, definitely slower game.

The switch, which has involved Steve Zuccarini replacing Tom Greuter at forward, worked best last weekend against Proviso East. The Warriors slowed the pace to a 42-35 deficit after three quarters.

But Proviso got running during the last eight minutes. The Pirates forced 10 fourth quarter Maine turnovers and dashed into the night with a 68-44 victory.

Disappointing was only three points by 6-5 junior forward John Clark, a talented first year varsity player who must score to keep opponents from overloading on Myers. Zuccarini had 12 points against Proviso and moved smoothly around the bucket.

Getting the ball inside where Myers can work it for two points is the offensive move that Maine must refine. That development has been slowed by illness to one guard, Jim Goetz. Dan Myszka played against Proviso. Freeman isn't saying who'll start this evening. Glen Holden goes at wing.

South's Hawks will start Boesen at center, Schmelzer and Bob McCarthy at forwards and Tim Bopp at one guard. It'll be one of three — Denny Kladis, Rich Magnuson or John Reilly — at the other guard.

It wasn't an uncertain spot until this week. "Not the last three games," said Brady. "But we haven't been getting much out of it." Reilly has been the starter. All three are seniors. Reilly at 6-1 an inch taller than the other two.

The Hawks haven't gone past 70 points yet, a rarity for any Brady team. "We're not fast breaking as much as I'd like," he said. "Then again, if we hold people to 50 and score 65 ourselves, I'll be happy." Fifty-two points by Hersey is the highest Hawk yield.

Maine West has a non-conference date Saturday evening at Libertyville.

East, North searching for balance

by MIKE KLEIN

Keith Larson vs. George Kaufman. Their head coaches insist it shouldn't happen, but Maine East's Larson and Maine North's Kaufman could battle for shooting honors tonight in a Blue Demon-hosted Central Suburban game at eight o'clock.

It will be the CSL opener for East. The Norsemen lost their only loop decision last Friday at Niles North.

Actually, it would be a bad development for both clubs if Larson and Kaufman went it alone. East (1-4) and North (1-2) are looking for "balanced offense." East is closest with good support from Mark Mahoney (8.9) and Mark Berns (12.0).

"We don't go to one guy; we never have," said East head coach Paul McClelland. "Larson scores more (16.2 average) because when he gets opportunities, he makes more of them. But it won't be any one-man shooting match on our side."

Over at North, head coach Jerry Nelson is looking for anyone interested in abetting Kaufman's 18.0 average, far and away the club's top mark.

"We need more performance from our big men," Nelson said, echoing a statement often made. "Derek Brown and Mike Wilson must score. They must contribute if we're going to come out on top. And that doesn't mean scoring six points in the fourth quarter."

East and North are coming off completely opposite showings. The Blue Demons were rugged in a 40-45 loss at Waukegan. The Norsemen were blown off, 74-45, over at Niles North. They never had a chance.

"We never got untracked," said Nelson. "We didn't step to get the ball, pivot and look upcourt. Our guards were anxious to dribble up and throw to anyone who looked open. Instead of settling down, we compounded our mistakes." Kaufman had 24 points.

It came as a shock — "quite surprising," said Nelson — when the Blue Demons nearly muzzled Waukegan's Bulldogs in their own gym. Tonight's CSL game figured even despite East's 15-point win over Morton West a week before. But now, the Demons warrant at least a slight edge.

"And rightfully so," insisted McClelland. "We had Waukegan on the ropes. We had the game. It wasn't a fluke. We came within one shot (by Mahoney) of beating them; the shot just didn't drop."

Nelson said, "It's not that we didn't think Maine East was capable of playing a game like that. We just thought Larson (21 points and a sprained ankle) wasn't ready yet and it sounded like they were still trying different combinations over there."

East has put back-to-back 60 per cent shooting nights together. It's this area where Nelson hopes his Norsemen show improvement. Except for Wilson (22 per cent), all starters are shooting 33-to-38 per cent. That is a few notches better than last year.

Devon-53 backers may go elsewhere to obtain zoning

by FRED GACA

One of the developers of the proposed Devon-53 housing complex said his company may go to Itasca or Cook County for zoning if Elk Grove Village does not act soon.

Jack Buttitta, of the Buttitta Land Trust, said "We might have to go to the county or to Itasca for zoning. Itasca is interested in the land. We could put a shopping center there."

The Buttitta land is an 80-acre parcel north of Devon Avenue, between I-90 and Ill. Rte. 53. It is one of the three parcels in the 267-acre project.

BUTTITTA SAID the company has always been interested in having the Devon-53 project approved by Elk Grove Village, but the delay in getting village action is causing the company to look to other government agencies for zoning.

He said that if the company cannot get satisfactory zoning "we may sit on it (the land)."

"Sure we'd like to see it go through (approval from Elk Grove Village)," said Buttitta. "I can't understand why anyone wants to hold things up."

Most of the land for the project is in unincorporated Cook County. Two pieces of land in the project, totaling about 77 acres, already have zoning from Cook County for construction of a high-density planned unit development.

THE ENTIRE PROJECT is owned by four separate companies who agreed with a request made several years ago by Elk Grove Village to develop the land under a common plan.

The developers have petitioned the village for annexation of all the land and requested numerous zoning changes to permit higher density, less open space, less parking and higher building height than now permitted by the village's zoning ordinance.

The village board of trustees has tabled action on the request several times, pending more information from the village plan commission and the possibility of negotiating with the developers for a lower density project that would comply with the village zoning ordinances.

In the initial proposal for the project, the Buttitta land was planned for residential housing and a commercial or business area.

IN OCTOBER, two of the developers, the attorney and the planner of the project met with the village board of trustees. At the meeting, the developers suggested that Buttitta's 80-acre site could be developed as office buildings rather than residential housing.

After the offer to develop the Buttitta land for offices, several village officials speculated that the company may have separated from the other developers of the project.

Buttitta said yesterday, however, that the company was still part of the project.

The developers have not met or contacted the village since the October meeting.

Bus service for seniors welcomed

by BOB GALLAS

"I'm a good hiker, but this service was something we really needed," said Mrs. Esther Sove. Mrs. Sove was one of the first riders this week with a newly formed bus service for senior citizens in Elk Grove Township.

Sponsored by Elk Grove Township, the service provides free rides for senior citizens. By calling the township office and making an appointment a day in advance, seniors are picked up and dropped off at their front door.

"I used to walk or sometimes asked my daughter to drive me," said Mrs. Sove, 78. "Now I can get around to Woodfield and the post office on my own," she said.

About 35 persons are expected to take advantage of the service this week. More are expected when word of mouth gets around after seniors who use the service tell their friends.

"I plan to use it twice a week," said Dennis Sullivan of Elk Grove Village. "But I don't think a lot of people know about it. I wouldn't have known if I hadn't read about it in the newspaper," added Sullivan.

THE NEW BUS service will mean quite a savings to Sullivan and his wife. "I had to use a taxi anytime I had to go somewhere," said Sullivan.

The township presently rents a bus and driver from Davidmeyer bus firm. The bus service for seniors will be tested for a two-month period. If successful, township officials have already budgeted money to purchase a bus and hire a driver to operate the service full time.

Township seniors can use the service

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gapers as it rolled

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitches were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses," Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some Northwest suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for The Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown from Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 280 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Bolterman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

HOLIDAY HAPPENING will be the theme of a bazaar quilt which will be given away free to someone who this Saturday at Christus Victor Church in Elk Grove Village. Alice Louko helps put the finishing touches on a quilt which will be given away free to someone who attends the bazaar, which will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the church, 1045 Arlington Heights Rd.

Trial of man, 25, gets continuance

The trial of Richard Gosse, 25, of 118 Parkchester Rd., was continued to Jan. 30 in the Elk Grove Village branch of the circuit court.

Gosse is charged with three counts of resisting arrest and one count of disorderly conduct. The charges were placed after Gosse became unruly and abusive after being stopped for a traffic violation, according to Elk Grove Village police.

The case was continued Wednesday because some documents were not available for the trial.

Guard your purse, packages in car during holiday buying

by STIRLING MORITA
Cling tightly to those purses and cover up purchases left in the car while shopping, local authorities warn.

Christmas shopping crowds not only provide a multitude of victims, but the obscurity for quick, sticky fingers. Unlocked cars may offer an unwatched, lucrative haul for thieves.

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy said large shopping centers such as the Woodfield Mall "are natural targets for thieves, just like in the Loop" because of the large numbers of Christmas shoppers.

TIPS TO PREVENT thefts while shopping included:

- Cling tightly to purses. Do not allow them to swing freely from the shoulder or arm.

- Wrap coat tightly around body.

- Look around instantly if bumped by a stranger.

- Lock car doors, roll up windows and place purchased items in the trunk or cover them up in the car.

Conroy said there have been no large number of thefts reported since the official Christmas shopping season opened after Thanksgiving Day. But he added that he wanted to prevent a 1974 repeat of the number of thefts from cars last year. He said pickpockets were not that much of a problem in Schaumburg.

"They'll (pickpockets or purse snatchers) distract your attention by bumping into you," Conroy said. "Then they'll apologize while they're reaching

From the library

The entire community is invited to a Christmas open house and tree-tagging ceremony at the Elk Grove Village Public Library Thursday, Dec. 13 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Featured will be refreshments, caroling, the movie "A Christmas Carol," the original six-minute science fiction film about the library of the future created this year by the library staff and Film-makers Club, Santa Claus, and the tree tagging.

"Tagging the tree" is a custom borrowed from Williamsburg, Va. An undecorated tree is hung with tags bearing the names of holiday visitors. By the time the holidays arrive the tree bears a snowfall of names and has become a truly "community" tree. Visitors can "read" as well as tag the tree.

STUCK FOR SOME ideas on how to decorate your home this Christmas without using electric lights?

The library has some ideas for you at their Christmas alterations workshops Dec. 11 at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. The natural materials and charming customs used in colonial Williamsburg will be featured by Mary Clark, administration librarian and Naomi Kilik, display director.

Some of the suggestions will be: A new kind of Christmas tree—tagged instead of decorated, fruit-and-berry wreaths and apple cones which might have brightened the 19th century home.

The decorations created at the workshops will be used to decorate the library for the open house.

Tight library finances rule out computer service plan

A tight money situation has forced Schaumburg Township Public Library trustees to turn down a computer library service they want.

As a member of the North Suburban Library Systems the Schaumburg library was offered an opportunity to participate in the first cluster of computer service areas planned by the system.

The consensus of library trustee opinion was that the district could not at this time afford the estimated $14,000 a year cost.

Bill Larson of the NSLS told the board the Schaumburg library could join Northbrook, Glenview, Glencoe and Zion in the first cluster to share a mini-computer that would serve all five libraries.

OUTRIGHT PURCHASE of a computer service would cost $50,000 to $70,000. A computer has the ability to serve groups of libraries, with each paying a pro-rated use cost, said Larson.

The Elgin library bought a system for its own use, said Larson.

Michael Madden, librarian, said space for a computer was allotted when the new library wing was planned. "There is no doubt that a computer would increase efficiency and free employees for work that cannot be done by a computer," said Madden.

"However, at this time we are operating on a tight budget and just cannot spend the additional funds, even if we shared the cost with others," he added.

MADDEN SAID the computer would prepare overdue notices, keep track of reserve requests, keep an inventory record, and do all the clerical tasks several staff members now take days to accomplish.

"This does not mean we would eliminate staff, but free them for work the machine cannot do," said Madden. "In fact we might need additional staff the first years we use the computer to convert the collection," he added.

Madden said the NSLS will loan each group of libraries who want to take part in a service group the money to purchase a computer. The libraries then pay back the loan on a yearly basis.

Since Schaumburg did not join the first group it may have to wait at least a year before a second group is formed, said Madden.

"We may have put off computerizing our services now but it is definitely a process this library is interested in for the future," he added.

Sax says his singles parties are no 'rip off'

Barry Sax and the singles bashers he promotes are not a rip off. If they were, Sax would not be at Arlington Park Race Track planning a second singles mixer on Dec. 14.

That is the message the 39-year-old Canadian entrepreneur is putting out in media advertising and last night at a press conference at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Sax said 8,000 people got inside the Regency Hyatt House Hotel on Nov. 23 for what was hyped as the world's largest international singles party. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 were locked out, he estimates. He hopes the Dec. 14th party will be as big.

"MY SINCERITY in giving full value for the dollar was there," Sax says of the Hyatt House party. "If it wasn't, if it was a sham, I would be here. I'd be in Acapulco or somewhere," he says.

But he admits there were problems with the Hyatt House party. Some of its bad reputation he blames on the Chicago media.

"There were four to five people yelling, 'Rip off, rip off' and ABC and NBC televised them as a major event. Consequently Can-Am was a rip off in the minds of many people."

Sax estimates that only 5 to 10 per cent of the Hyatt House good time seekers were disappointed with the party.

Another part of the problem was, he says, the Hyatt House itself. "They were not prepared for the crowd. They panicked."

Arlington Park, he says, is ready for a crowd, and things will be groovier the second time around, he hopes.

To attract more female singles, Can-Am has booked a rock 'n' roll heavy from the 50's, Fabian, as its headliner.

Food, which ran out at the Hyatt House, will be served throughout the evening, he says.

ADMISSION WILL be restricted to persons 21 years of age and older.

As an incentive to the disenchanted, Sax is admitting ticket holders from the Hyatt House at no additional charge. Others will pay the same $10 admission charge.

Sax says he made only $15,000 on the first party — the money is still tied up in escrow in the aftermath of the Hyatt House extravaganza.

He hopes to make more at Arlington Park, and also clear the name of Can-Am productions, a year-old enterprise he would like to build into an empire.

"I'm out to make a dollar, out to do something a little bit different; something nobody else probably has had the guts to do."

Seniors like new bus service to travel anywhere within the township, which covers Elk Grove Village and parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. The bus service also goes outside the township, taking shoppers to Woodfield.

At the present time, the service operates between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

"I plan to use it regularly," said Roy Muth, of Arlington Heights who used the bus for a trip to the bank.

For more information on the service, contact Margaret Blaschke at the township office, 437-0000.

Centner hearing in 2nd day; more trustees on stand

The second day of a public hearing between ousted Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner and village trustees continues today at 9 a.m. in the village hall, 54 S. Brockway St., Palatine.

The first hearing date Saturday brought testimony from three of five Republican village officials: Village Pres. Wendell Jones and trustees Bryan Coughlin and Richard Fonte.

Jack Siegel, special village attorney presenting the village board's case, is expected to call more trustees to testify at today's hearing.

Extensive cross-examination by Centner's attorney, John D. Hayes, revealed Saturday that four Republican trustees had met secretly in June at Coughlin's home to discuss the police and health departments, shortly before the board voted to oust Centner.

Village officials agreed to the hearing in August, to detail the board's reasons for wanting Centner out. Charges issued against Centner accuse him of ineffective policies on drug control, inspection of overweight trucks, surveillance of taverns for late-night underage drinkers, and administration of men in the department.

Today's testimony is not expected to end the hearing. Saturday, Siegel said he had 12 more witnesses to call, and Hayes said he has issued 18 subpoenas for witnesses, although some of those subpoenaed may be called first by Siegel.

Sax says his singles parties are no 'rip off'

Barry Sax and the singles bashers he promotes are not a rip off. If they were, Sax would not be at Arlington Park Race Track planning a second singles mixer on Dec. 14.

That is the message the 39-year-old Canadian entrepreneur is putting out in media advertising and last night at a press conference at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Sax said 8,000 people got inside the Regency Hyatt House Hotel on Nov. 23 for what was hyped as the world's largest international singles party. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 were locked out, he estimates. He hopes the Dec. 14th party will be as big.

"MY SINCERITY in giving full value for the dollar was there," Sax says of the Hyatt House party. "If it wasn't, if it was a sham, I would be here. I'd be in Acapulco or somewhere," he says.

But he admits there were problems with the Hyatt House party. Some of its bad reputation he blames on the Chicago media.

"There were four to five people yelling, 'Rip off, rip off' and ABC and NBC televised them as a major event. Consequently Can-Am was a rip off in the minds of many people."

Sax estimates that only 5 to 10 per cent of the Hyatt House good time seekers were disappointed with the party.

Another part of the problem was, he says, the Hyatt House itself. "They were not prepared for the crowd. They panicked."

Arlington Park, he says, is ready for a crowd, and things will be groovier the second time around, he hopes.

To attract more female singles, Can-Am has booked a rock 'n' roll heavy from the 50's, Fabian, as its headliner.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing com-

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitches were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

O Christmas Tree... are you real or fake?

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some Northwest suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for the Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown from Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 280 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Botterman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

Hoffman Estates planners oppose townhouse plan

Hoffman Estates should refuse to rezone 52.7 acres of land to permit construction of 490 townhouse rental units south of Mudbank Road between Freeman and Barrington roads, according to the village plan commission.

The commission voted unanimously, with one member absent, to recommend the village board deny the rezoning request. The land now is zoned for single-family homes on one-acre lots.

Nathan Shefner, owner of the property, hoped to construct 107 one and two-story buildings in eight clusters around a retention pond. Access for residents was to be through adjoining property owned by Shefner that lies in South Barrington. The townhouses were to have been constructed of rough-hewn cedar.

Questions asked by plan commission members indicated concern for traffic control, flood-water retention and access for sewer and water service.

BEFORE VOTING, the commissioners heard objections from adjoining property owners and spokesmen for other villages. Among those objecting were James McKenna, manager of Pfizer Drug's midwest distribution center; Donald Klein, executive of the Barrington Area Council of Governments (BACOG); George Moser, a Barrington homeowner representing himself and other area homeowners; Russell Puzey, president of Inverness, and Frank Munao, chairman of the South Barrington plan commission.

William Brathwaite, attorney for BACOG, also argued against the proposal, saying Shefner had admitted he had not even tried to develop the land under existing zoning although his own land planner said it could be done. He also said Shefner had not provided adequate assurance of water and sewer supply, and termed the project speculative.

At Shefner's request, the plan commission recommendation will not be forwarded to the village board for consideration until mid-January.

Plan funded by Palatine Township

Canvassers explain program for aged

Canvassers for the Palatine Township Council on the Aged are visiting homes of area senior citizens to explain a new activities and information program funded by Palatine Township.

Joyce Lennox, coordinator of the program, said that more than 200 elderly residents have been contacted personally or by letters left at the home by three part-time canvassers.

"Most seniors have been quite responsive to the outreach workers' visit," Mrs. Lennox said. One of the aims of the group is to provide special services and activities for those who might not otherwise get involved in community activities.

"We want to fill in the gaps of unmet needs," Mrs. Lennox said.

The township's committee on the aged is investigating possible locations in the area for a senior citizen drop-in center, although definite plans have not been formed.

SERVICES ALREADY offered by the township-funded group include transportation for shopping trips and participation in senior citizens programs at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly and the Plum Grove Nursing Home, both in Palatine.

"One woman called us for help in moving her things to another apartment," Mrs. Lennox explained as one of the ways the program is designed to aid the elderly. Other new projects Mrs. Lennox says she hopes to start are more transportation services, cooperative discount programs at local restaurants and pharmacies, and a volunteer group to work with the homebound elderly.

A newsletter also is being organized to detail the events available to township senior citizens.

More information about the program is available by calling Mrs. Lennox at 991-1112.

Palatine Township officials agreed to fund the project last summer, when they pledged up to $14,000 for the first year from their federal revenue-sharing allotment.

Hearing on Ramada Inn zoning set for Dec. 14

The zoning hearing on the proposed Ramada Inn in unincorporated Palatine Township will be held Dec. 14 although approval of connecting the project to the village's water system is still pending.

The Palatine Plan Commission will recommend to the Palatine Village Board Monday that no objection to the proposed Ramada Inn be filed at the zoning hearing before the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. Instead, the plan commission is recommending the village request 60 days to file an objection.

Connection of the 7½-acre parcel on the northeast corner of Quentin Road and Northwest Highway next to Uncle Andy's Cow Palace to the village's water system is still under consideration by the plan commission. The plan commission is withholding approval of the water connection until a planned unit development for the entire parcel, including the present site of Uncle Andy's, is prepared.

IN RETURN for a connection with the village's water system, the developers of the Ramada Inn have agreed to abide by all village codes in developing the land and to annex to the village as soon as it is possible.

Revenue sharing is a program providing for distribution of part of the federal government's income to state and local governments.

Park district to hire aide

A full time recreation and maintenance supervisor for the Salt Creek Park District will be hired soon.

The park board Tuesday approved plans to establish the new position at the recommendation of Supt. of Parks and Recreation James DeVos.

DeVos said the new supervisor will assist him in planning new programming, especially adult and family programs. He said the district plans to increase programming by about 25 per cent in the next year, with most of the increase coming in adult and family recreation. The district currently offers about 20 winter programs.

"We've been talking about the energy crisis and the board has looked twice," he said. "We realize that people will be staying home and looking for recreation close to home."

The position will pay $7,600 yearly, DeVos said. He said several candidates are being considered, including Bill Kleck, a part-time district employee.

Kleck has a two-year degree from Harper College and has worked with DeVos for three years.

Holiday toy drive gets under way

It's Christmas time and Elayne Maruska's ninth annual Yule toy drive for mentally retarded children is underway.

Mrs. Maruska, 1128 E. Patten Dr., Palatine, will be collecting toys and Betty Crocker coupons, which are redeemable for cash, until Dec. 14.

The toys are given to mentally retarded children at state institutions including Dixon, Lincoln, Centralia, Harrisburg and Dwight state schools. The coupons are redeemed for cash and used to buy additional Christmas presents and equipment for the schools.

In past years trucks have been necessary to take the more than 1,000 presents which are collected from residents of the community to the schools.

Coupons and gifts may be mailed to Mrs. Maruska or dropped off at her home in the evening.

Third bogus $20 bill shows up in city

Another counterfeit $20 bill has been recovered by Rolling Meadows police, the third bogus bill to turn up in the city within two months.

The bill was discovered in receipts at the Bank of Rolling Meadows yesterday. Last month another counterfeit $20 bill was found at the bank, and in October a fake $10 bill was turned in to the bank.

Police have notified the United States Treasury Department in each of the three cases, but the source of the bills is not known.

The bills are believed to be "strays" of bills being passed on the West and Southwest sides of Chicago, Treasury agents have said.

Bazaar slated Saturday

An old-fashioned bazaar will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday in St. Paul United Church of Christ, 144 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Booths will be decorated like old country stores and all goods sold will be handmade. Included among items to be sold are baked goods, canned goods, craft items, knitted items and quilts.

A light lunch also will be served. For more information call Monica Wylie at 825-1285.

ADMISSION WILL be restricted to persons 21 years of age and older. As an incentive to the disenchanted, Sax is admitting ticket holders from the Hyatt House at no additional charge. Others will pay the same $10 admission charge.

Sax says he made only $15,000 on the first party — the money is still tied up in escrow in the aftermath of the Hyatt House extravaganza.

He hopes to make more at Arlington Park, and also clear the name of Can-Am productions, a year-old enterprise he would like to build into an empire.

MEMO TO: FREMD AND PALATINE HONOR STUDENTS FROM: BY THE SEAT OF YOUR PANTS

You really did it up big and distinguished yourselves as something special by making the recent quarter honor roll. Perhaps you would like to know that there are people out here who are most impressed with your achievement. Making it into that select group did not come easy for you. It took hard work, and determination on your part. Putting forth that second effort, has brought you to where you are now. Keep doing what ever you're doing because the results have been tremendous. Our eyes are upon you and we'll be expecting great things from you in the future. Congratulations and good luck!

City council will consider liquor license

A proposal to make available another liquor license in Rolling Meadows will likely be considered next month by the Rolling Meadows City Council.

The council's licensing committee last night heard two separate proposals from firms seeking a license in order to serve liquor at new restaurants.

The city currently has eight licenses available which are all issued to existing restaurants in the city. The council has the power to increase the number of available licenses, but only Mayor Roland Meyer, as liquor commissioner, has the power to issue licenses.

THE TWO FIRMS which appeared before the committee last night are seeking separate liquor classifications. The Steak and Ale restaurant chain, which is seeking to build a facility on Algonquin and Golf roads, has requested a license to serve all liquors.

Another proposal, from the developers of the Python office complex on Newport Drive off Algonquin, seeks a special license to serve liquor for longer hours.

Representatives from the Steak and Ale chain, a Texas-based firm, have appeared before the committee in September with their original plan. Last night's appearance was held to present tentative plans for a revised building appearance which would distinguish the restaurant from the Hungry Lion, a restaurant located about a half mile west of the proposed location which is similar the Steak and Ale design.

The second proposal calls for the addition of what developers termed "a plush restaurant" on the sixth floor of an office building under construction in the Python complex.

CHARLES STROCK, one of the Python developers, said the restaurant would be similar to the exclusive decor of the Continental Plaza in downtown Chicago. He said the firm plans to invest $300,000 in the interior of the restaurant if the operation is granted a liquor license.

The building is not expected to be completed for eight to nine months, he added, saying that plans for a restaurant are still tentative.

Both plans, however, were received with some reservations by committee members who questioned whether more restaurants should be allowed to be built on Algonquin Road.

The city council is expected to consider for a first reading Tuesday the committee's proposal to increase the number of liquor licenses available in the city. The matter will then likely be decided by the council at its Dec. 26 meeting.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gapers as it rolled

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

Sax says his singles parties are no 'rip off'

Barry Sax and the singles bashers he promotes are not a rip off. If they were, Sax would not be at Arlington Park Race Track planning a second singles mixer on Dec. 14.

That is the message the 39-year-old Canadian entrepreneur is putting out in media advertising and last night at a press conference at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Sax said 8,000 people got inside the Regency Hyatt House Hotel on Nov. 23 for what was hyped as the world's largest international singles party. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 were locked out, he estimates. He hopes the Dec. 14th party will be as big.

"MY SINCERITY in giving full value for the dollar was there," Sax says of the Hyatt House party. "If it wasn't, if it was a sham, I would be here. I'd be in Acapulco or somewhere," he says.

But he admits there were problems with the Hyatt House party. Some of his bad reputation he blames on the Chicago media.

"There were four to five people yelling, 'Rip off, rip off' and ABC and NBC televised them as a major event. Consequently Can-Am was a rip off in the minds of many people."

Sax estimates that only 5 to 10 per cent of the Hyatt House good time seekers were disappointed with the party.

Another part of the problem was, he says, the Hyatt House itself. "They were not prepared for the crowd. They panicked."

Arlington Park, he says, is ready for a crowd, and things will be groovier the second time around, he hopes.

To attract more female singles, Can-Am has booked a rock 'n' roll heavy from the 50's, Fabian, as its headliner.

Food, which ran out at the Hyatt House, will be served throughout the evening, he says.

ADMISSION WILL be restricted to persons 21 years of age and older.

As an incentive to the disenchanted, Sax is admitting ticket holders from the Hyatt House at no additional charge. Others will pay the same $10 admission charge.

And they're off!

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitches were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some North-west suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for The Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown from Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 220 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Botterman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

Thompson assistant speaks

by KURT BAER

The chief of the U. S. attorney's criminal division, speaking in Arlington Heights yesterday, criticized the nonsentencing of attorney William Kunstler and three of the Chicago Seven on contempt of court charges.

U. S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux yesterday refused to impose a sentence on the four conspiracy trial defendants saying, "The court is convinced that now, four years after the trial, no warrant exists for the imposition of jail sentences which have already been served by the non-lawyer defendants."

Assistant U. S. Atty. Arthur Connelly, standing in for U. S. Atty. James Thompson at a meeting of the Arlington Heights Rotary Club yesterday, said the contempt convictions announced Tuesday warranted at least a $5,000 fine, and that he personally would have imposed a maximum 177-day jail sentence.

"I'd stop short of 180 days because then they'd be eligible for parole," Connelly, a 16-year veteran of U. S. attorney's office, told the Rotary audience.

HE SAID THOMPSON had pleaded with Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork, now acting U. S. attorney general, not to drop prosecution of the contempt charges, despite pressure from deans of eastern law schools to do so.

Race fixers may lose licenses

Jockeys, trainers and owners allegedly involved in race fixing at Arlington Park Race Track, may be refused licenses to race here again, says Illinois Racing Board chairman Anthony Scarlano.

Scarlano said the racing board would not enter into the specifics of the race fixing charges, pending possible prosecution by the Cook County state's attorney.

"We on the racing board are in a delicate position because, on the one hand, we ferret out crime and cause prosecution, while also sitting in judgment on licensing (of tracks and horsemen).

"We can't go in with any preconceived notions, but any prosecution or convictions would be a factor in contemplating whether or not to revoke their licenses," he said.

The betting ring allegedly involved fixed trifecta races at Arlington Park last summer in which the order of finish in trifecta races was rigged to pay off for bettors with the inside information.

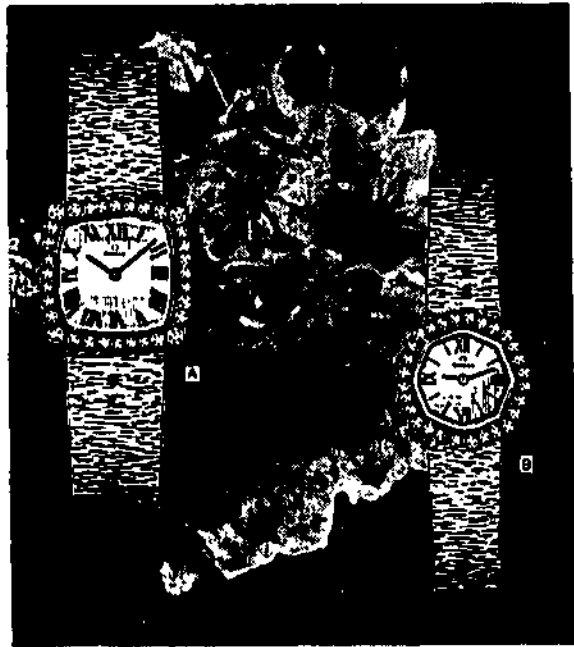

The race fixing scheme reportedly involved at least five jockeys, three trainers and two owners.

In his ruling yesterday, Gignoux repeated portions of the U. S. Court of Appeals comments on the often turbulent 1969-70 riot conspiracy trial, noting that the "nonjudicial atmosphere" was created almost equally by the government as well as the defense.

KUNSTLER, who faces possible disbarment in New York, has said he will appeal the recent contempt convictions. While disagreeing with the judge's decision not to sentence Kunstler, David Dellinger, Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin on the contempt convictions, Connelly said that Gignoux has a reputation as a fine judge and had made the decision according to his own conscience.

After the ruling yesterday, Thompson thanked the judge "for nobleness of courtroom conduct" and told him that his handling of the six-week trial was "probably the best I've ever seen in an American court of law."

Energy crisis may bring about transit center

by PAT GERLACH

The energy crisis may help to make a regional transit center proposed near Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park a reality.

Members of Schaumburg's mass transportation planning committee this week were given one year in which to research and formulate master planning for the center.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher, who revealed preliminary plans for the transportation hub three years ago, envisions the facility as "one which would serve the northern half of DuPage County as well as the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates-Hanover Park-Streamwood area."

Tentative ideas for the center include purchase of 20 acres south of Irving

Park Road near Schaumburg Airport. The land, which lies along The Milwaukee Road's west division commuter line, would be used for a depot and commuter parking for 3,000 cars.

ATCHER ALSO suggests the committee contact Medinah, Elk Grove, Roselle and Bloomingdale to explore possible cooperation in establishing a new commuter station between the existing depots at Medinah and Roselle.

Village funds cannot be expended outside of the corporate limits of a municipality he emphasized. He also noted the possibility of forming a transportation district for this purpose.

Since the eastern portion of Schaumburg is becoming the population center of the village, he believes a commuter station easily accessible to these residents should be of primary concern.

ALSO UNDER consideration is a separate freight station which would be included at the west end of the village. Piggyback loading facilities and a truck terminal could be included, the mayor believes.

Feeder buses and taxi stations must also be provided to round out the center, Atcher says.

The village is now awaiting approval of federal funding for a study to determine feasibility of enlarging the existing airport as well as possible village acquisition of the facility.

Atcher described the site in southern Schaumburg as ideal for a transportation center in view of the extension of Springinguth Road south of Irving Park Road.

"It is our understanding from the state that this will eventually link up on the south with Gary Avenue coming out of Wheaton," Atcher said. He also noted that Springinguth Road is slated for extension north of the Illinois Tollway to Freeman Road.

COMPLETION OF the Elgin-O'Hare Expressway, which Atcher anticipates in the next several years, will provide a link to Chicago.

He told committee members they are expected to come up with as much of the planning as possible "on their own" but advised they could also recommend that the village board approve professional consulting services to assist them.

He believes it may be possible to fund the project, at least in part, with Motor Fuel Tax funds which could be committed to the job over a period of years.

HE SAID LAND for the center, as well as the airport if municipal purchase is recommended, would be acquired through condemnation.

The committee will meet Jan. 3 at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall to begin formulating a procedure for carrying out their planning assignment.

Hospital unit expects OK from state

Hoffman Estates Hospital Committee members are anticipating a favorable response within two weeks from the state health planning agency concerning the construction of the planned 312-bed facility.

Richard Regan, chairman of the committee, expressed optimism about approval. "If they say no, they have to show due cause."

"Now the work begins," said Terry Schuessler, administrator for American Mediacorp, the hospital's developer. He added that the company's architects could start drawing up final designs soon.

Schuessler said the Illinois State Comprehensive Planning Agency must reply because the committee filed a financial obligation, "showing serious intent to construct the facility."

The financial obligation came in the form of a notice of a construction contract signed with the company's development subsidiary.

Schuessler said current plans call for construction to be completed in 1975, adding that similar hospitals built by American Mediacorp in Texas, Florida and Georgia were finished in about 14 months.

Mayor Virginia Hayter said she hoped the hospital "would now move rapidly to completion," noting the need for hospital beds in the community.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gapers as it rolled

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitchers were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gaze.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

The local scene

Santa's coming to town

Santa is on his way. One stop has been scheduled from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Sunday in the Schaumburg High School parking lot, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd. Old Saint Nick will arrive on the Schaumburg Jaycees' fire truck. Candy treats will be available to the children.

Local units in parade

Clown groups from both the Jaycees and Rotary Club in Schaumburg will march Saturday in Chicago's Christmas Parade on Michigan Avenue. The Jaycee fire truck is ready for the event, said Andy Zocher, head clown. A fire truck from the Rotary Rascals is expected to make its debut in the parade, added Darrell Moon, Rotary chairman. Both organizations are sending their clown units to the parade for the second year. The parade will be on TV at 11 a.m. on Channel 9.

Dunbar Lakes preview

Schaumburg officials got a sneak preview last night of nine new townhouses and villas in the Dunbar Lakes development. The preview was made at 8 p.m. at Lancer's Restaurant, Algonquin and Meacham roads, before dinner. Mayor Robert O. Atcher received a deed and commemorative plaque for the Dunbar Corp.'s contribution of 20 acres of land contiguous to the planned civic center's property.

Longer hours for post office

Window service at post offices in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Roselle will be extended an extra four hours this Saturday and Dec. 18. The windows normally are open from 8 a.m. to noon, but for the two Saturdays before Christmas weekend they will remain open until 4 p.m. There still will be no window or delivery service on Sundays.

Bulletproof vest for police

The Schaumburg Police Department has received a new 40-pound, bulletproof vest. The vest, which costs about $520, will be stored in the department's evidence technician van for use during armed robberies or bomb disposal.

Democrats meeting today

Democrats in Schaumburg Township will gather at 7:45 p.m. today to elect officers to the Regular Democratic Organization of Schaumburg Township, conduct a short business meeting and hold a holiday cocktail party. The event will take place at the Maitre d' Restaurant at Higgins and Arlington Heights roads, Elk Grove Village. Anyone interested in membership is invited to the meeting. A $5 membership fee will be collected. Officers to be filled that night are: president, three vice presidents in charge of publicity, membership and special events, a secretary and treasurer. Also, parliamentarian, committeewoman and an assistant to Committeeman John F. Morrissey.

4 Schaumburg High music events slated

The Schaumburg High School choir and band will give a total of four performances in the community this month. Tomorrow the choir will perform in the center mall at the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg at 2 p.m. Sunday at 7 p.m. the choir will sing during the school's madrigal dinner at the Villa Olivia Country Club in Bartlett. The band and the choir will hold their Christmas concert Dec. 18 in the school gymnasium. The band concert will be given at 3 p.m. and the choir's concert will be given at 8 p.m.

Library finances rule out computer

A tight money situation has forced Schaumburg Township Public Library trustees to turn down a computer library service they want. As a member of the North Suburban Library Systems the Schaumburg library was offered an opportunity to participate in the first cluster of computer service areas planned by the system. The consensus of library trustee opinion was that the district could not at this time afford the estimated $14,000 a year cost.

Bill Larson of the NSLS told the board the Schaumburg library could join Northbrook, Glenview, Glenview and Zion in the first cluster to share a mini-computer that would serve all five libraries.

OUTRIGHT PURCHASE of a computer service would cost $50,000 to $70,000. A computer has the ability to serve groups of libraries, with each paying a pro-rated use cost, said Larson.

The Elgin library bought a system for its own use, said Larson.

Michael Madden, librarian, said space for a computer was allotted when the new library wing was planned. "There is no doubt that a computer would increase efficiency and free employees for work that cannot be done by a computer," said Madden.

"However, at this time we are operating on a tight budget and just cannot spend the additional funds, even if we shared the cost with others," he added.

MADDEN SAID the computer would prepare overdue notices, keep track of reserve requests, keep an inventory record, and do all the clerical tasks sev-

Sax says his singles parties are no 'rip off'

Barry Sax and the singles bashers he promotes are not a rip off. If they were, Sax would not be at Arlington Park Race Track planning a second singles mixer on Dec. 14.

That is the message the 39-year-old Canadian entrepreneur is putting out in media advertising and last night at a press conference at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Sax said 8,000 people got inside the Regency Hyatt House Hotel on Nov. 23 for what was hyped as the world's largest international singles party. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 were locked out, he estimates. He hopes the Dec. 14th party will be as big.

"MY SINCERITY in giving full value for the dollar was there," Sax says of the Hyatt House party. "If it wasn't, if it was a sham, I would be here. I'd be in Acapulco or somewhere," he says.

But he admits there were problems with the Hyatt House party. Some of its bad reputation he blames on the Chicago media.

"There were four to five people yelling, 'Rip off, rip off' and ABC and NBC televised them as a major event. Consequently Can-Am was a rip off in the minds of many people." Sax estimates that only 5 to 10 per cent of the Hyatt House good time seekers were disappointed with the party.

Another part of the problem was, he says, the Hyatt House itself. "They were not prepared for the crowd. They panicked."

Arlington Park, he says, is ready for a crowd, and things will be groovier the second time around, he hopes.

To attract more female singles, Can-Am has booked a rock 'n' roll heavy from the 50's, Fabian, as its headliner.

Food, which ran out at the Hyatt House, will be served throughout the evening, he says.

ADMISSION WILL be restricted to persons 21 years of age and older.

As an incentive to the disenchanted, Sax is admitting ticket holders from the Hyatt House at no additional charge. Others will pay the same $10 admission charge.

Sax says he made only $15,000 on the first party — the money is still tied up in escrow in the aftermath of the Hyatt House extravaganza.

Hoffman Estates planners oppose townhouse project

Hoffman Estates should refuse to rezone 52.7 acres of land to permit construction of 480 townhouse rental units south of Mudhank Road between Freeman and Barrington roads, according to the village plan commission.

The commission voted unanimously, with one member absent, to recommend the village board deny the rezoning request. The land now is zoned for single-family homes on one-acre lots.

Nathan Shefner, owner of the property, hoped to construct 107 one and two-story buildings in eight clusters around a retention pond. Access for residents was to be through adjoining property owned by Shefner that lies in South Barrington. The townhouses were to have been constructed of rough-hewn cedar.

Questions asked by plan commission members indicated concern for traffic control, flood-water retention and access for sewer and water service.

BEFORE VOTING, the commissioners heard objections from adjoining property owners and spokesmen for other villages. Among those objecting were James McKenna, manager of Pfizer Drug's midwest distribution center; Donald Klein, executive of the Barrington Area Council of Governments (BACOG); George Moser, a Barrington homeowner representing himself and other area homeowners; Russell Puzey, president of Inverness, and Frank Munao, chairman of the South Barrington plan commission.

William Braithwaite, attorney for BACOG, also argued against the proposal, saying Shefner had admitted he had not even tried to develop the land under existing zoning although his own land planner said it could be done. He also said Shefner had not provided adequate assurance of water and sewer supply, and termed the project speculative.

At Shefner's request, the plan commission recommendation will not be forwarded to the village board for consideration until mid-January.

Local man to appear on bribery charges

A Hoffman Estates man charged with six counts of bribery has been scheduled to appear for trial at 10 a.m. Feb. 11, 1974 in U.S. District Court in Chicago.

Matthew Mentzen, 153 Arlington St., was indicted Sept. 1 along with a construction company president in connection with alleged bribes to a Federal Housing Authority official.

Mentzen and Phillip Rose, president of Phillips Construction Co., Dundee were accused of bribing former FHA loan specialist John J. Zoch to provide special treatment of housing built by Phillips Construction.

Sports complex play center gets new games

The open recreation center at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, established this fall, now has new equipment.

Two bumper pool tables have been set up, adding a new game to the existing foosball, ping pong, air hockey, chess, checker and card games already established in the recreation room. No charge is made for using the equipment. Park officials said the equipment and supervisory personnel costs the district $7,000.

Park District Director Steve Person said that attendance in the center was sparse at first, but is increasing daily. He estimated that 15 to 25 youngsters use the center daily and about 40 to 50 teens use the facilities on Saturday teen nights.

THE RECREATION room and the gym together could hold about 100 people at a time, Person said. Eventually, both rooms will be open to use as part of the center. Once the equipment is installed, the gym will offer paddleboard, a putting area, basketball and weightlifting. Presently, the gym offers only the putting area and basketball.

"I'm very excited about this," Person said. "I think this is a fantastic program. It's a place for youngsters," he added. "The old connotation would be a drop-in center."

Though the center is presently most popular among the younger generation, specific hours are set up for men, women and families. Information on the hours can be obtained by calling either the park district office, 392-4330, or the sports complex office, 394-4330.

Person said that as the demand for the use of the equipment expands, more games will be included. The center is presently being financed through profits from the ice rink.

Park district to hire aide

A full time recreation and maintenance supervisor for the Salt Creek Park District will be hired soon.

The park board Tuesday approved plans to establish the new position at the recommendation of Supt. of Parks and Recreation James DeVos.

DeVos said the new supervisor will assist him in planning new programming, especially adult and family programs. He said the district plans to increase programming by about 25 per cent in the next year, with most of the increase coming in adult and family recreation. The district currently offers about 20 winter programs.

"We've been talking about the energy crisis and the board has looked twice," he said. "We realize that people will be staying home and looking for recreation close to home."

The position will pay $7,600 yearly, DeVos said. He said several candidates are being considered, including Bill Kleck, a part-time district employee.

Kleck has a two-year degree from Harper College and has worked with DeVos for three years.

Christmas trees go on sale here

Two organizations in Rolling Meadows will begin selling Christmas trees tomorrow.

The Rolling Meadows Jaycees will sell trees through Dec. 24 at the Topps parking lot on Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive. Scotch pines will be available at prices according to the height of the tree. The Jaycees will also give away coupons with tree purchases worth $1 at Topps toward any Christmas decoration.

The Community Church of Rolling Meadows will also begin selling trees tomorrow. Scotch pines and balsams will be available at costs depending on the height of the tree.

Seymour the Snake, Rolling Meadows

wants no part of you or your relatives. Rolling Meadows police notified the management of the Topps store yesterday that baby boa constrictors which have been on sale in the store's pet department must be removed. The two snakes, each about four feet long, sell for $15 at the store, but when police learned of the snakes, the management was told the store was violating a city "nuisance" ordinance.

The ordinance states that reptiles and serpents, along with a variety of other animals, may not be kept in the city.

Store officials told police the snakes "are harmless unless they are at least 10 feet long" and that several have already been sold. The snakes feed on live mice and other small animals, according to police.

Residents who may have purchased a snake for a pet are also in violation of the city ordinance, police said. Snake owners could be prosecuted if the reptiles are not removed.

Recently a village-wide search in Buffalo Grove took place for a lost pet snake named Seymour. The snake was at first believed to be poisonous but was later determined to be a harmless rat snake. Seymour has never been found.

Boy Scout first aid meet to draw 350

More than 350 Boy Scouts from Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows will participate Saturday in the annual first aid meet at Our Lady of the Way School in Arlington Heights.

The event begins at 9 a.m. in the school's gymnasium, 432 W. Park St. Five varied problems will be presented to the boys who will compete in their own patrols from the 25 troops in the local area of the Northwest Suburban Council's Sauk Woods District.

Time and the proper procedures in solving the problems involving burns, fractures and bites will determine the meet's winners.

Heading up the team of local Scout leaders responsible for this year's first aid meet is Andrew M. Turner, district activities chairman. Assisting him are Dieter Burkhardt, George Chapman, Paul Kaplan, Chuck Merrill and Ray Strattan. Also participating are Gerald Chapman, district chairman; Ed Kemper, commissioner, and David I. Ross, district executive. The event is open to the public.

Computer may speed library service

The Rolling Meadows Library Board is considering switching to a computerized system that would probably make book checkouts much faster.

The new system could also eliminate most of the three to four day-time lags involved in the present interlibrary loan system, according to library director Virginia Connell.

She said that patrons asking for a specific book would probably find out the same day which nearby libraries hold that volume, instead of several days later.

THE PROPOSED cost of the new system, is $3,240 per year with a five-year lease.

Under the proposed system, either two or four computer terminals would be set up in the library. Patrons would hand over a coded library card and the desired volumes, which also are coded. A librarian then passes a light pencil over the numbers. The pencil reports the numbers to a central computer, which will retain them until the book is returned.

Miss Connell said the computer would keep a list of all books taken out of the library, all books returned and have a core listing of about 30,000 books from several area libraries using a central computer.

This area's central computer would be located in the Arlington Heights Library, with terminals at the participating feeder libraries which could include Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

BESIDES THE core listing, every new book purchased by the participating libraries will be listed in the computer. Miss Connell said this listing would enable residents to find a specific volume almost immediately.

Under the existing interlibrary loan system, a resident would fill out a form, stating what specific book he wanted. The slip would be passed on to other libraries where staff members would try to find the book.

Once found the book would be sent from the library to Rolling Meadows. Miss Connell said this process takes at least three to four days.

Seniors like new bus service

by BOB GALLAS

"I'm a good hiker, but this service was something we really needed," said Mrs. Esther Sove. Mrs. Sove was one of the first riders this week with a newly formed bus service for senior citizens in Elk Grove Township.

Sponsored by Elk Grove Township, the service provides free rides for senior citizens. By calling the township office and making an appointment a day in advance, seniors are picked up and dropped off at their front door.

"I used to walk or sometimes asked my daughter to drive me," said Mrs. Sove, 68. "Now I can get around to Woodfield and the post office on my own," she said.

About 35 persons are expected to take advantage of the service this week. More are expected when word of mouth gets around after seniors who use the service tell their friends.

"I plan to use it twice a week," said Dennis Sullivan of Elk Grove Village. "But I don't think a lot of people know about it. I wouldn't have known if I hadn't read about it in the newspaper," added Sullivan.

THE NEW BUS service will mean quite a savings to Sullivan and his wife. "I had to use a taxi anytime I had to go somewhere," said Sullivan.

The township presently rents a bus and driver from Davidsmeyer bus firm. The

The computerized system is being offered to all the Northwest suburban libraries through the Northwest Suburban Library Association. Each set of four or five libraries would be tied into a central computer, located at one of those libraries. Presently, it is not known how many of the libraries will be involved in the program.

MISS CONNELL said the computerized system, if approved by the board, would not be installed until August or September.

All of the library books would have to be specially coded and all library cards would also be coded. However, once the system is working, Miss Connell said, librarians would have much more free time, to spend on other facets of library work.

She said the library staff is several years behind on various jobs such as working on the card catalogue and weeding out outdated science books.

"This system would relieve us of some of the routine work," Miss Connell said. "We keep slipping farther and farther behind."

MEMO TO: FREMO AND PALATINE HONOR STUDENTS FROM: BY THE SEAT OF YOUR PANTS

You really did it up big and distinguished yourselves as something special by making the recent quarter honor roll. Perhaps you would like to know that there are people out here who are most impressed with your achievement. Making it into that select group did not come easy for you. It took hard work, and determination on your part. Putting forth that second effort, has brought you to where you are now. Keep doing what ever you're doing because the results have been tremendous. Our eyes are upon you and we'll be expecting great things from you in the future. Congratulations and good luck!

Village hires first of 10 new policemen

Eligibility list posted

The Board of Police and Fire Commissioners has posted the list of men eligible to become policemen in Mount Prospect. The first 10 men will be hired this month. The candidates in order of their eligibility are Thomas F. Daley, Joseph Kolonowski, Russell Sinkler, Leonard E. Banas, Ralph Timm, Robert Cassie, Gregory Garafalo, Thomas Benz, Ernest Dettmar and Raymond Rohde.

The following nine men must take the lie-detector portion of the qualification tests. They are Erich Jacob, Donald Gavel, Michael Goy, John Gruber Jr., Michael Strentz, Robert Neumann, John Eppley, John Daley and Ronald Rauch.

Mount Prospect got a new policeman this week, the first of 10 men to be hired this month.

Raymond P. Rohde of Arlington Heights was the first to be hired from the new policeman eligibility list posted this week. Although 19 men are on the list, only 10 have completed all testing procedures satisfactorily. The other nine are on the list conditionally, according to Laurence Ostling, chairman of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

Ostling said the last nine men on the list will have to pass a lie-detector test before they could be hired. In addition, three men remain eligible from the last police eligibility list which is 'good through March 31. The Herald has learned one of the three has refused a job offer from the police department at this time.

The top 10 men have all accepted appointments to the police department, according to Police Chief Bert Giddens' office. Rohde was the 10th man.

ROHDE'S APPOINTMENT brings the police manpower up to 40 sworn officers, but that total should be 49 by Jan. 2. An additional five policemen from the eligibility list can be hired at any time as the village board authorized a 54-man police department. According to the approved budget, there could have been 54 policemen starting last Nov. 1.

Because of the lengthy testing procedures and whittling down from 55 candidates who passed the written police exam to the 19 on the tentative eligibility list, earlier reservations made by the police department for the new men in police training schools were canceled. According to Giddens' office, the earliest any recruits can be enrolled in the required six-week training course will be February.

Meanwhile, the men will be hired as available and will receive some introductory training and familiarization with police procedures from the police department. Rohde was sworn in Monday and is already at work in the department.

Among the other 18 men on the new eligibility lists Ralph S. Timm, a former Mount Prospect policeman who left to go into his family's business in 1971. Another is John L. Eppley, the son of Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley and who is currently employed by the village on the police Central Dispatch radio system.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel-shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gapers as it rolled from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippletree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man: They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitchers were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

Rail station parking gets hard to find

Robert McKenna generally leaves his Algonquin Road apartment at 7:25 a.m. to catch the 7:51 at the Mount Prospect train station. It's a three-mile drive, and usually takes about 10 minutes. Lately, though, McKenna has been leaving home 15 minutes earlier to be sure of getting a parking space at the depot. And even then, the lot is crowded.

"There are gobs more people taking the train now," he asserts. "I thought at first I was arriving late. But there are just more people parking there now."

Dauno Toussaint, the ticket agent at the Mount Prospect station of the Chicago and North Western Ry., concurs that ridership has gone up, though it hasn't been a drastic increase.

"I've talked to some people who say they are taking the train rather than drive because of gas prices and such," she said.

GAS PRICES and gas availability, coupled with holiday shopping in the Loop and worsening weather conditions for driving have pushed the commuter

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some Northwest suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for The Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown to Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 280 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Botterman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

The Prospect Marching Knights, which includes band members and Rhythmettes, will be in Chicago's State Street Christmas parade tomorrow. The Hersey High pom-pom girls, the Pomerettes, also will be in the parade.

Band directors Don Canova from Hersey High, Doug Peterson from Elk Grove High and Jack Williamson from Wheeling High will judge 40 bands from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio and Missouri participating in the event.

The parade starts at 11 a.m. from Wacker Drive and goes down State Street to Congress. It'll also be on TV, Channel 9, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

LEN JACOBS, son of Mrs. Lorraine Jacobs, 209 S. Emerson, will receive the Pro Deo medal Sunday at the 11 o'clock service at St. Mark Lutheran Church, 200 S. Wille St. The Pro Deo medal is the highest award a Boy Scout can receive in the Lutheran Church. Len is a member of Troop 154.

GAYLE GEIRKE, 708 Prospect Manor, a freshman elementary education major at Winona State in Winona, Minn., has chalked up straight A's this semester and made the Dean's List. Gayle, a former Prospect High Rhythmette, is a member of the Warriorettes, the pom-pom girls at Winona.

THE ST. RAYMOND band, made up of sixth, seventh and eighth grade students, will play at Randhurst tonight at 7. Director is John Reid.

THE FOREST VIEW High school girls' choir, concert choir and the Towne Criers sing at Woodfield on Sunday at 4 p.m.

THERE ARE JUST a few seats left for the Mount Prospect Jaycees Wives second annual "Luncheon With Santa" tomorrow at the Community Center, 800 See Gwun. It's sure to be a gala event as kids visit with Santa, are entertained by clowns and receive lollipops and balloons — as well as lunch. Tickets are $1 for adults and children. Call Sue Lenberg, 253-7935, to make reservations. No tickets will be sold at the door.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP 471 from Lions Park School has had a busy fall under the guidance of leader Judy (Mrs. James) Johnson, 804 S. Elm St. They've visited Brockwood Convalescent Home to play bingo with the residents; Lamb's Farm in Libertyville; camped at Happy Hollow in Wisconsin (a weekend of rain) and toured the Paddock Publications offices. Co-leader Judy Mattingly is currently teaching ceramics to the girls.

Next Tuesday the troop will hold its Court of Awards at Lions Park School.

THE FINAL NUMBER in the Christmas Concert at Prospect High at 3 p.m. Dec. 16 should be a knockout! It's "Prince of Peace" which premiered on TV two years ago and received an Emmy for the production. The music just became available last spring and it's to be performed at the concert by a combination of the 115-voice Prospect choir and the award winning stage band. Prince of Peace blends the old, old Christmas story with contemporary music. The choir is directed by Sterling Mische and the band by Ralph Wilder.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS' PLAY, "The Glass Menagerie" featuring, from left, Tony Zugrone, Rick Laich, Diane Gabbie and Laura Bobowski, will be presented Friday, and Saturday at Hersey High School. Curtain time for the play is 8 p.m. and tickets are $1.50. Reserved seats are available by calling the school. The play is directed by Jerry Lowe.

Available for many types of work

Advisory panel matches seniors to jobs

Need a handyman around the house to help with odds and ends or a babysitter to watch over the kids?

Senior citizens in Mount Prospect are available for those tasks and countless others. Through the village's senior citizens advisory council, elderly retired persons are being matched up with part-time and full-time skilled and unskilled jobs in the community.

Last week, a 70-year-old woman needing assistance in performing simple chores was provided help, as well as companionship, by another woman. The assistant's age: 65.

"When we first opened this office, one of the first inquiries we had was a man looking for employment," said Kathleen Stoga, program coordinator of the senior citizens advisory council.

SUBSEQUENT requests further underlined the need for an organized placement service for senior citizens.

Mrs. Stoga noted that many of the retired elderly are trained in skilled jobs, such as accounting, engineering and sales.

Employers looking for workers are asked to contact Mrs. Stoga's office at 398-4567.

NUMEROUS OTHER projects involving senior citizens are also being planned:

• Housing: A questionnaire will be sent with the village calendar later this month asking seniors about housing needs. The questions involve the type of housing and location desired by the elderly.

• Shopping: A survey asking local merchants to provide discounts to elderly persons has brought some favorable responses. A complete list of shops offering discounts will be compiled next month.

• Transportation: Arrangements are in the works for reduced-rate cab service for the elderly with Prospect Cab Co. The new fare schedule is expected to go into effect in time for Christmas shopping.

parking lots near the Mount Prospect depot to their hilt.

They've been filled to capacity regularly for awhile, and the overflow has spilled onto nearby streets, where only two-hour parking is permitted.

Some 595 parking spaces are available for commuters, 420 in municipal lots (at 30 cents a day per space) and 175 in private lots (at 50 cents a day).

The village has filed an application for federal funds to provide more spaces, but Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley doesn't expect action on the application soon. "We just have a place in line," he said. Even if the grant came through, the village would have to acquire land for the additional parking spaces, he added.

Eppley estimated that the village needs "at least 500 to 600 more spaces."

VILLAGE PLANNER Jack Seto said the solution to the shortage of spaces and land may lie in a multi-story parking structure. He noted that state studies of mass transit have predicted a 2 to 4 percent increase in ridership each year from the Mount Prospect station, which draws from Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Elk Grove Village as well as Mount Prospect.

The Mount Prospect Park District maintains a 125-space parking lot just south of the depot at its Lions Park Recreation Center, but it is not likely to be turned over for commuter use.

A request last month to open the lot to commuter parking was turned down by the park district's board of commissioners, who felt the lot should be restricted to park district use.

Thomas Cooper, director of parks and recreation for the park district, estimated 30 to 50 spaces a day are used at a time.

Lincoln Junior High teacher dies in sleep

Ludolf Martin, 51, of Lake Bluff, a teacher at Mount Prospect Dist. 57 Lincoln Junior High School, died early Tuesday in his sleep at home.

Martin had taught seventh-grade science at Lincoln Junior High since 1970. Previously, he taught a year at the now-closed Dist. 57 Central School and for 15 years in other schools throughout the country. He is survived by his wife and a married daughter, both of whom live in Lake Bluff.

Village swears in four firemen

Four Mount Prospect firemen were sworn in this week, bringing the department's manpower total to 55 men.

Sworn in Monday were Kenneth Chmielewski and Will Bass of Mount Prospect, James Jullano of River Forest, and Raymond Young of Chicago. Two are already on duty and two start Monday.

Sax says his bashes no 'rip off'

Barry Sax and the singles bashes he promotes are not a rip off. If they were, Sax would not be at Arlington Park Race Track planning a second singles mixer on Dec. 14.

That is the message the 39-year-old Canadian entrepreneur is putting out in media advertising and last night at a press conference at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Sax said 8,000 people got inside the Regency Hyatt House Hotel on Nov. 23 for what was hyped as the world's largest international singles party. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 were locked out, he estimates. He hopes the Dec. 14th party will be as big.

"MY SINCERITY in giving full value for the dollar was there," Sax says of the Hyatt House party. "If it wasn't, if it was a sham, I would be here. I'd be in Acapulco or somewhere," he says.

But he admits there were problems with the Hyatt House party. Some of its bad reputation he blames on the Chicago media.

"There were four to five people yelling, 'Rip off, rip off' and ABC and NBC televised them as a major event. Consequently Can-Am was a rip off in the minds of many people."

Sax estimates that only 5 to 10 per cent of the Hyatt House good time seekers were disappointed with the party.

Another part of the problem was, he says, the Hyatt House itself. "They were not prepared for the crowd. They panicked."

Arlington Park, he says, is ready for a crowd, and things will be groovier the second time around, he hopes.

To attract more female singles, Can-Am has booked a rock 'n' roll heavy from the 50's, Fabian, as its headliner.

Food, which ran out at the Hyatt House, will be served throughout the evening, he says.

ADMISSION WILL be restricted to persons 21 years of age and older.

As an incentive to the disenchanted, Sax is admitting ticket holders from the Hyatt House at no additional charge. Others will pay the same $10 admission charge.

Sax says he made only $15,000 on the first party — the money is still tied up in escrow in the aftermath of the Hyatt House extravaganza.

He hopes to make more at Arlington Park, and also clear the name of Can-Am productions, a year-old enterprise he would like to build into an empire.

Dist. 26 wrapup

Panel to check expansion plans

A committee will soon begin evaluating all Dist. 26 schools to determine what, if any, buildings should be expanded in the near future to meet student needs.

The committee is to be composed of one representative of each school's PTA, two school board members, three Dist. 26 administrators and two citizens.

Dist. 26 Supt. John Fridlund plans to begin his part of the investigation immediately and will probably report to the school board at its next regular meeting, Dec. 18.

Maryville work delayed

Construction of the new Maryville School is still being delayed, pending soil tests of the Gregory Street site on Maryville Academy property in Des Plaines by engineers for the Illinois Capital Development Board.

A representative of the ICDB told Fridlund two weeks ago that the tests had been authorized, but so far, they have not been conducted.

The tests are necessary before architects can complete plans for the structural design of the facility and workers can break ground.

Fridlund yesterday said he expects the tests to be done "momentarily," but he has not heard any further word on the project from the ICDB.

Children who will go to the new school presently attend the River Road School also on Maryville Academy property. The new building will replace the River Road School which has been declared unfit and unsafe by state officials.

Concerning long-range goals

Reactions sought on schools

Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 officials are seeking citizen reaction to a long-range plan they have developed for achieving educational and administrative goals in the 1970s.

Residents have until next Wednesday to voice opinions on the plan before it probably will be adopted by the school board. Copies of the 40-page report are available at the administration building, 700 N. Sacconbeck Rd.

The plan, titled A-180, was put together at the request of the state superintendent's office. All public school districts in Illinois this year are required for the first time to submit similar plans.

DIST. 23 Assistant Supt. Tom Rich said the plan has been made part of a uniform set of guidelines established by the state office for the evaluation, recognition and certification of public school districts.

One of the main reasons for requiring the plan this year, Rich said, was to promote public involvement in school affairs.

The plan was compiled during the past year by a task force composed of administrators, teachers, students and residents of the district.

"We are required to have a plan so that it is clear to everyone what we are doing here," Supt. Ed Grodzky said. "It's a plan for accountability in all areas of education."

THE A-180 PLAN must be submitted to the state superintendent's office by Jan.

Eucharistic vigil

St. Joseph the Worker Church in Wheeling and St. Thomas Becket Church in Prospect Heights will co-host a Eucharistic vigil at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Wheeling Church, 181 W. Dundee Rd.

1. It was discussed at the school board meeting this week and will probably be adopted at the next regular meeting next Wednesday.

School officials said they are hoping residents will read it and make comments before the board vote.

Based on an evaluation of the current operations of the district, specific student and systems (administrative) goals are named in the report along with the actions necessary to achieve each objective.

Organizing curriculums to be flexible enough to meet the needs of each individual student is stressed in the student goals section of the report. This part of the plan sets forth educational objectives, and the grade level by which students should complete steps toward each goal.

STUDENT GOALS included in the plan are:

• To develop the inquiring creative mind and the self-directed individual. Activities designed to help students realize this objective focus on developing communication skills, creative expression in a variety of media, logic and independent research techniques.

• To make students aware of citizenship responsibilities and appreciative of cultural differences. Toward this goal, students will study democratic processes and the contributions that ethnic and racial groups have made to American life.

• To develop each student's capacity to assume more and more responsibility for his own education after leaving the classroom. In achieving this objective, students will gradually be required to take on responsibility for learning activities and dealing with their peers. They will also be informed of the services of libraries, historical societies, park district programs, junior colleges and adult facilities for continuing education.

• To help students recognize that every area of human knowledge has significant contributions to make to their growth. To reach this goal, students will continuously participate in learning activities in the areas of humanities, mathematics, science, the creative arts, health and physical education.

SYSTEMS OR administrative goals outlined by the district for the 1970's are:

• To adopt a revised and updated policy manual in January 1974. The policy manual is a guide for the operations of the school board.

• To present a new administrative organizational chart for school board approval by next June. The chart would identify administrative patterns and channels of communication for both the central office and school building administrators.

• To implement a computerized accounting system by July 1975.

• To develop a multi-staff screening process for kindergarten students by next September to identify students with learning problems.

• To develop curriculum guides in reading, basic skills development, home economics, industrial arts, health (grades six, seven and eight), and the instructional material center program by next September.

• To adopt policies identifying student health services and the duties and responsibilities of the school nurse by next September.

• To provide needy students in Dist. 23 with free lunches during the next school year.

• To establish school bus safety standards by next June.

• To develop a list of desired professional competencies for teachers which will be used as a guide for in-service training programs during the 1974-75 school year by next June.

Pioneer Park residents given flood-pond plan

The Arlington Heights Park District attempted last night to get community reaction to a proposal for storage of flood water in Pioneer Park.

The 50 area residents in attendance were presented with plans from Stanley Consultants, village hired engineers, for a combination permanent pond-overflow basin to alleviate flooding in the neighborhood.

Kenneth Jacobs, a Stanley spokesman, said this plan was preferable to an alternative of enlarging the storm sewers to ten feet and doubling the size of the Wilke-Kirchoff detention basin. He said the latter plan would cost at least $1 million more to achieve the same results as the pond proposal.

A straw poll of the audience by park commissioners showed a slight favoring of the pond use plan.

MOST OPPOSITION to the pond came from residents expressing reluctance to give up land in what the commissioners term "the most park-starved area" of the village. Residents said the extra million dollar expenditure was an acceptable price for keeping the park unchanged.

The pond, with a proposed depth of three to eight feet, was also cited as a hazard to young children using the park.

Residents expressing approval of the pond said the needs of homes with flooding histories outweighed the loss of a baseball diamond. One citizen said "it is insane to compare the loss of my living room with a ball field."

Frank Palmatier, village trustee and chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding, said the village would provide relocation for any ball fields prior to any work started in Pioneer Park. He said residents were trading the fields for flood protection.

NORMAN BREYER, plan commissioner, said the enlargement of the sewers would cost the village bond issue an extra $70,000 yearly in added interest. He said the extra $1 million would also impede the village's bonding power in the future.

Palmatier said the entire bond issue could be doomed "if an extravagant figure is plugged in for Pioneer Park."

The park commissioners did not take any formal action as a result of the meeting. They said, however, community reaction would play a major role in their final decision. The village must have their approval before touching park land.

Comr. Bruce Everly said, "We aren't here to sell you anything. We're here to listen."

Sax says his singles parties are no 'rip off'

Barry Sax and the singles bashers he promotes are not a rip off. If they were, Sax would not be at Arlington Park Race Track planning a second singles mixer on Dec. 14.

That is the message the 39-year-old Canadian entrepreneur is putting out in media advertising and last night at a press conference at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Sax said 8,000 people got inside the Regency Hyatt House Hotel on Nov. 23 for what was hyped as the world's largest international singles party. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 were locked out, he estimates. He hopes the Dec. 14th party will be as big.

"MY SINCERITY in giving full value for the dollar was there," Sax says of the Hyatt House party. "If it wasn't, it was a sham, I would be here. I'd be in Acapulco or somewhere," he says.

But he admits there were problems with the Hyatt House party. Some of its bad reputation he blames on the Chicago media.

"There were four to five people yelling, 'Rip off, rip off' and ABC and NBC televised them as a major event. Consequently Can-Am was a rip off in the minds of many people."

Sax estimates that only 5 to 10 per cent of the Hyatt House good time seekers were disappointed with the party.

Another part of the problem was, he says, the Hyatt House itself. "They were not prepared for the crowd. They panicked."

Arlington Park, he says, is ready for a crowd, and things will be groovier the second time around, he hopes.

To attract more female singles, Can-Am has booked a rock 'n' roll heavy from the 50's, Fabian, as its headliner.

Food, which ran out at the Hyatt House, will be served throughout the evening, he says.

ADMISSION WILL be restricted to persons 21 years of age and older.

As an incentive to the disenchanted, Sax is admitting ticket holders from the Hyatt House at no additional charge. Others will pay the same $10 admission charge.

HORST HERZING AND HIS horses step down Northwest Highway yesterday. Herzing, who owns an Arlington Heights roofing company, said he was going to horse power for his job to combat the fuel shortage-price rise. The team and wagon drew gapers as it rolled

from Palatine to Herzing's office in Arlington Heights.

And they're off!

...When what to commuters' wondering eyes should appear
but Horst the Roofer and his high-stepping gas beaters

by JOE SWICKARD

You can't deny that Horst Herzing is a man of his word. Last week, the German-born roofer vowed he was going to get a horse and wagon to deal with the gasoline shortage-price crunch.

"That's no baloney, sir," he said, and it wasn't, either. Yesterday morning he snapped the reins, and his matched Belgian work horses smartly stepped onto Northwest Highway.

Herzing and four men from his Arlington Heights roofing company had spent the first part of the morning cooling their heels in Busch's Goodyear in Palatine, waiting for the wagon and horses to arrive from Whippietree Farms, Mundelein. Joe Busch admitted it was the first time his shop catered to horses while the roofers joked about the horses oversleeping.

WHEN THE VAN, carrying the horses and wagon, arrived the jokes were forgotten in the rush to load up the ladders, shingles and tar. People piled in back and they were off.

The horses were gentle monsters. At the shoulder, they were almost as tall as a man. They were a deep rich brown, with white hairy stockings flapping over their massive hooves.

The wagon and hitchers were not of mass production. Red with gold trim and bells and red tassels for the harnesses.

The wagon jolted along at a pleasant 10 m.p.h. on Northwest Highway toward Arlington Heights, while the Federal Aviation Administration DC-3 circled overhead checking new electronic landing aids at O'Hare. One of Herzing's trucks followed with flashers on to alert motorists approaching from the rear.

DRIVERS OF their Detroit dreams typically appeared irked at the slow-moving truck and swung into the left lane to pass.

That's the point at which their jaws usually dropped to the seat belts. More than one passenger was almost strangled in a shoulder harness trying to look back at the proudly stepping horses with steaming breath.

Traffic started backing up and Herzing kept the horses steady. Motorists in the opposite direction continued their watch long after they should have had their eyes back on the road.

The railroad, which some people say has had its day, too, came close to stopping when the wagon rolled by. An engineer on a commuter train leaned far out of his cab to wave at the horses and wagon and Herzing. Men on the road gang stopped cold to gape.

A sheriff's squad car came up in a hurry to check out the slow parade. He drew parallel and then matched speeds with the wagon. He used his radio, looked again, shook his head and drove on with the smile and a wave.

AT EACH GASOLINE station, transmission repair shop and car agency Herzing and his crew would wave and laugh and laugh. They returned the wave, although the joke may be on them before long.

Two students tried to hitch a ride on the wagon. A car with three girls from Arlington High School slowed to admire the horses before going to classes.

Another, parking in a commuter lot, ran dragging her children so they could see the horses. A small boy leaned from his mother's car to say "hi, horses." Herzing smiled and returned the greeting.

And there were the two boys all set to heave snowballs. They looked and decided it was better to wave and shout hello to the men riding on a wagon on a brisk December morning.

C&NW, Milwaukee Road ridership up

Car-to-train switch for commuters?

The dwindling supply of gasoline apparently has prompted some Northwest suburban commuters to abandon their cars in favor of trains.

Spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road indicated yesterday that ridership has risen slightly in the past few weeks. They attributed part of the increase to the energy shortage.

"I do see new faces on our trains," said Orren R. Anderson, director of mass transit services for The Milwaukee Road, which services Hanover Park and Roselle. Anderson himself regularly takes the train downtown from Elgin, and said he spotted six to eight newcomers in his car alone over the past couple of weeks.

R. W. COAKLEY, director of passenger services for the Chicago and North Western, said volume for October is up 6 per cent over the same month last year, and said he expects the November totals (not yet compiled) to be even higher.

The North Western has already experienced some overload on its 290 bi-level cars, and has no more cars to put on the line. "Nobody really knows what this energy crunch is going to do to us," Coakley said.

The Milwaukee Road's Anderson predicted that more and more commuters will leave their cars behind as the energy shortage worsens. "If we ever get rationing," he said, "our business will really boom."

The Milwaukee Road has no immediate plans for handling the extra load, but Anderson said some thought is being given to renovating cars set aside for scrap and putting them back into use.

WHILE BOTH railroads have experienced increases in the number of daily passengers, the spokesmen also are quick to point out that the figure regularly goes up because of natural growth in the suburbs.

In addition, some of the recent upsurge in the number of riders is attributed to the opening of the Sears Tower near the downtown depots, holiday shopping and worsening weather conditions for driving.

As train ridership has increased, parking on commuter lots also has risen. One

Des Plaines policeman said the parking lot there — traditionally one of the smallest train stops on the North Western line — has lately been full by 8 a.m.

Commuters who board the train in Mount Prospect also have reported difficulty finding a parking space. Roselle has made two additions to its Milwaukee Road lot since it was opened 3½ years ago, "and it keeps filling up," says public works director Jerry Botterman.

Arlington Heights and Palatine, on the North Western line, have reported no significant parking difficulties, but this may be attributable to the opening of a lot at the Arlington Park Race Track in the fall. The race track station has drawn some 775 commuters who previously parked at other stations.

Seniors praise program giving free bus rides

by BOB GALLAS

"I'm a good hiker, but this service was something we really needed," said Mrs. Esther Sove. Mrs. Sove was one of the first riders this week with a newly formed bus service for senior citizens in Elk Grove Township.

Sponsored by Elk Grove Township, the service provides free rides for senior citizens. By calling the township office and making an appointment a day in advance, seniors are picked up and dropped off at their front door.

"I used to walk or sometimes asked my daughter to drive me," said Mrs. Sove, 68. "Now I can get around to Woodfield and the post office on my own," she said.

About 35 persons are expected to take advantage of the service this week. More are expected when word of mouth gets around after seniors who use the service tell their friends.

"I plan to use it twice a week," said Dennis Sullivan of Elk Grove Village. "But I don't think a lot of people know about it. I wouldn't have known if I hadn't read about it in the newspaper," added Sullivan.

THE NEW BUS service will mean quite a savings to Sullivan and his wife. "I had to use a taxi anytime I had to go somewhere," said Sullivan.

The township presently rents a bus and driver from Davidsmeyer bus firm. The bus service for seniors will be tested for a two-month period. If successful, township officials have already budgeted money to purchase a bus and hire a driver to operate the service full time.

Township seniors can use the service to travel anywhere within the township, which covers Elk Grove Village and parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. The bus service also goes outside the township, taking shoppers to Woodfield. At the present time, the service operates between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

"I plan to use it regularly," said Roy Muth, of Arlington Heights who used the bus for a trip to the bank.

For more information on the service, contact Margaret Blaschke at the township office, 437-0300.

Boy Scout first aid meet to draw 350

More than 350 Boy Scouts from Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows will participate Saturday in the annual first aid meet at Our Lady of the Wayside School in Arlington Heights.

The event begins at 9 a.m. in the school's gymnasium, 432 W. Park St. Five varied problems will be presented to the boys who will compete in their own patrols from the 25 troops in the local area of the Northwest Suburban Council's Sauk Woods District.

Time and the proper procedures in solving the problems involving burns, fractures and bites will determine the meet's winners.

Heading up the team of local Scout leaders responsible for this year's first aid meet is Andrew M. Turner, district activities chairman. Assisting him are Dieter Burkhardt, George Chapman, Paul Kaplan, Chuck Merritt and Ray Strattan. Also participating are Gerald Chapman, district chairman; Ed Kemper, commissioner, and David I. Ross, district executive. The event is open to the public.

Need address out of town?

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. suggests taking advantage of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library's 125 telephone directories from major cities in the United States to locate addresses of friends for holiday greeting cards.

The directories, for cities of 50,000 or more are filed alphabetically by states. The library also has a ZIP code directory listing every community in the country.

Library officials said the expected volume of requests makes it impossible to handle this information by telephone.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS' PLAY, "The Glass Menagerie" featuring, from left, Tony Zugrone, Rick Laich, Diane Gabbie and Laura Bobowski, will be presented Friday and Saturday at Hersey High School. Curtain time for

$1,500 worth of drugs seized

MEG agents arrest five youths on heroin charges

Five persons, including one juvenile, were arrested Wednesday after undercover police agents made a heroin "buy" at 1322 N. Chicago Ave., Arlington Heights.

The alleged heroin sale at the home of Kyle Wiederhold, 21, was followed by a raid by Metropolitan Enforcement Group agents and Arlington Heights police. Heroin with a street value of $1,500 was seized in the 4 p.m. Wednesday raid.

Those arrested included Wiederhold, who was charged with sale of heroin, possession of heroin, possession of hypodermic needles and syringes, conspiracy to sell heroin, unlawful use of a weapon and misdemeanor theft. He reportedly attempted to pull a knife on the arresting officers.

THE OTHERS were:

• Glenn Engelking, 21, of 119 E. Berkeley Dr., Arlington Heights, charged with sale of heroin, possession of heroin and resisting arrest. According to reports, he attempted to take a gun away from one of the agents.

• John Almdale, 22, of 903 N. Illinois, Arlington Heights, charged with sale of heroin, possession of heroin and conspiracy to sell heroin.

• Margo Jones, 19, of 647 N. Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights, charged with sale of heroin, possession of heroin and conspiracy to sell heroin.

ALL ARE scheduled to appear Dec. 17 in Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court. A 14-year-old Arlington Heights youth also was arrested and released to his parents' custody.

According to the MEG spokesman, two MEG agents made contact with Wiederhold about a week before the arrests. At that time Wiederhold allegedly took $50 from the agents with the agreement he was to bring some heroin to a meeting that night. Wiederhold never showed for that meeting, the spokesman said.

After a few days Wiederhold was tracked down and allegedly told the MEG agents that while he had neither their $50 nor any heroin, he knew where they could buy some for another $50. This led to the purchase of the illegal drug by the agents at Wiederhold's home and the subsequent arrests, police said.

Burglars get furs, jewels from home

John McDonald, of 217 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights, reported the theft of furs and jewels from his home Wednesday, police said.

According to reports, the burglars entered by prying open a rear bedroom window.

McDonald told police the thieves took a mink coat, a mink cape, a mink stole and a mink hat. Also reported as missing were pearls, a gold necklace, a diamond watch and between 50 and 75 silver dollars. No value was placed on the missing goods, according to reports.

Snake prejudice hits our city

Seymour the Snake, Rolling Meadows wants no part of you or your relatives.

Rolling Meadows police notified the management of the Topps store yesterday that baby box constrictors which have been on sale in the store's pet department must be removed. The two snakes, each about four feet long, sell for $15 at the store, but when police learned of the snakes, the management was told the store was violating a city "nuisance" ordinance.

The ordinance states that reptiles and serpents, along with a variety of other animals, may not be kept in the city.

Store officials told police the snakes "are harmless unless they are at least ten feet long" and that several have already been sold. The snakes feed on live mice and other small animals, according to police.

Residents who may have purchased a snake for a pet are also in violation of the city ordinance, police said. Snake owners could be prosecuted if the reptiles are not removed.

Recently a village-wide search in Bluff Grove took place for a lost pet snake named Seymour. The snake was at first believed to be poisonous but was later determined to be a harmless rat snake. Seymour has never been found.

Personnel unit holds Yule party

Members of the Dist. 25 Office Personnel Association recently held its annual Christmas party at the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn.

Contributions from the club will be given to Wally Phillips' Needy Children's Fund, and also to a needy family in the Arlington Heights area. At Thanksgiving, clothing and canned goods were collected and sent to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Officers of the association are Mrs. Pat Train, president; Mrs. Gloria Koch, vice president; Mrs. Mary Moore, treasurer; and Mrs. Dawn Kay, secretary.

In February, there will be a pot-luck dinner with Elvira Behrens, a handwriting analyst, as speaker. In April the annual boutique auction will be held to raise money for a planned trip to Ravinia in June.
